Reindictment For Ellsberg

Federal Grand Jury Also Charges Russo

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Daniel Ellsberg, who leaked the secret "Pentagon Papers" on the Vietnam war, was reindicted today on serious, new federal charges of stealing and distributing Defense Department documents.

The indictment returned by a federal grand jury in Los Angeles and announced by the Justice Department also accused Ellsberg of keeping national defense papers. He was charged with violation of the 1940 Espionage Act.

Also named in a 15-count sealed indictment, returned Wednesday and opened today, was Anthony J. Russo Jr., who spent 47 days in jail for civil contempt rather than testify about how parts of the 47 volume study were leaked to the news media.

Russo, 35, once worked at the Rand Corp. —a socalled "think tank" —with Ellsberg. He is being sought by FBI agents.

Officials said Ellsberg, 40, did not need to be arrested because he is already free on bond posted after his first indictment in the case last June 28.

The new indictment disclosed that Vu Van Thai, 52, a former South Vietnamese ambassador to the United States, got one volume of the study. It named Thai and Mrs. Linda Sinay, 28, a Los Angeles advertising woman, who helped duplicate the papers, as unindicted co-conspirators.

The Justice Department would not say if either Thai or the woman testified before the grand jury.

Ellsberg was indicted originally on two counts of possession of government documents and converting them to his own use, for which he could receive a maximum penalty of 20 years imprisonment and a $20,000 fine.

DANIEL ELLSBERG
New charges

The new superseding indictment, announced by the office of vacationing Attorney General John N. Mitchell, accused Ellsberg of 11 federal crimes plus conspiracy for which he could receive a maximum of 115 years in prison sentence and fines of up to $120,000 fine.

Russo could face a maximum 35 years in prison and a $45,000 fine if convicted on three substantive counts and one of conspiracy.

Both men were charged with conspiring for 18 months — from March, 1969, to September, 1970 —to steal classified government documents from the Rand Corp., to distribute them to unauthorized persons, and to illegally possess them and refuse to surrender them to the government.

Ellsberg was charged with stealing and distributing government documents worth more than $100 and Russo with receiving. Both were charged under the Espionage Act with acquiring and illegally retaining national defense documents.

The documents —the celebrated Pentagon Papers as they became known —were based on a study of the origins and the progress of the Vietnam war initiated by Robert S. McNamara before he stepped down as defense secretary in 1968.

The papers were cited by critics of the war as supporting their argument that the United States never should have become so embroiled in Vietnam.

Supporters of Vietnam policy argued that the documents reflected an incomplete story of what happened.

In the new indictment, Ellsberg was listed in two counts of giving Thai and Mrs. Sinay copies of different parts of the 47-volume study. The indictment referred to his alleged possession, however, only of 18 volumes of "a 38-volume-Department of Defense study titled 'United States' Vietnam Relations 1945-1967.' "

The grand jury said Thai was given one volume titled "Settlement of the Conflict — Negotiations, 1967-1968, History of Contacts" by Ellsberg.

At the time, Thai apparently was a consultant to the administrator of the United Nations Development Program. He is now believed to be with a U.N. river development project in Dakar, Senegal.

A Justice Department spokesman said the new indictment was "not an indication of whether there will or will not be any more indictments" in the case.

New Buses To Roll On Saturday

Distribution of the schedules to commuters began this morning aboard Greyhound buses, and will continue through tomorrow until Greyhound is replaced early Saturday by bridge district buses, which also will carry the new schedules.

Copies are to be available locally by tomorrow at all post offices, banks, city and county offices, chambers of commerce and libraries.

Schedules also are available by telephoning the bridge district's "Golden Gate Transit" office in San Rafael at 517 Jacoby Street. The telephone number is 453-2100.

District officials stressed that with extremely rare exceptions, which they could not pinpoint, their system initially will serve the same routes and schedules as Greyhound. Coming weeks will see expansion of the system into residential neighborhoods, however, so that most commuters in population centers need walk no more than a quarter of a mile to a bus stop.

One major change effective on Saturday will be that downtown San Rafael commuters no longer will use the Greyhound depot on Third Street. District buses instead will stop on Fourth Street under the freeway just east of Hetherton Street.

But any commuter going to the same stop at the same time as he did with Greyhound should find a bus, according to district officials. They readily conceded there may be bugs in the system, especially on Monday, when they roll 140 buses. Greyhound used 103.

About 40 buses will be used on the weekend transbay service starting Saturday.

The weekday local service within Marin will use commuter buses returning from San Francisco.

Commuter service will be provided from essentially all Marin communities to and from San Francisco, linking at various points with the local service. In Sonoma, service will include Petaluma, Cotati and Penngrove as well as Santa Rosa Junior College, downtown Santa Rosa and the Coddington area.

Buses on the transbay service will operate every day of the year, with heavy emphasis on morning and evening commute hours. Schedules extend into the late evening hours and begin early in the morning to accommodate shift workers, shoppers and other late commuters.

District officials promise there will be no standees, and that additional coaches will be added promptly when needed to assure everyone a seat.

In San Francisco, buses will follow two routes, one through the financial district, and one to the Civic Center area. Buses will be marked to indicate destinations.

To speed loading in San Francisco, commuters boarding there will not pay fares until

Viet Bomb Raids Come To An End

SAIGON (UPI) — American planes hit North Vietnam for the fifth consecutive day today, then concluded the most sustained and the most intense bombing campaign north of the Demilitarized Zone (DMZ) ever ordered by President Nixon. Three U.S. planes were reported lost in the five days of raids and five crewmen missing.

U.S. military spokesmen said the "limited duration" raids were completed and that one Air Force Phantom jet was shot down on Sunday and two Navy jets, an F4 and an A6 Intruder, were lost today. Five U.S. airmen were missing and one rescued.

North Vietnam had reported only a few hours earlier that 14 American planes had been downed since the raids began Sunday, including three jets shot down today. Hanoi said "a number of pilots" had been captured.

U.S. spokesmen said one of the crewmen of the A6 jet was rescued and the other was missing as are the two crewmen of the F4 Phantom lost today and the two crewmen of the F4 shot down Sunday.

In announcing the end of the raids, the command disclosed for the first time that the bombing was confined to the North Vietnamese Panhandle south of the 20th Pareallel, which is 70 miles south of Hanoi. The communique said that most of the raids were south of the 18th Parallel, which is more than 200 miles south of Hanoi and 70 miles north of the DMZ.

In Washington, the Pentagon said a total of 1,000 sorties were flown in the bombing campaign. A sortie is one mission by one aircraft. It meant the Air Force and Navy jets had surpassed in intensity the air effort of 400 sorties at the time of the American-South Viet-

Silent Nixon Ordered N. Viet Bomb Stepup

KEY BISCAYNE, Fla. (UPI) —The Florida White House concedes that President Nixon ordered the intensified bombing of North Vietnam, but the President himself maintains strict silence on the subject.

When Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler was asked whether the President personally ordered the bombing, he replied "I'm not going to speak to the obvious."

But since then, the Florida White House has referred all inquiries on the bombing policy to the Pentagon and military spokesmen in Saigon. Heavy bombing of North Vietnam entered its fifth day today, but the U.S. command in Saigon announced later that the bombing campaign had ended. It was the most prolonged bombing campaign north of the demilitarized zone ever ordered by President Nixon.

"The government (State and Defense departments) is speaking to it," Ziegler said before he departed on the first leg of his trip to Peking to make arrangements for Nixon's journey to the Communist mainland in February.

But he would not be drawn into a full discussion of the issue.

Nixon kept in touch with developments at his Biscayne Bay villa here and prepared to head back to Washington later today or Friday to ring in the New Year with his family. Nixon and his close ones were conscious that 1972—an election year—will be busy.

The President was in a sunny mood as he wound up two days of summit talks with West German Chancellor Willy Brandt Wednesday. On the lawn outside Nixon's white stucco residence, Brandt exuded the same contentment with their intensive conversations.

"I can say without qualification that the state of German-American relations are excellent at this time," Nixon said.

His remarks followed a communique that stressed Nixon's promise not to make any private deals with the Soviet Union on troop cuts in Europe when he travels to Moscow in May.

Brandt had sought such reassurance and he got it, unequivocably.

"The President reaffirmed that no decisions affecting the Atlantic alliance will be taken without full consultation with the allies," the joint statement said. Nixon also pledged American commitments in Europe will remain status quo and there will be no reduction of troops stationed in Europe.

Many Men May Escape '72 Draft

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The Selective Service said today that more than 100,000 young men with low lottery numbers may escape the draft altogether if no one is inducted in the first three months of 1972.

A spokesman said that about 90,000 of the men —born in 1951, physically qualified and holding lottery numbers below the 1971 cutoff of 125 — graduated from college this year or for other reasons lost their deferments.

An additional 10,000, he said, are young men born in 1950 or earlier with lottery numbers below 125 who also have lost their deferments. They, for the most part, are carryovers from 1970.

A third group, the spokesman said, is made up of men in college 20 years or older with student deferments and low lottery numbers. These young men, however, would have to drop their deferments before midnight Friday, Dec. 31, in order to be assured that they would not be drafted if there were no calls during January, February and March.

Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird said Monday that there would be no draft calls in January and possibly none in February and March.

Under Selective Service regulations, men with lottery numbers below the cutoff number are placed in what is called an "extended priority group" after their deferments expire. This means that they continue to be eligible for induction through the first quarter of the following year.

Judge Orders Gag In Juvenile Crimes

By WAT TAKESHITA

Beginning immediately, Marin County law enforcement officials may not release the identities of juveniles under 18 who are arrested or cited for any crime.

That order was delivered in writing yesterday to all police agencies in the county yesterday by Judge Joseph G. Wilson of Marin Superior Court.

The judge drew a clear distinction between the "identity" of any minor and the incident in which a minor may be involved. The release of identity is banned, but not a report of the incident itself.

For example, if a 16-year-old held up a bank, the judge explained, the holdup would certainly be reported. However, the robber would not be identified if under 18.

Another point that still remains unresolved is what to do about juveniles cited for traffic violations.

"Frankly, we hadn't thought about that," said Judge Wilson. "But I would think these would also come under the ban."

However, he conceded that a problem arises when these juveniles appear in juvenile traffic court, because the court is open to the public. "We can't close traffic court because that would cause a physical impossibility for the traffic judge."

"I'm sure we haven't figured out all the answers to problems that will come up," said the judge. "The only way to figure them out is when they rear their heads such as this one."

The judge asked all police departments to comment on the effect of his order and to make any suggestions.

The judge issued his order in accordance with a recent State Supreme Court decision in the case of TNG vs. Superior Court, in which the court said that the state welfare and institutions code requires police to get per-

WIRE NEWS BRIEFS From Everywhere

Rocky Eyes Another Term

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI) — Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller, who has served longer as governor than anyone now in office, said yesterday he might run for a fifth term in 1974.

Rockefeller

He made the statement while dismissing as "purely rumors" speculation he might run for vice president or accept a cabinet post in the Nixon administration.

"I'm seriously considering running for a fifth term" he said. Rockefeller said he would like to remain as governor until the state's current fiscal crisis is solved.

"I've spent 13 years trying to make this the best state in which to live, work and do business," he said. "I do not want to see a temporary fiscal crisis destroy what I've done."

Rockefeller was elected to his first four-year term in 1958 and is in his first year of his fourth term. Should he be elected to a fifth term it would be unprecedented in New York history.

Home Fired

BELFAST (UPI) — Fire today swept the country home of Maj. Ivan Neill, speaker of Northern Ireland's House of Commons. The Irish Republican Army (IRA) claimed responsibility for the blaze.

In a statement issued in Dublin, the official wing of the IRA said they wrecked the house with "explosives and an incendiary device ... in retaliation for the wrecking of working class homes in the Newry-South Down area by British terrorits troops."

Blast Kills Three

NEW ROCHELLE, N.Y. (UPI) — A boiler explosion and fire demolished a two-story commercial building on this city's main street yesterday, killing three men and injuring 30 other persons.

The blast shattered windows in nearby buildings on this city's main street yesterday, killing three men and injuring 30 other persons.

The blast shattered windows in nearby buildings in the business center of this Long Island Sound community 20 miles north of New York City and sent a sheet of flames into an adjoining structure, gutting it.

The explosion was set off by a fire in the boiler room of Crabtree Motor Sales Co., resulting in a second raging blaze which took more than four hours to control.

Gift Muddle

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Pentagon spokesman say they do not know why North Vietnam refused to accept 900 gift packages destined for American prisoners of war.

The Defense Department revealed Wednesday that the packages had been rejected despite the fact North Vietnam some time ago said they would be accepted. But spokesman Jerry W. Friedheim said the packages were refused before the new U.S. bombing attacks against the North began last weekend.

Malta Pullout

LONDON (UPI) — Britain set plans in motion today for a quick military pullout from Malta, the strategic Mediterranean island that has been a key British base for 171 years.

It did so, even at risk of a Soviet takeover, rather than knuckle under to a two-time ultimatum from the island's fiery Socialist Premier Dom Mintoff.

In messages to the British government on Christmas Eve and again on Wednesday, Mintoff demanded withdrawal of all British armed forces from the island by Friday unless Britain paid immediately another $11 million for the right to station them there.

This was in addition to a one-time cash payment of $12.35 million already paid by Britain for six months from Sept. 30.

Language Law

BOSTON (UPI) — Gov. Francis W. Sargent signed legislation yesterday making Massachusetts the first state to provide mandatory bilingual education for children with limited knowledge of English.

The law goes into effect next September.

"There are more than 40,000 school-age children in Massachusetts whose primary language is other than English," Sargent said in signing the measure.

Off To Peking

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A group of American experts were headed for Peking today to set up protection for President Nixon and arrange communications to keep him in touch with the White House during his February visit to China.

The advance group of about 25 men including White House Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler and representatives of the three major U.S. television networks left Wednesday with scheduled stops in Hawaii and Guam. They were scheduled to arrive in Peking Jan. 3.

Dock Session Set

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Leaders of East and West Coast longshoremen have decided to meet in New York City next week — possibly to discuss the possible merger of their two powerful unions.

The high-level conference was disclosed by President Nixon's top labor mediator, J. Curtis Counts, who has been directing peace talks between West Coast dockworkers and the Pacific Maritime Association PMA.

Counts said the 15,000-member International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union ILWU were recessing talks with the PMA until after the New York meeting. The two sides met three hours Wednesday.

NATO Held U.S. Euromart Bridge

KEY BISCAYNE, Fla. (UPI) —President Nixon is looking hopefully at the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) as a possible economic bridge between the United States and the increasingly potent European Common Market.

The idea would be to refurbish NATO, created as a Western bastian against the Soviet military threat of the Stalinist-era, into a general purpose organization with emphasis on the economic and political as well as the military.

If such a change takes place, it could save NATO from the danger of becoming a Cold War relic and give Washington a vital economic window into Europe at the same time.

Nixon Wednesday named ambassador-at-large David M. Kennedy to serve as U.S. representative to the NATO headquarters in Brussels.

Kennedy, Nixon's first Treasury secretary and a longtime Chicago banker, has been involved in money and trade negotiations and was named to his ambassadorial post Feb. 11.

The White House said Kennedy would continue to hold the rank of ambassador-at-large and would retain his seat in the Cabinet. Presumably, he would have frequent contact with the Common Market headquarters, also in Brussels.

The key nations in NATO are the United States, the six present members of the Common Market—Italy, West Germany, Belgium, France, The Netherlands and Luxembourg—and Great Britain, which plans to join the European bloc.

The United States is preparing f comprehensive trade negotiations with the European community. Nixon wants freer access for American goods, especially agricultural products, to th growing market in Europe.

The President announced Kennedy's appointment while standing beside West German Chancellor Willy Brandt on the lawn of Nixon's villa by Biscayne Bay.

Nixon said the selection of Kennedy "indicates, as I have told the chancellor, the commitment that the United States has to NATO."

"Cooperation on monetary and trade policy, one of the most important conditions and guarantees for close American-European relations, has been successfully adapted to new conditions and now holds out favorable prospects for further development," the communique said.

A formal White House statement said the Kennedy appointment emphasizes "the priority which the administration attaches to materially strengthening U.S.-European economic, political and military relations."

Mideast War Possible, Israel's Dayan Concedes

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Israeli Defense Minister Moshe Dayan said Wednesday the possibility of another Mideast war was very real and he would be convinced Egypt wanted peace only when it took a positive step toward settling the conflict.

Dayan, speaking on Israel television, said Egypt would not announce its true plans.

"We shall only be able to tell that they (Egyptians) will not open fire when we see an active expression of a move towards the alternative—a continuation of the struggle by political means," Dayan said.

Egyptian President Anwar Sadat has said more than once that war is the only way Arabs can regain land lost during the Six Day war with Israel in 1967. However, he said recently he would try to seek a peaceful position.

"I assume that Egypt, in its public announcements, wishes to retain both possibilites. Even if they take a final decision on one—that is to say, open fire—they will keep up their smokescreen of talking. And, conversely, if they have decided not to shoot, they will not announce this," Dayan said.

The Jerusalem Post said today Sadat threatened to resign several times this week because of criticism of his Middle East policies but decided not to quit after receiving a vote of confidence at a joint session of the Arab Socialist Union (ASU), Egypt's only legal political party, and the People's Council (parliament).

The newspaper said it got its information from "reliable Western sources in Israel."

The newspaper said Sadat was unhappy because of dissent among political and military leaders over his policies and the Council-ASU meeting was postponed twice because of Sadat's threats.

In spite of the vote of confidence, the newspaper said, Sadat cancelled a national radio broadcast scheduled for Tuesday night.

In Cairo, the newspaper Al Akhbar said Arab nations should take decisive action against United States commercial interests in the Middle East because the United States is the only major power extending unlimited friendship to Israel.

The semi-official newspaper Al Ahram also said Sadat was meeting with Palestinian guerrilla leader Yasser Arafat.

Major Jewish Daily Folds

NEW YORK (UPI)—The Day Jewish Morning Journal, one of the largest Yiddish language daily newspapers in the United States, ceased publication with Tuesday's final editions.

The paper, with a daily circulation of 38,000, ended its 57-year existence because of an apparent lack of funds. There was no announcement of the newspaper's closing in Tuesday's editions.

Cholera Hits Bangladesh Prisoners

NARAYANGANJ, East Pakistan (UPI)—Cholera claimed the lives today of 12 more of the 30,000 Biharis held as prisoners without food or medical supplies in the world's biggest jute mill in this town 14 miles from Dacca.

The Biharis are non-Bengali Moslems, most of whom came to East Pakistan from the west wing of the country. They are hated by the Bengali natives because they cooperated with the West Pakistan army. The Biharis say the Bengalis have killed 400 to 500 of them since Pakistan surrendered Dec. 16.

The Bangladesh Government has denied them both food and medicine but an Indian army spokesman said arrangements were being made to bring in medical supplies because of the outbreak of cholera in the jute mill.

Dr. Nazir Ahmed, medical officer at the fortress-like Adamji jute mill, said "there area so many cases of cholera and starvation I can't count them all." Indian officials also have reported an increasing number of deaths from malnutrition.

The Biharis are afraid to leave the jute mill for fear they will be killed by the Bengali guerrillas who call themselves the Mukti Bahini freedom fighters. The Indians have placed a contingent of troops at the mill to protect those inside.

Maj. R. Kanwar, the Indian troop commander, said he was arranging for medical supplies but that food would remain the biggest problem even if medical aid arrived. He said International Red Cross relief plans have been blocked by the Bangladesh Government. Nazir said the Indian army troops had stopped the killings by the Mukti Bahini but that local police were looting houses in the town while searching for socalled collaborators.

18 Antiwar Vets Take Over Viet Consulate, Then Give Up

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Eighteen veterans put their hands over their heads Wednesday and ended a nearly three hour occupation of the South Vietnamese Consulate with each man giving his name, former rank and serial number as they were marched to a police van.

The demonstrators, members of Vietnam Veterans Against the War (VVAW), were arrested for trespassing by police Capt. Joseph Flynn who told the group there "will be no amnesty."

The ex-GIs walked into the consulate early Wednesday and ordered four Vietnamese out before barricading the windows and door with boxes. They said their action was to protest "the continuing 11-year genocide against the peoples of Southeast Asia."

Flynn arrived at the third-floor suite in the downtown Flood Building on orders from Mayor Joseph Alioto at 11:40 a.m. and shouted through the locked door: "You've got all the publicity you're going to get. You're subject to arrest for trespassing. What is your decision?"

After a 15-minute conference the demonstrators replied: "We have not damaged anything here. We will not leave. We will not remove the barricades."

Flynn told the group there would be no amnesty and a protestor answered, "You understand, we're not going to resist. If you don't want to break anything, just sort of push the door open."

Police then unlocked the door and took the 18 demonstrators downstairs in a freight elevator to a waiting police van.

Before police removed the group, one veteran, Tom Kenney of Berkeley, told newsmen "we've liberated the consulate." A spokesman at VVAW's San Francisco offices said the action also was taken "to protest President Nixon's personal decision to unleash an unprecedented bombing attack on the innocent people of North Vietnam."

MARDI GRAS SPIRIT

Claire Tilden of San Rafael puts finishing touches on a giant mask which will decorate the New Year's Eve ball of the Folk Dance Council of Marin County tomorrow. The seven-foot high mask was designed by Fred Sweger of Tiburon and built by members of the Kopachka folk dance group of Mill Valley. The mask was constructed at the San Rafael Recreation Center in the courthouse annex and will be transported to the Masonic Building in San Rafael for the ball, which this year has a mardi gras theme. More than 200 members of folk dance groups in Marin are expected to attend.

Tax Relief Plan Held Crucial

By ERIK M. INGRAM

The proposed countywide general plan and some form of tax relief to property owners are two of the most critical issues facing the county in 1972, three of Marin County's five supervisors said today.

Their comments, ranging over a wide variety of subjects expected to be considered next year, came on the weekly KTIM "Marin Sounding Board" radio program.

Other major issues which the three supervisors — John F. McInnis, Michael Wornum and Louis H. Baar — said will probably be considered deal with governmental organization in the county.

Among those, Wornum told the radio audience, is reorganization of the Marin County Redevelopment Agency into a government body with directors elected by Marin City residents.

Another, supervisors agreed, is forming some kind of governing or advisory board for Marin's annual fair.

The radio program, moderated by Kitty Oppenheimer, will be rebroadcast at 10:05 a.m. Sunday.

Passage of a countywide general plan by late 1972 or early 1973 is "imperative," McInnis said. "There has to be a yardstick to measure ... development."

McInnis was supported by both Baar and Wornum on the urgent need for such a plan. However, the question of the plan's so-called "superagency" to coordinate development between the cities and county brought mixed reaction.

Baar said he would oppose any such agency since "there are too many agencies now."

McInnis called the proposal "foolish" and said there was no need for such an agency since the City-County Planning Council of Marin fills that need through its non-authoritative attempts at coordinating planning on a countywide level.

Wornum, while not endorsing the proposed superagency empowered to veto development plans in conflict with the general plan, said the need for greater coordination exists and should be explored.

The matter of county taxes relates directly to the development of the county, they agreed.

Wornu4 said he didn't know how one dealt with the increasing demand for county services, which hike the tax rate, and the growing desire of many Marinites for more park and open space, which removes property from the tax rolls.

"I wish the public could become aware of the demands for county services ..." McInnis added.

The supervisors' comments on creating another fair board are among the few made publicly since the board voted to scrap Fair-Marin two years ago.

Fair-Marin was a collection of businessmen and residents who had promised to operate the new Marin Veterans Memorial building and county fair through mostly private funds.

The proposal folded after a long and involved controversy over operation and administration of the quasi-public body.

Only Wornum, who voted against scrapping Fair-Marin two years ago, voiced strong support today for another governing fair board.

McInnis said he would oppose such a board, but said he would consider establishing an advisory committee to the board of supervisors.

Shotgun Robbery In Marin City

A 20-year-old Marin City youth was booked into Marin County Jail yesterday on suspicion of armed robbery after he and a companion allegedly broke into the Marin City home of the companion's former girlfriend, sheriff's deputies reported.

Deputies said Larry James Stover, 20, of 89 Cole Drive, was arrested at his home about 8:30 a.m. after a complaint from Vorine Adams, 15 Cole Drive.

Miss Adams said Stover and her ex-boyfriend had come to her home about 8 a.m., according to deputies, who said a window of the home was broken.

Officers said the second man threatened her with a shotgun, then removed several items of clothing, including three of her coats, from the residence.

The second robber is still being sought.

No bail had yet been set for Stover, who was to appear today in Marin Municipal Court.

Clinic Burglary

A burglar took an X-ray cassette and film worth $205 from a cabinet at the Ross Valley Medical Center between 5:45 p.m. Tuesday and 8:20 a.m. yesterday, according to Larkspur police.

Honduras Incident: No Word

I-J Special Report

WASHINGTON, D.C. — A State Department spokesman said today that American officials have been unable to confirm a report that a missing Honduras boat with a Marin man supposedly aboard has been towed to Havana, Cuba.

Scott Harris, 25, of Tiburon, was reported by friends to have been aboard the Night Hawk when it disappeared Dec. 19 on a run between Roatan Island and Belize City, British Honduras.

According to Gale Wallace, State Department spokesman, the only word of the missing vessel came from a ham radio operator on Roatan who picked up a message from a Cuban fishing boat. This message supposedly said the Cuban crew had found the Night Hawk drifting with inoperable engines and had towed it to Havana.

Honduras and U.S. officials have asked the Swiss Embassy in Havana to investigate the whereabouts of the Night Hawk and the 10 persons aboard, but no word has been received, Wallace said.

According to his father, Perry Harris of San Francisco, young Harris had gone to Honduras with three other persons to bring a yacht back to this country. The friends told the father that Harris had taken the Night Hawk to bring supplies back to the yacht.

3 Judges Named To Appellate Court

Three Marin County Superior Court judges have been named by California Supreme Court Chief Justice Donald R. Wright to serve on the appellate department of their county court.

Deputies Break Up A Family Operation

A San Francisco mother of five was arrested near a Strawberry home yesterday by Marin City sheriff's deputies who said they may have broken up a family-style burglary ring.

Sylvia Ann St. Andre, 30, was booked into Marin County Jail on suspicion of burglary. Her husband, Theodore Edward St. Andre, is still being sought, officers said.

Deputies reported they received a tip about 4 p.m. of a burglary in progress at the residence of Vernon B. Winiker at 80 Bayvista Drive and went to the home.

As they neared the residence, officers said they saw two girls, ages 12 and 13, carrying a color television set down the back stairs of the home. A back window had been broken by rocks, according to deputies.

Mrs. St. Andre was apprehended in a car parked in the driveway of the home, according to officers, who said a search of the vehicle revealed items taken in another Strawberry burglary yesterday.

A witness told officers he had seen a man, believed to be St. Andre, leave the scene on foot just as police arrived.

Mrs. St. Andre was freed on $2,000 bail to appear in Marin Municipal Court Jan. 3. The two girls were released in the custody of their grandparents who are also caring for the St. Andre's other three children, ages 7 and upward.

Sausalito Plaza Plan May Go To Ballot

Proponents of a move to have Sausalito voters decide the fate of a controversial park plaza plan have acquired sufficient signatures for a ballot measure, they announced yesterday.

They will seek to have voters in April force the city council to put the plan before the voters, unless the council will agree to present it to voters before then.

Representatives of three Sausalito organizations said yesterday they have collected nearly 550 signatures on a petition asking the council to let residents decide on the William E. Spangle plan for downtown Sausalito. Approximately 400 signatures, representing 10 per cent of the city's 4,000 voters, are needed to put the question on the ballot.

Alan Conner, president of the Sausalito Citizens Council, said his group, in conjunction with the Sausalito Businessmen's Association and the Chamber of Commerce, first plan to submit an ordinance to the council next month. The ordinance the group seeks to have passed states the council will do nothing about the plan without first referring it to the electorate, along with statements of the cost of the project and possible loss of revenue which could result.

If the council refuses to pass that ordinance, Robert D. Bauerle, president of the businessmen's association, said it will be placed on the ballot to give voters a chance to decide if they want an opportunity to vote on the plan.

The outcome of the vote would not be binding on the council, according to Conner, but he said the three groups hope to convince the city government that an overwhelming number of residents feel they should be allowed to decide if they want the park plaza plan for their city.

The Spangle plan, adopted by the council in May, would turn the heart of Sausalito's downtown into a series of pedestrian malls, walkways and open-space park. The proposal has drawn fire from the three groups, because it calls for conversion of the city's 180-space parking lot No. 1 into an open space park.

In September the council decided not to submit the park plaza plan to voters after city Atty. Leland H. Jordan determined it would be illegal for the city council to use taxpayer money for a ballot measure asking resident opinion on the plan.

Delay Given In Drug Sale Case

Eugene L. Syrup, 20, of Novato, accused of selling narcotics and dangerous drugs, is scheduled to appear in Marin Municipal Court on Jan. 4 to plead.

He appeared before Judge Robert A. Smallman on Tuesday and asked for a continuation to get an attorney.

Death Row Inmate Gets Life Term

A San Quentin inmate who spent four years on Death Row has had his sentence changed to life imprisonment.

Joseph R. O'Brien, prison information officer, said William Archie Fain, 26, was removed from Death Row last week after a Sacramento County Superior Court jury returned a life verdict in a retrial of the penalty phase of Fain's 1967 murder conviction.

Fain had been sentenced to death for the murder of a Modesto teen-age boy and the rape of two teen-age girls, but the state supreme court threw out the sentence in 1969 on grounds jurors who opposed the death penalty were improperly excused at his trial.

The retrial was held in Sacramento after the supreme court granted a change of venue.

Fain has been transferred to the Department of Correction's facility at Vacaville, O'Brien said, where he will be processed as though he were a new man entering the prison system.

Youth Found Hiding In Car

A teen-age Petaluma youth was arrested yesterday on suspicion of car theft after police said he was found hiding in a stolen car.

Polce withheld the name of the juvenile on orders of the Sonoma County distirct attorney's office. He was booked into Sonoma County juvenile hall.

Patty Ann Barnes, of Santa Rosa had told police at 11:15 p.m. yesterday that her 1960 Chevrolet had been stolen from the parking lot adjacent to the Petaluma River. Officers said the car was recovered at 1 a.m. on North McDowell Boulevard with the youth found hiding on the floor in the rear.

Prostitution Pleas Innocent

Four women accused of soliciting for prostitution and two men charged with keeping a house of ill fame at the Executive Sauna in San Rafael pleaded innocent yesterday in Marin Municipal Court.

Two men charged with keeping a house of ill fame are Richard Leonard O'Leary, 31, of Larkspur, and Max Joseph Oncina, 49, of San Rafael.

Speed Record

MOSCOW (UPI)—The Soviet TU144 supersonic airliner attained a record speed of 1,564 miles per hour in a recent test flight, the Tass news agency said today.

Innocent Pleas In Drug Case

Judge Alexander J. McMahon set a preliminary hearing for Jan. 6 at 9:30 a.m. for Dawn C. Fowler, 20, of Petaluma; Larry J. Patton, 20, of Novato; Tommy J. Logan, 22, and Ricky B. Joseph, 19, both of Petaluma. All were charged with battery on a peace officer, possession of marijuana and dangerous drugs.

McMahon ordered Miss Fowler, Logan and Joseph freed on their own recognizance, but Patton was held in lieu of $1,000 bail. They were arrested at 2 a.m. Sunday after neighbors complained of a loud party at 163 Webster Street. Four othrs were arrested on misdemeanor charge and seven others reportedly escaped arrest during the raid.

Innocent Plea To Car Theft

Thomas H. Thompson, 25, of San Rafael, who was re-arrested Tuesday on car theft charges, pleaded innocent yesterday in Marin Municipal Court.

Judge Robert A. Smallman set a preliminary hearing for next Tuesday.

Thompson was arrested by San Rafael police on Dec. 8 and charged with stealing a car owned by an Oakland resident. A preliminary hearing had been set for last Tuesday, but the case was dropped because the prosecution witnesses were not ready.

Burglars Fail To Open Safe

Burglars attempted to pry open every door to Rubini's Restaurant in Fairfax before giving up on the doors and smashing a window to enter it late Tuesday or early yesterday, Fairfax police reported today.

The culprits had no more success with a safe inside than they did with the doors, police said, reporting that a combination dial on the safe had been smashed off but that the safe still had not been opened.

Guilt Admitted In Car Theft

Richard Paul Derham, 23, of Mill Valley, pleaded guilty Tuesday in Marin Municipal Court to a misdemeanor car theft charge. Judge Peter Allen Smith set Jan. 4 for sentencing.

Derham was arrested on Dec. 6 and accused of stealing a car on Oct. 29 from a Mill Valley auto shop. The felony car theft charge was dropped yesterday on the recommendation of the district attorney when Derham admitted the mesdemeanor.

BUSES

getting off in Marin. But southbound passengers boarding in Marin will pay fares as they board.

To further speed loading and prevent robberies, drivers will carry no change, so exact fares will be needed. Either a cash fare or a "convenience book" ticket can be used.

Books of 20 tickets, with a discount of 25 cents for each trip, can be bought at the following: Greyhound depots in San Rafael and Petaluma; Tower Drugs at Sansome and Sacramento streets, Shell Building Drugs at Battery and Bush streets and the East Bay Bus Terminal, all in San Francisco, and by mail to the district, P.O. Box 9000, Presidio Station, San Francisco 94129.

Arrangements for selling the books still were pending at the bus depots in Mill Valley and San Anselmo as well as at other San Francisco locations.

The books cost $10 for commuters from south of the Corte Madera ridge, $15 in the rest of Marin, $20 south of Santa Rosa, and $25 from Santa Rosa. Tickets also can be used to cross the bridge and on the Sausalito ferry.

Bridge commute tickets, in turn, can be used on the buses in lieu of cash, or used with cash — allowing a 25-cent discount — to make up the difference for fares over 50 cents.

Broken down by fare zones, one-way convenience ticket fares will be 50 cents from Southern Marin, 75 cents from the rest of Marin, $1 from Sonoma points south of Santa Rosa, and $1.25 from Santa Rosa. Cash fares are 25 cents higher in each zone.

The San Rafael and Novato Greyhound terminals will remain open to serve the company's long-haul system. Bridge district officials figure that terminals should be far less necessary under the new system because buses now will go into residential areas, unlike Greyhound's trunk system which itself made terminals necessary.

Plan for shelters at least at heavily used stops along the routes still are indefinite. The number of stops in Marin, about 450 under the district's initial system, probably will exceed 600 by the end of this coming year, according to district officials.

Witness Gone; Case Dropped

Car theft and grand theft charges against Thomas H. Thompson, 25, of San Rafael were dismissed Tuesday because the prosecution was not ready to proceed with a preliminary hearing.

Judge Robert A. Smallman of Marin Municipal Court dismissed the case when Deputy Dist. Atty. Kathryn Mitchell said her witnesses were not present.

Thompson was arrested on Dec. 9 when police went to his home at the request of the state parole agent and found Thompson in a car which was reported stolen in Oakland.

Prisoner Dies At San Quentin

A 47-year-old San Quentin inmate died of heart failure today in the prison hospital, a prison spokesman said today.

Alvin D. Price of Sacramento, who was serving a life sentence for a second degree Sacramento robbery with five felony convictions, had been hospitalized for about a month.

According to Joseph R. O'Brien, prison information officer, Price was transferred to the prison last month from the Susanville work farm after becoming ill.

He is survived by a son in Sacramento.

Candidate Night Set For Jan. 6

A candidates night for the two candidates for one position on the Lagunitas School District board will be held at 8 p.m. on Jan. 6 at the Lagunitas School multipurpose room, sponsored by the San Geronimo Valley Association.

Candidates Donald Lethbridge and Richard C. Sloan will present their views and answer questions from the audience.

More Interviews

2 Youths Hurt On Highway 101

Two Marin youths were injured yesterday in a single-car crash northbound on Highway 101 north of Sir Francis Drake Boulevard, according to the California Highway Patrol.

Thomas C. Watts, 18, of 1208 Sir Francis Drake Boulevard, San Anselmo, the driver of the vehicle, was reported in satisfactory condition today at Marin General Hospital with multiple facial cuts. A passenger, Leroy Leonhardt, 20, of 3550 Redwood Highway, San Rafael, was reported in satisfactory condition at Kaiser Foundation Hospital in San Francisco with a cut head and bruised back.

Officers said Watts slammed into a highway guard rail when he lost control of his auto after swerving around another car.

Alioto's Uncle In Car Wreck

Joseph F. Alioto, 68, uncle of the San Francisco mayor, was reported in fair condition today at Hillcrest Hospital in Petaluma with head and shoulder injuries suffered in an auto accident Wednesday in Cotati.

The California Highway Patrol said the 7:40 p.m. accident on Highway 101 at Railroad Avenue occurred when the car driven by Alioto a San Francisican, struck the center divider strip, crossed the southbound lane, struck a fence and overturned.

WAR

namese invasion of Cambodia in May of 1970.

The Pentagon said 46 sorties were flown the first day of the operation last Sunday, then about 240 daily since including today.

The five days of raids also was more than twice the length of the 60 hours of raids in the 1970 aerial campaign.

As the end of the bombing campaign was announced, the command said one American soldier was killed on Vietnamese battlefields last week for the lowest death toll since the final week of February, 1965, when there were no American battle deaths.

The low casualty toll of one killed and 29 wounded last week was attributed to the low level of Viet Cong activity during its three-day Christmas cease-fire, military sources said.

The U.S. Military Assistance Command, Vietnam (MACV) said in part:

"Limited duration protective reaction air strikes against military targets in North Vietnam south of the 20th Parallel have been conducted and completed by U.S. Air Force and U.S. Navy aircraft during the past five days.

"These strikes were terminated at 3:56 p.m. (3:56 a.m. EST) today. The major portion of the strikes were north of the Demilitarized Zone (DMZ) and south of the 18th Parallel.

"These limited duration air strikes were conducted for the purpose of the protecting the safety and security of diminishing U.S. forces during our withdrawal from South Vietnam.

"These air strikes were directed against surface-to-air missiles (SAMs), antiaircraft artillery sites, air defense radar sites, the enemy's logistic and petroleum-oil-lubricants (LOL) buildup north of the DMZ and particularly opposite major passes into Laos. Also included in the targets were certain airfields south of the 20th Parallel from which there has been increasing MIG activity in recent weeks."

The final day's raids saw more Communist antiaircraft and missile fire and more Soviet-built MIG fighters rising to challenge the U.S. planes but no damage was reported to them.

In the ground war, the South Vietnamese military command called off a five-week-old operation against Viet Cong sanctuaries in eastern Cambodia.

Military sources said the 35,000 troops who took part were needed to try to thwart an expected offensive by Communist guerrillas infiltrating further north from Cambodia into South Vietnam's Central Highlands.

The North Vietnamese government also ordered the nalion's 17 million people "on constant alert" because of the American air raids, the longest in duration since former President Lyndon B. Johnson halted bombing north of the Demilitarized Zone (DMZ) Nov. 1, 1968.

The directive was issued by the general command of the North Vietnamese People's Armed Forces and it further ordered the army and militia to help rebuild air raid shelters and along witp civilians "to be on constant alert and ready for combat."

The order was less far-reaching than those of 1965 and 1966 when children and other noncombatants were dispersed to the countryside to cut down o the possibility of civilian casualties when the United States was heavily bombing much of North Vietnam.

Plea Change In Murders Is Refused

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — Harry B. Conwell was arraigned yesterday in Superior Court here on a charge of murdering the mother of a Marin woman after he attempted to change his guilty plea to two other murders.

The 43-year-old ex-convict was indicted Tuesday and arraigned yesterday on a charge of knificg Elinor Cushman, 75, during a robbery Aug. 6. Mrs. Cushman, mother of Jean Wiedenmeyer of San Rafael, died about a month ago.

A motion by Conwell's attorney to withdraw guilty pleas to charges of murdering George Cushman, 89, of Aug. 6 and Ernest Paramino, 76, a week later was denied by Judge Walter Calcagno. Conwell pleaded guilty to those murders last week.

Conwell was arrested after allegedly attacking Paramino with a knife at the old man's apartment. He was subsequently charged with the earlier knife attack on the Cushmans.

He is scheduled to be sentenced for the two murders and to plead to tme third Jan. 7.

ETHEL GILOGLY
Long-time local nurse

OBITUARIES

Ethel Gilogly, 83, Dies

Ethel Gilogly, a nurse at the old San Rafael Cottage and San Rafael General hospitals for 39 years, died yesterday at a local hospital after a long illness. She was 83.

Miss Gilogly was a lifelong resident of San Rafael. She lived at 1014 Grand Avenue.

After graduating from San Rafael High School, she attended Hahnemann Hospital School of Nursing in San Francisco.

After graduation in 1914, she was on private duty for four years, then went to work at the West End Hospital in San Rafael. From there she went to work for the County Emergency Hospital then to the Cottage Hospital in 1926. She retired in 1965 after 39 years at the hospital on Nye Street later named San Rafael General Hospital.

Surviving are two sisters, Eleanor Murray and Ida Heins, both of San Rafael.

A Mass of the Resurrection will be celebrated at 10 a.m. tomorrow followed by burial at Mount Olivet Cemetery in San Rafael. A Rosary will be recited at 8 p.m. today at the Keaton Chapel in San Rafael.

mission of juvenile court before releasing any juvenile information to any third party.

Wilson said the ban will not apply when the following persons or agencies ask for such information:

The minor himself, the minor's attorney, the district attorney, county probation department; juvenile court personnel; parents or guardians of the minor; the school attended by the minor; any law enforcement agency of the state for its use in investigation of the crime; Department of Public Social Services of Marin; hospitals, schools, camps and other placement agencies which reqire information for placement or treatment; and the California Youth Authority.

These persons and agencies who get the information must be notified that the information is confidentcal and should not be released, said the judge.

Jail Term In Store Holdup

Lee Alan Bramson, 22, of Sleepy Hollow, must serve one year in Marin County Jail and remain on supervised probation for five years for robbing a Fairfax liquor store.

Judge E. Warren McGuire of Marin Superior Court sentenced Bramson on Dec. 22.

On July 25, Bramson robbed Celoni's Liquor Store at gunpoint, taking $249 in cash. A probation officer's report said Bramson had responsible jobs until he became addicted to heroin.

The judge ordered Bramson to submit to a narcotics test whenever directed to do so by his probation officer.

JOHN WISHOVICH

John Wishovich, a 10-year resident of San Rafael, died yesterday after collapsing while walking near his home at 6 Nunan Lane.

Wishovich, 85, was a native of Vienna, Austria, and came to the United States at age 14.

He lived most of his life in San Francisco and served three separate tours of duty with the U.S. Army, including service during World War II.

He also had worked with the steel department of the Simmons Company in San Francisco, from which he retired 12 years ago.

He was a member of the Holy Name Society at St. Raphael's Church in San Rafael.

In addition to his wife, Elizabeth, of the family home, Wishovich is survived by two sons, Edward of San Rafael, and John A. of San Diego, and a daughter, Rosemarie Hurst, of Saigon, South Vietnam.

Funeral arrangements were pending at Keaton's Mortuary in San Rafael.

MRS. SALISBURY

Funeral for Verla W. Salisbury of San Rafael will be at 12:30 p.m. tomorrow at Chapel of the Hills in San Anselmo.

Mrs. Salisbury died Tuesday in a local convalescent hospital following a long illness. She was 77.

She was born in Idaho and lived in Salt Lake City and Los Angeles before recently moving to Marin.

Surviving are her husband, William H. Salisbury; a daughter, V. Lucille Hodgen of San Rafael; a son, Glen H. Walker of Malibu; a brother, R. Willis Walker of Rexburg, Idaho; a sister, Mary C. Berkhausen of Salt Lake City, and five grandchildren.

Burial will be in Mount Tamalpais Cemetery in San Rafael.

Hospitals Approve Work Pact

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Eight San Francisco hospitals have approved a new 30-month contract with Hospital & Institutional Workers Local 250.

Details of the pact were worked out by Sam Kagel, an arbitrator and mediator, in consultation with management and union negotiators, it was announced Wednesday.

The agreement covers 3,000 employes—excluding nurses—at Children's, Golden Gate Community, Hahnemann, St. Joseph's, St. Luke's, St. Mary's, Mary's Help and Mount Zion hospitals.

(No Marin hospital is affected by the pact. Kaiser Foundation Hospital in San Rafael has employees in the union, but negotiates separately.)

Local 250 secretary Timothy Twomey said workers would get pay hikes of 8.2 per cent each 10 months of the contract.

However, four other hospitals here said seven in Alameda County refused to go along with the agreement. A management official said his group objected to the contract because it could not get assurance from the U. S. Price Commission that it could meet the higher wages.

Representatives of the 11 hospitals will meet again with Local 250 in an effort to resolve the situation.

Causes Of 2 Fires Being Investigated

Arson is being investigated as a possible cause of a downtown San Rafael store fire, and an electrical heater is being checked as the possible cause of a $120,000 apartment house fire before Christmas, San Rafael Fire Marshal Ken Mazza said today.

Mazza said San Rafael police have been called into the investigation of the Dec. 9 blaze at Bell's Interiors, Inc., 1212 Fourth Street. Search for routine causes such as electrical short circuits or cigarettes has proved negative, but police are checking out reports of a suspicious-appearing person in the store before the fire, Mazza said.

Damage to the building was estimated at $3,000, but insurance adjustors have not yet tallied damage to the store's merchandise, Mazza reported.

The Dec. 21 fire that routed 75 occupants of the Park Towers apartments, 108 Professional Center Parkway, probably was caused by a faulty baseboard heater, Mazza said. He added that an electrical engineer is checking over the heater.

Damage in the apartment blaze was estimated at $80,000 to the four-story building and $40,000 to the contents of the apartments, Mazza added.

Growth Seen In New Year

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Pacific Gas & Electric Co. predicted today economic growth in northern and central California next year will be "soundly based and at a moderately faster pace than in the past year."

PG&E said in its annual market outlook that population will continue to grow, although at a slower rate than previously, the capacity of minority members to buy is rising and demans for clean air and clean water will have "widespread effect" on communities, developers, industry and employes.

PG&E forecast a 1 per cent increase in employment in the region in 1972, a statewide increase in personal income to a new high total of $100 billion, and higher retail sales.

California Has A Profitable Third Quarter

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—Taxable sales in California hit a record $11.8 billion during the third quarter of this year, the state Board of Equalization has announced.

A report released by the board Wednesday said sales were up almost 5 per cent over the same period last year, netting state and local government $606.4 million in sales and use taxes.

The third quarter sales figure is also higher than the $11.6 billion second quarter and $10.9 billion first quarter this year.

The board predicts that the fourth quarter in 1971 will "far outstrip the slack 1970 fourth quarter."

The board announced that a breakdown of figures for individual counties will not be available until the middle or latter part of January.

'Jesus People' Picket, Decry San Rafael Planned Parenthood

By C.P. McCARTHY

About 20 "Jesus people" staged a short demonstration yesterday at the San Rafael office of the Planned Parenthood Association to protest what they regard as the association's encouragement of extra-marital sex.

Carrying signs with messages such as "Sex is best God's way," "Sex is only for marriage" and "Jesus loves planned parenthood, but not their philosopy," the demonstrators paraded in a circle outside the entrance to the association's office at 710 C Street for half an hour.

Most were from Marin County, with some from Sonoma County, according to one of the organizers of the demonstration, Hugo Coutandin, 16-year old San Rafael High School student.

Coutandin said the members of the unstructured religious movement were protesting planned parenthood's attitude, which he said was "go out and have sex, just don't get pregnant or VD."

He criticized the association's policy of giving birth control devices to young people, saying it encouraged premarital sexual relations, which he said violated God's will.

Charles B. Gompertz, president of the Planned Parenthood Association of Marin County and an Episcopal priest, said he thought the demonstration was "interesting."

But he said the demonstrators were trying to "resolve their anxiety with the present by looking to an idealized past.

"It was just such groups with narrow vision that crucified Jesus in the first place by failing to see that God is continually revealing himself in the present," he said.

However, Gompertz said, he took the demonstrator's charges seriously. "I'm not belittling them or their faith," he said, but added he had different beliefs.

He denied the charge planned parenthood encouraged premarital sex, saying that contraceptives are given by planned parenthood only to persons who have already been engaging in sexual relations.

"There is so much suffering in Marin County caused by unwanted children and venereal disease that as a Christian, as a priest and as a person, I can make no other response than to support planned parenthood in Marin," he said.

The Jesus people disagreed. "If this outfit (planned parenthood) had their way, they would have recommended an abortion to the Virgin Mary," said Moishe Rosen of Corte Madera.

Rev. Kent A. Philpott of San Rafael, an ordained Baptist minister who said he ministers to Jesus people, said the group was not against sex. "We're not puritans or anything like that," he said.

"God made sex for marriage," and the "go ahead and screw" attitude of planned parenthood "messes people up," he said.

The group chanted slogans, including "love, not lust," during their short protest and sang spirituals such as "Amazing Grace," and ad libbed chrouses to others like, "Once I was a fornicator, but Jesus set me free."

Year-End Salute To Volunteer Writers

The by-lines of some reporters become almost as familiar to newspaper readers as do the faces of the "personalities" who read the news from teleprompters to TV watchers.

Over the years, Independent-Journal readers have become accustomed to the by-lines of such longtime observers of the local scene as Jeff Greer, Mary Leydecker, Don Keown, Harry Craft, Wat Takeshita (longest of all) and others.

There are also by-lines that appear for awhile, then disappear. This does not always mean the writers have moved elsewhere; they may merely have changed jobs. For instance, the by-line of Donald G. Davis was often seen in our columns a decade ago, and that of Robert M. Strebeigh more recently. Both are still around, but Davis became news editor, and Strebeigh, a non-writing city editor. It takes many more people than those whose names appear on stories to produce a newspaper.

THE I-J HAS, HOWEVER, a host of volunteer commentators who are not on the payroll, and some of their names are almost as familiar to readers as that of any reporter. We refer to the writers to "What Our Readers Say."

This editorial page feature provides a "safety valve" for members of the public with a grievance to air, a compliment to pay, or just some philosophy they would like to pass along.

Many take advantage of it. This year (through Tuesday, with three issues remaining to appear) we have printed 1,283 letters in "What Our Readers Say" — plus more than 200 in our "Rap Session" letter contest last April and May. Last year we ran 1,348; the year before that 1,360.

We have a handful of "regulars" some of whom seem to get the idea they really are on the staff as regular contributors and have to be "rationed" in the number of their letters we print — in order to give others a chance at the space. Except for this "rationing," the column is wide open, the only restrictions being against unsigned letters and those which are personally vindictive or otherwise possibly libelous, obscene, or in execrably bad taste.

SOMETIMES THE LETTERS about a single subject come in floods, as when it seemed that almost everyone in Lucas Valley addressed the editor to deplore the proposal for a Renaissance Center among that valley's meadows. Sometimes a single letter sparks a series of replies and a back-and-forth debate in "What Our Readers Say" that continues so long we have to call a halt.

Some appear trivial. Some are cantankerous. Some are gems of humor. And quite a few letters to the editor spark action toward needed reforms. So "What Our Readers Say" is more than a safety valve; it is an action forum too.

The close of the year 1971 seems an appropriate time to pay our regards to all these volunteer contributors who help make the I-J more readable. Keep the letters coming — but try, please, to hold each to 200 words. The other fellow has something to say, too.

BY RUS WALTON:

State Employees Want Pay Exempt From Control

SACRAMENTO — The California State Employees Association is getting ready to pour $2 million down a rat hole. It is going to spend that war chest on a campaign to get voter approval of a salary initiative which could cost the taxpayers hundreds of millions of dollars.

Somehow I don't think Mr. and Mrs. John Q. will go along with the scheme.

The CSEA wants to short-circuit the established budgetary process, do away with the governor's veto, and leave the salary rates for some 180,000 state employes in the hands of the State Personnel Board.

The only control on such annual salary increases would be in the hands of the legislature, and it would take a two-thirds majority to push that button.

THE WAY IT WORKS now, the State Personnel Board annually recommends salary adjustments to the governor. The governor can accept, modify, or reject those recommendations when he presents his budget to the legislature. He must weigh the recommendations against the state of the public treasury. How much can the employers — the taxpayers — afford?

The legislature can increase or decrease the governor's proposals. If he does not ask for any, it can put in its own, as was the case in the 1971-72 budget. The governor vetoed the salary increases the legislature inserted in the budget, and subsequently vetoed separate wage increase bills which the legislature had also passed.

Much the same process is used for every budget item. The CSEA wants to put itself above the rest of government. It rejects the idea that state employes should work within the taxpayers' means, or find employment elsewhere.

NO OTHER OCCUPATIONAL group is so depression-proof or recession-resistant. Depressions and recession come and go; government employment is forever.

Take the worst depression the nation has known — the years from 1930 to 1940. While millions were standing in breadlines, the governments' hiring halls were open.

In 1930, with 4.3 million unemployed, there were 610,000 federal employes. Five years later, in the dark of the depression, more than 10 million (20 per cent of the labor force) were out of work. But the number of federal employes had increased to 780,000.

And in 140, when eight million were still out of work (14 per cent of the labor force), federal employment had soared to 1,042,420 — almost double the 1930 total.

The trend was similar in state government. From 1930 to 1940 the number of state employes more than doubled. In recent years, state employment has continued to be depression-proof.

Even during the cut-squeeze-and-trim efforts of the Reagan administration, state employment has crept upward. What dips there were came through attrition, not lay-offs.

THERE ARE THOUSANDS of men and women, right now, who would grab a job with the state — at prevailing wages and prevailing job security. Ask any unemployed aerospace worker.

The CSEA wants depression-proof jobs — and the keys to the vault.

It won't work. Many state employees don't go along with the idea. And the public won't, either — especially now that the administration has found $98.5 million for employee pay raises next year.

Commute Bus Driver's Farewell 'Thank You'

It happened once before when the old railroad was replaced by the Greyhound buses, and now the big grey dog is going to be replaced by the buses of the Golden Gate Bridge Transportation District. When will it all end?

For us, the Greyhound drivers, it is ending Jan. 1. The majority of us have worked in Marin County for many years, own homes here and have raised our families in its (Marin's) marvelous surroundings. Some of us will exercise our option to work for the new district, but many others of us will choose to remain employees of Greyhound. It is from the latter contingent that I would like to say, "Thank you."

Thank you — the daily commuter; the many little old ladies and gentlemen; thank you hippies (not all of them hitchhike) and thank you school kids, et al. For without your faithfulness we may have never found Marin County in our search for work and residence.

For many years you have put up with us and in turn we have put up with you. It was a great experience and many friendships were made. We will miss it all, the friendship, the crummy old buses, the routes, that always rewarded driver and passenger alike, which came together to finally emerge from the Waldo Tunnel and opened all eyes to the greatest spectacle of all, the Golden Gate, San Francisco Bay, the most picturesque skyline in the world.

Yes, we will miss it, for some of us will be spread all over the 11 western states. And, should you someday find yourself on a bus trip by Greyhound and recognize the driver as one of your old commute drivers, say hello. He will be interested.

I know I do not have the right to speak for all the drivers but I am sure the majority would share my sentiments. We really do hate to see it end.

Way To Get Back Bridge Discount Book?

As one of the many users of the Golden Gate Bridge who must use a car in business, the discontinuance of regular user discount tickets has a tinge of unfairness about it.

The so-called "convenience" is more to the benefit of the ticket takers who will not have to handle money or make change.

s Perhaps, for those of us left who must run our own cars across the bridge, the use of coinage at the booths would point up the mutual benefit in the use of discount rate ticket books.

It might be worth it to the bridge district to give us a small dividend to avoid the annoyance of toll-takers being required to handle small change.

And more of us, using lots of very small change, might just effect a desirable return to discount books!

Working Mother Finds Discrimination

I am a responsible working mother, separated from my husband, with one child. The purpose of this letter is to point out what I believe to be a major problem in Marin County confronting women in my position; namely, the problem of housing.

I am weary of being hung-up on, having doors slammed in my face, and occasionally being listened to with polite disinterest by potential landlords.

The majority of ads in the paper specify "Adults Only" with a few reading "Family Only". The latter, I have found, does not regard a mother and her child as "family". Upon inquiring into the ads which make no specifications (which are few), I find that a large number of landlords consider a mother and child alone undesireable as tennants and refuse to rent to them.

This discrimination hits the single mother hardest as she is most likely working for less money than a man to begin with. Along with the usual expenses, she must also pay for day care and babysitting which doesn't leave her much in the end. Buying, or even renting a house is out of the question and she has no other alternative but to seek a home in the form of an apartment. It is at this point that she is met with such widespread discrimination against her children and herself as a single mother that the situation begins to appear insurmountable.

I think it's time we recognized the housing needs of the single mothers in Marin County and made some kind of provisions for them. The imposing of blanket rules such as "Adults Only" and "Family Only" weeds out many responsible people as potential tennants along with the undesireable ones; and it does nothing to insure for good tennants. Why not at least give everyone the same chance as separate individuals and stop slamming the door to an entire group of people?

Rabbi Confused By Yule Editorial

Your editorial of Dec. 23 left me with a feeling of confusion and concern. If the article had been entitled, "A Time to Remember Religious Ambiguity," perhaps it would have been more laconic.

No one with any sensitivity would argue that in recent years the religious nature of Christmas has been de-emphasized as a result of commerce in the marketplace. That the Christ has been taken out of Christmas is most assuredly a perplexing problem for the Christian community. But, that there have been protests vis-a-vis public display of nativity scenes and presentation by school children of nativity plays by many who feel that these traditions violate the principle of separation of church and state, should not be of concern to one who calls himself a Christian.

As your editorial pointf out, it was Madison — himself an observing Episcopalian — whose statements led to a delineation of church-state policy in the United States. Our forefathers had experienced the pain of exclusion and even rejection where no established policy separating church-state issues existed. Madison was absolutely correct when he said if government can establish Christianity to the exclusion of all other religions, it can later establish another sect to the exclusion of the rest.

The fact that the religious nature of Christmas has been de-emphasized is, of course, a problem that the Christian community must deal with within the church and the home. . .

. . . Why Christmas, or any other religious holiday for that matter, has to be found in the public schools or on public display in order to have religious tolerance is beyond my comprehension. . .

. . . Yes, Christmas is a time for those who believe in the divinity of Jesus to honor him and through him, God. But, what do you mean, "and under the principle of religious tolerance any attempt to interfere with its observances through the agencies of government is itself a violation of separation of church and state"? Does this imply that the separation of church and state, as established by the early founders of this country and substantiated by the courts, is somehow interfering with a Christian's right to observe Christmas? I think not, and I would be greatly disturbed to discover that the editor feels that such a separation must be rejected in order for a Christian to observe this sacred holiday. . .

DAVID DAVIS
Rabbi
Congregation Rodef Sholom

Santa Venetia.

(The point the editorial tried to make is that governmental interference with Christians' observance of Christmas — by banning public display of religious symbols, for instance — broaches the separation of church and state and represents religious intolerance. Outlawing public display of the of David would be in the same category. — Editor.)

MARQUIS CHILDS

David Packard Not Among Those Who Never Will Be Missed

WASHINGTON — "And who never would be missed, who never would be missed." — "The Mikado," Gilbert and Sullivan.

That refrain applies to innumerable officeholders who have come and gone. A public servant has just left after three arduous years who, on the contrary, will be very much missed indeed.

David Packard, as deputy secretary of defense, did more than anyone in recent history to bring order and coherence to the vast, sprawling empire covered by the word Pentagon. The fact that defense spending is down from nine per cent of gross national product in 1968 to seven per cent owes a lot to the drastic cutbacks in Vietnam and elsewhere, but not a little is owed to Packard's tireless pursuit of waste, efficiency and just plain bureaucratic foot-dragging.

The successful industrialist who takes a Washington job without prior experience in government is a familiar figure. In the Eisenhower administration they filled a variety of high offices and, for the most part, they found the experience frustrating and defeating. With notable exceptions they were eager to return as soon as possible to the little old shop, which might be a multimillion-dollar corporation, back home.

Packard bore a superficial resemblance to the type. He found the processes of government irksome, often maddening, and he would speak sometimes nostalgically of going back to his little shop in California which happened to be a $400 million enterprise. But with determination and great expertise he dug into the Pentagon tangle. While he was often brought up short, he contributed substantially to the reductions in force and money that have been part of the Nixon program to transfer responsibility to nations that have been American satellites.

IN A FINAL press conference, this massive, reticent, unflappable man spoke some of the things long on his mind. Contrary to the howlers and screamers who constantly beat the drums for more and evermore lethal weapons, he said out of his far-reaching knowledge that the United States today has "an acceptable balance in our strategic capability." Then he added:

"The Soviets are continuing to build up their offensive forces at a very rapid pace and unless we can achieve some satisfactory agreement, in our arms limitation talks, I think we may have a problem. I'm hopeful we can reach some satisfactory agreement here, and I believe that we have done enough work here in the government during the past three years to understand the problem well and I think that the President will have adequate and good guidance in deciding what should be done in the future on all strategic forces."

In response to a question about further economies, Packard replied that at least $1 billion could be saved by closing useless military bases. But this was difficult, if not impossible, because of political pressures from members of Congress whose districts would be hurt.

Standing at Packard's elbow was his chief, Sec. Melvin R. Laird. Laird interposed to say that in all fairness it should be added that defense cuts had already affected more than 2,700,000 jobs and people felt, many in Congress, that the Defense Department had moved too rapidly. That, said the secretary blandly, is a constraint to further action at this time.

Whatever his private convictions, no one can fault Packard for a lack of loyalty either to Laird or to the administration. He expressed his confidence in President Nixon and the importance of his re-election to a second term.

WHEN PACKARD was named to the Pentagon post a lot was heard about the military-industrial complex. His firm — Hewlett, Packard — has about 30 per cent of its business, chiefly electronics, in defense contracts. He signed an agreement putting his 3,550,000 shares in Hewlett, Packard in trust with the stipulation that any increase in value go for education and charity.

During his tenure the stock had split two for one and his current holding was 7,100,300 shares. This represented an accretion in value of $18,815,000, which Packard and his wife are currently giving to a variety of recipients. Having begun with an initial investment of $600, it is an old-fashioned success story, and government service is a postscript to that success.

WINDOW ON THE WORLD

Devaluation Of Dollar Puts The Pound In Trouble Again

By JOSEPH W. GRIGG.

LONDON (UPI)—President Nixon has hailed the Washington agreement to rebuild the free world's money system as "historic."

Britain's Chancellor of the Exchequer Anthony Barber called it "realistic."

Yet already there is talk in London that the British pound— ailing only a few years ago but now among the world's strongest currencies—may be in trouble again in a year or so.

UNDER THE WASHINGTON package deal, Britain upped the pound's value against the dollar by 8.6 per cent to a new $2.60 parity.

The question now being asked is whether Britain can hold that line or whether it might have to devalue again as it did in 1967.

The Guardian newspaper commented editorially, "Britain could find the task of defending the new dollar exchange rate of $2.60 and at the same time encouraging sustained growth at home a problem a year hence."

The weekly Economist said, "In our view $2.60 is too high a rate for sterling and would probably require another British devaluation within two years."

EVER SINCE THE AUG. 15 dollar crisis Britain, like most western trading nations, has sought to damp down upward revaluation of her currency.

But Barber has found himself in trouble pressing this argument.

Instead of its previous chronic international payments deficits, Britain is expected to show a surplus of more than one billion pounds ($2.6 billion) this year.

Gold and foreign exchange reserves stand at an all-time high of 2.322 billion pounds ($6 billion).

It has been hard for Barber to plead poverty.

YET INFLATION in Britain is running at a 10 per cent annual clip —highest in almost any Western country. Economists say this soon will price many British exports out of world markets.

The government is seeking to slash unemployment —now edging one million—by tax cuts and other boosts to the economy.

This could bring a boom at home but hit Britain's foreign payments balance by encouraging imports and forcing up the price of British exports.

Officials also agree that when Britain joins the European Common Market in 1973 the cost to its payments balance will be high.

All this, experts say, may well destroy the present surplus.

In such a case, the Financial Times of London said, the new $2.60 parity may have to be reconsidered.

Corte Maderans Get The Word On Cost Of Fire Protection

The September fire that sparked evaluation of the Corte Madera Fire Department didn't start a controversy. It rekindled an old one.

Back in 1966, residents of East Corte Madera fumed about spotty fire protection and demanded that the Paradise Drive substation be manned from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. daily.

The town council set up a fire protection committee that eventually rejected the notion of a public safety system in which police would have doubled as firemen. It instead went for hiring full-time firemen and set in motion the slow shift to full-time firefighters.

The public safety plan, which seemed to have been a pet money-saving project of former Town Mgr. Ronald L. Usher, popped up again in 1969. Again it was squelched under objections from volunteer firemen and Chief Frank L. Nelson.

RESIDENTS OF East Corte Madera, still wanting 24-hour-a-day protection, again took up the fight since the blaze which destroyed two homes and damaged a third on Constitution Drive on Sept. 16.

Once more the town council appointed a committee to study fire protection, but this time it threw in $4,000 for a fire consultant's report.

The report by the Watsonville fire chief and a structural engineer from that town confirmed what some residents have been telling the town council and town manager since 1966: The fire department is undermanned and poorly equipped.

A look at the budget shows why. Corte Madera is spending $85,274 this fiscal year to support its five-man fulltime firefighting force and 14 others who are volunteers. The police budget is near $270,000.

Neighboring Larkspur, which is about the same size, budgeted $217,151 for fire protection this year and $185,360 for police.

CLEARLY, CORTE MADERA, which has financed a professional police department, has been unwilling to spend the money for a first-class fire department.

To make up for this past penny pinching, the town needs about $500,000 in equipment — including two new engines and a better located fire house — and 13 more full-time men, according to the consultants, Bill S. Ingram and Chief Bryce W. Connick. Salaries would cost about $272,000 a year, they said.

Now that the townspeople have learned how much it will cost for the best possible fire department, they will be asked in a questionnaire prepared by a citizen subcommittee to decide how much they are willing to pay.

Big Firemen's Group Meets In San Rafael

Business meetings, speakers and a president's banquet will be included in the winter conference of the Northern California Firemen's Association, to be held Jan. 21-23 at the Holiday Inn, San Rafael.

The tentative program will open at noon Jan. 21 with a golf tournament and close at 9 a.m. Jan. 23 with a California State Firemen's Association deputies' meeting.

Directors of the Northern California association will meet at 7 p.m. Jan. 21.

Speakers will include Chet Born of the San Francisco Fire Department on "Public Relations through Fire Service Photography," and David Dietz, assistant city editor of the Independent-Journal on "News Media and the Fire Service." William Rogin of Education Research Inc. will conduct a session in leadership and management.

A general business meeting is set for 2 p.m. Jan. 22, followed by a talk by Dustin Leer of the Sausalito Fire Department on fighting fires near bodies of water.

The San Rafael Fire Department and the Marin County Association of Fire Departments are hosting the conference.

Police Capture Bank Robbers

SAARBRUECKEN, Germany (UPI)—Police caught up today with three wanted bank robbers, fatally shooting one and capturing the other two, in a gunfight near this city in southwest Germany, a police spokesman said.

The three men had been the subject of an extensive search since Monday when they robbed a Cologne bank of nearly $100,000 in marks and then took two police officers as hostages when they made their escape.

The spokesman said the shooting took place at the village of Baltersweiler, about 35 miles northeast of Saarbrueckeen.

ART BUCHWALD

The Free Generation Versus The Germ-Free Old Folks

WASHINGTON — You don't really feel the generation gap in this country until a son or daughter comes home from college for Christmas. Then it strikes you how out of it you really are.

This dialogue is probably taking place all over American this week:

"Nancy, you've been home from school for three days now. Why don't you clean up your room?"

"We don't have to clean up our rooms at college, Mother."

"That's very nice, Nancy, and I'm happy you're going to such a free-wheeling institution. But while you're in the house, your father and I would like you to clean up your room."

"What difference does it make? It's my room."

"I KNOW, DEAR, and it really doesn't mean that much to me. But your father has a great fear of the plague. He said this morning if it is going to start anywhere in this country it's going to start in your room."

"Mother, you people aren't interested in anything that's relevant. Do you realize how the major corporations are polluting our environment?"

"Your father and I are very worried about it. But right now we're more concerned with the pollution in your bedroom. You haven't made your bed since you came home."

"Of course you don't, and I'm sure the time you save goes toward your education. But we still have these old-fashioned ideas about making beds in the morning and we can't shake them. Since you're home for such a short time, why don't you do it to humor us?"

"FOR HEAVEN'S SAKE, Mother, I'm grown up now. Why do you have to treat me like a child?"

"We're not treating you like a child. But it's very hard for us to realize you're an adult when you throw all your clothes on the floor."

"I havent' thrown all my clothes on the floor. Those are just the clothes I wore yesterday."

"Forgive me. I exaggerated. Well, how about the dirty dishes and empty soft-drink cans on your desk? Are you collecting them for a science project?"

"Mother, you don't understand us. You people were brought up to have clean rooms. But our generation doesn't care about things like that. It's what you have in your head that counts."

"NO ONE RESPECTS education more than your father and I do, particularly at the prices they're charging. But we can't see how living in squalor can improve your mind."

"That's because of your priorities. You would rather have me make up my bed and pick up my clothes than become a free spirit who thinks for myself."

"We're not trying to stifle your free spirit. It's just that our Blue Cross has run out, and we have no protection in case anybody in the family catches typhoid."

"All right, I'll clean up my room if it means that much to you. But I want you to know you've ruined my vacation."

"It was a calculated risk I had to take. Oh, by the way, I know this is a terrible thing to ask of you, but would you mind helping me wash the dinner dishes?"

"Wash dishes? Nobody washes dishes at school."

"Your father and I were afraid of that."

Christians In Easy Victory On Tiny Island

GLENDALE, Calif. (UPI)—Candidates surnamed "Christian" swept to victory in the elections of Pitcairn Island, smallest of Britain's possessions, but they had an electorate most candidates can only dream of.

"Of the 61 registered voters on the island, 23 have the surname Christian," reported the island's radio officer, Tom Christian.

The Christians are descendants of Fletcher Christian, the royal Navy officer who led the mutiny on H.M.S. Bounty in 1787 against the rule of Capt. William Bligh. The mutineers sailed with their Polynesian women to Pitcairn Island in the South Pacific, more than 2,000 miles from any major land mass, and 90 of their descendants still live there.

Every islander over 18 must vote or pay a fine of one New Zealand dollar, and "few people can stand that kind of fine so we always have a full turnout," Christian reported by radio to the communications center of the Seventh Day Adventist Church.

Two Christians were named to the two vacant seats on the 12-man island council, and a third to the Internal Committee. The defeated candidates included two other Christians.

Trade Council President Elected

N. C. Green of Plasterers and Cement Masons 355 was elected president of the Marin County Building and Construction Trade Council at its meeting this month.

Other officers elected are: Bill Hampton, Teamsters 624, vice-president; George Goodfellow, Laborers 291, secretary-treasurer; Al Hansen, Operating Engineers 3, warden; trustees James Adrain, Carpenters 36, George Brown, Carpet-Linoleum 1235, and Charles Snyder, Operating Engineers, 3. All trustees except Brown were incumbents.

Don't let safety play second fiddle.

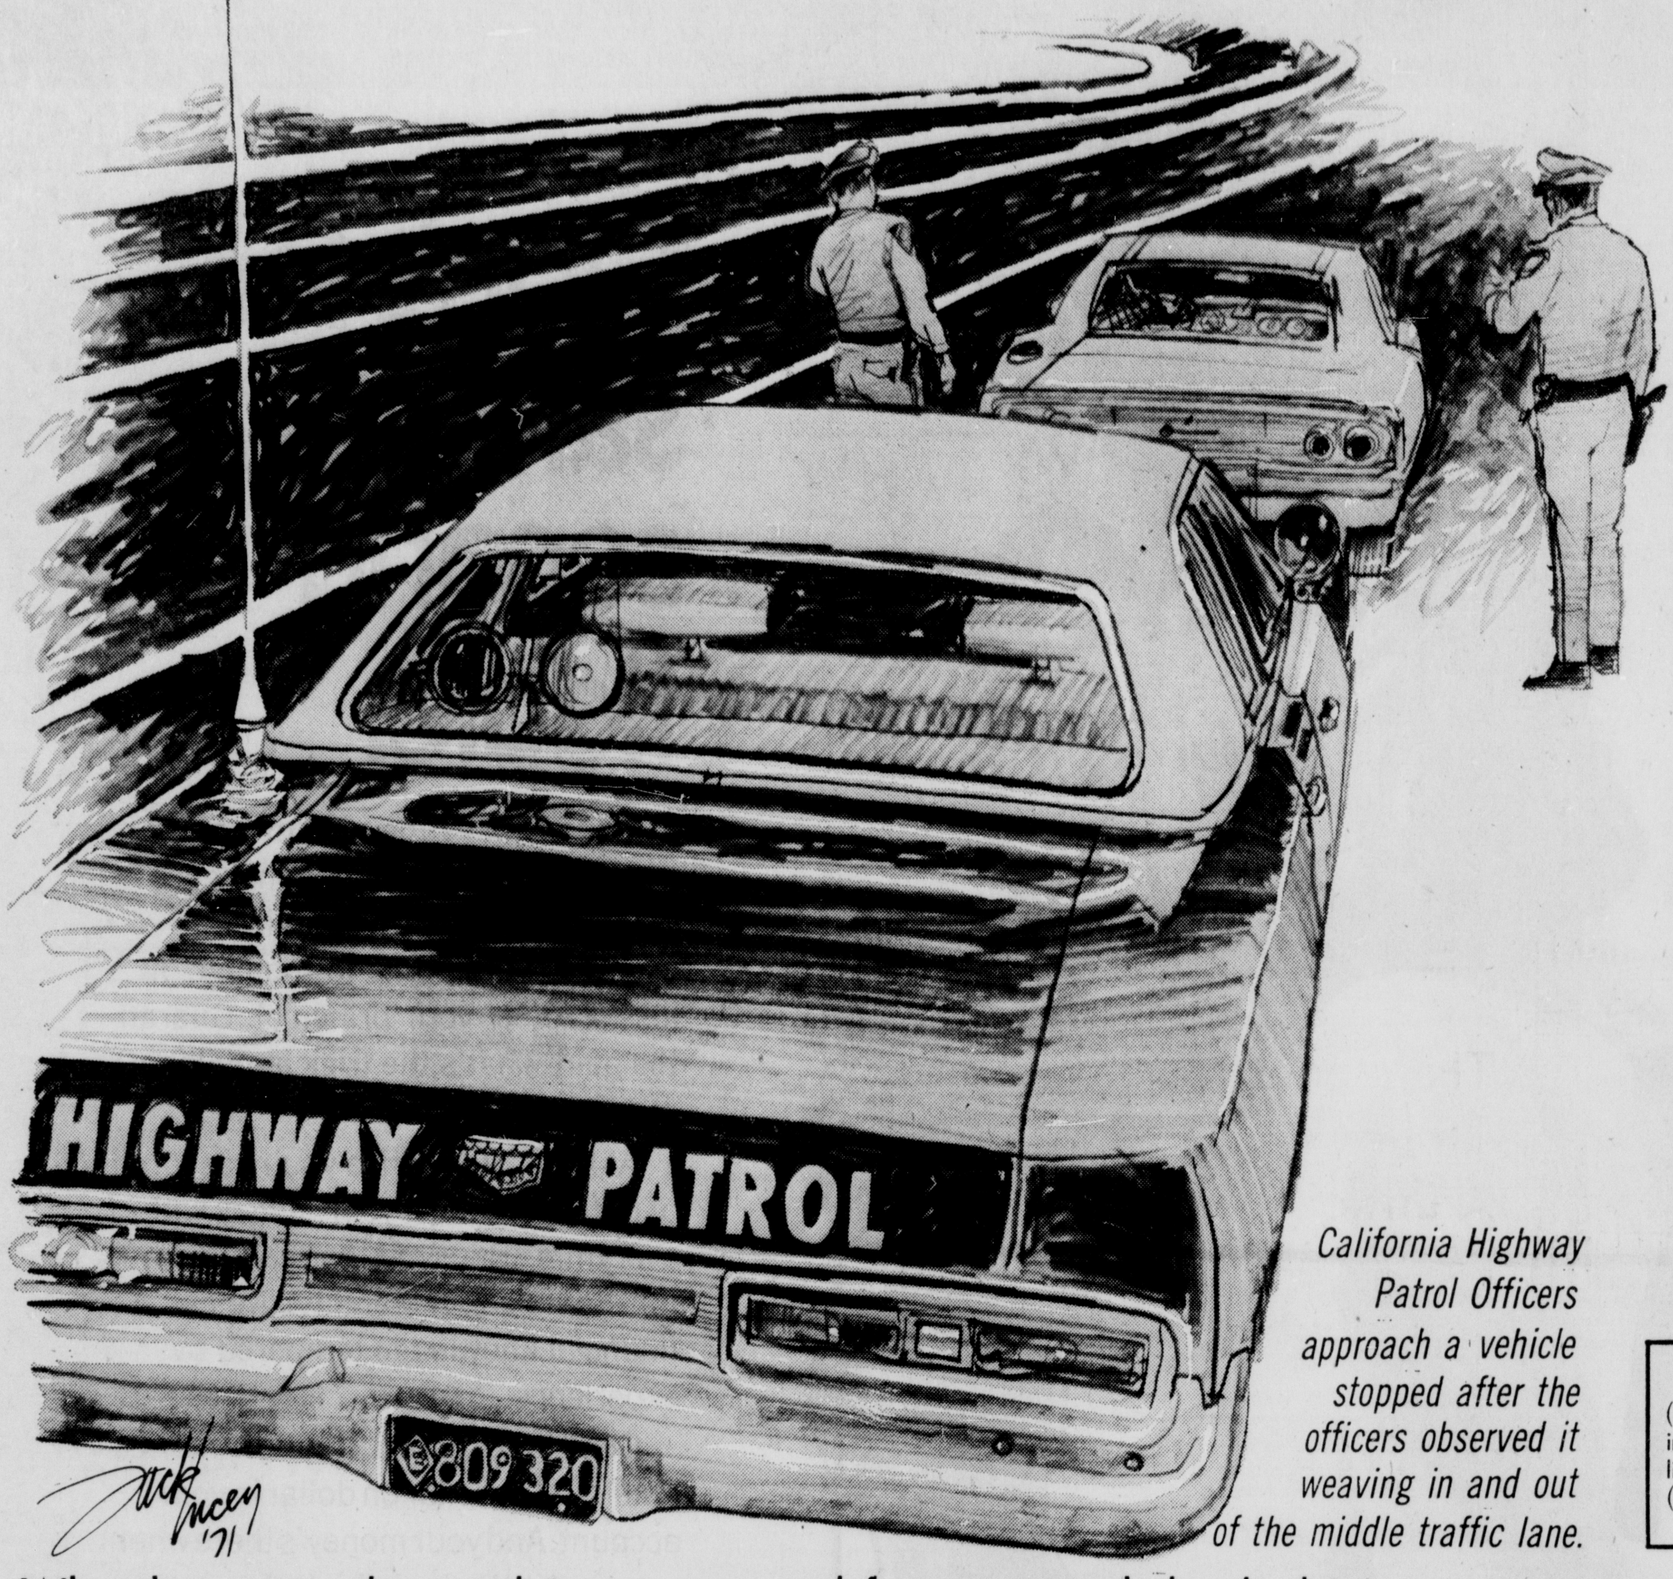
CHP drinking driver arrests UP . . . accident rate DOWN



California Highway Patrol Officers approach a vehicle stopped after the officers observed it weaving in and out of the middle traffic lane.

For your own protection, if you drive don't drink

In order to assist and protect the individual from the "other" driver, the California Highway Patrol has a hard-hitting enforcement program aimed at the primary accident causing violations. We know this to be an effective weapon. For example, in Marin County during the past two years we have increased drinking driver arrests from 879 in 1969 to 1824 in 1971. During the same period reportable accidents have been reduced each year. Further, 253 fewer persons were killed or injured last year than in 1969. This is in the face of a 13% increase in traffic. To us this is a very real and tangible aspect of traffic safety.

The year 1972 promises to be even safer for Marin's motorists. As of this date, accidents are down 8% over 1970. Coincidentally, drinking driver arrests are up nearly 40% over last year.

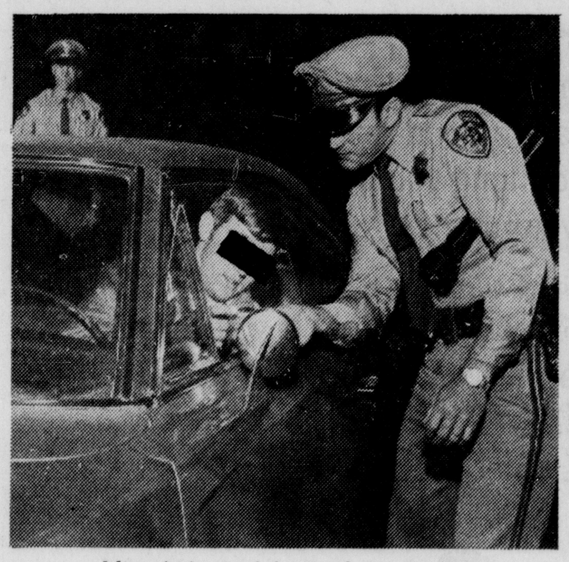
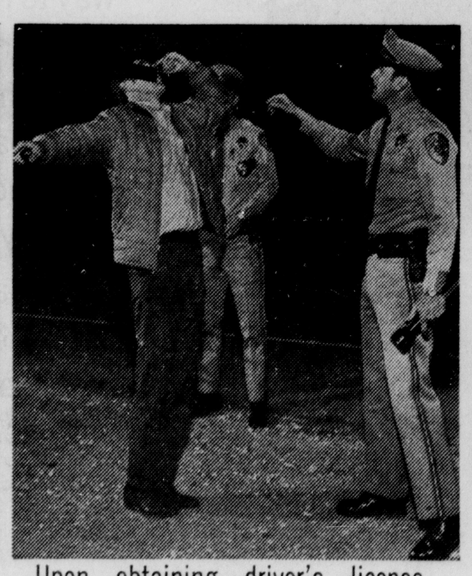
23102 DRIVING UNDER INFLUENCE
(a) VC It is unlawful for any person who is under the influence of intoxicating liquor, or under the combined influence of intoxicating liquor and any drug to drive a vehicle upon any highway. (misdemeanor).

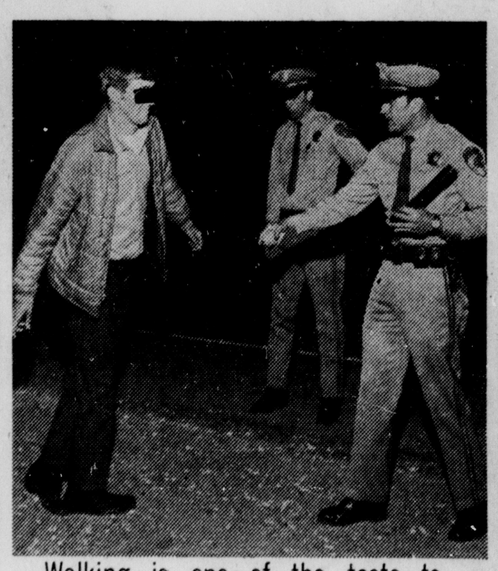
What happens when a driver is stopped for suspected drunk driving:



After being advised of why he was stopped the erratic driver is requested to produce his driver's license.



Upon obtaining driver's license, driver is asked to get out of his vehicle and submit to field balance tests (with eyes closed — touch top of index finger to tip of nose).



Walking is one of the tests to determine the driver's balance and coordination (walk approx. straight line placing heel of one shoe against the toe of the other).

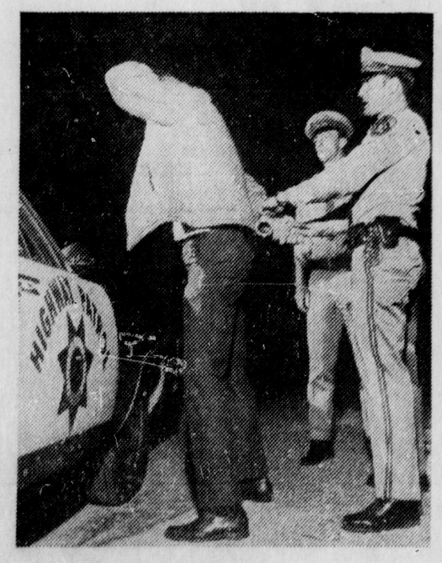
Prior to placing arrestee in the patrol car, he is "pat searched" for possible weapons.



With the "pat search" completed, he is handcuffed.

LOW CLAIM PAYOUTS

Malpractice Victim Gets Little Return

NEW YORK (UPI)—The high cost and scarcity of medical malpractice insurance is becoming as serious for the public as for the medical profession.

This was brought out forcibly in testimony by state insurance commissioners and other witnesses in the mid-December hearings in Washington held by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

Among the more startling disclosures was that only 20 cents out of each dollar paid for malpractice insurance ever reaches a victim of malpractice or his family. That compares with a claim payout of 42 cents on the premium dollar for automobile liability policies, a record the insurance companies admit they are not proud of.

Another was that malpractice insurance costs some hospitals as much as $2 a day per patient.

Greater concern was voiced by some of the commissioners over what they said was the cost inflation of medical care and actual deterioration of medical care resulting from the practice of "defensive medicine" by doctors and hospitals seeking to sidestep responsibility and avert malpractice suits.

Pennsylvania's insurance commissioner, Herbert Denenberg, said many physicians unhesitatingly order extra tests costing as much as $100 and put patients in hospital beds at $100 a day for tests or procedures where hospitalization is not really necessary just to protect themselves from a possible charge of neglect.

"If I'm wrong, I may be sued for a million dollars, so I don't hesitate to make the patient pay for an extra hundred dollars worth of tests," he quoted one surgeon as saying.

Denenberg and other witnesses told HEW officials that defensive medicine also may involve avoiding surgery and other procedures, regardless of the medical indications, because of the risk of lawsuits.

"It even includes refusal to treat some patients altogether if they seem to be likely candidates for filing malpractice claims," Denenberg testified.

Testimony showed that even though some dramatically large judgments have been awarded to victims of medical and hospital malpractice, in the aggregate the victims's chance of recovery in the courts is small.

Among the measures proposed at the hearings to relieve the problem were:

Stricter regulation of hospitals to prevent accidents.

Some Exchanges To Close Early

The Market Drops Off A Little

NEW YORK (UPI) —The combination of profit taking and pre-holiday lethargy weighed down the stock market today.

Shortly before the final gong, Standard & Poor's 500 stock index dipped 0.38 at 101.83, and declines topped advances by around 225 issues.

Point-sized losers were most evident in the electronics. Steels, Motors, Chemicals, and oils generally traded in fractions with a downward bias.

Rails, airlines, and aircrafts also moved narrowly.

Among the most active stocks were Daylin, Inc., American Telephone, Boise Cascade, Occidental Petroleum, Delta Air Lines, West Point-Pepperell, and Litton.

United Aircraft traded narrowly, although it said it expects to report a loss of $35 million to $40 million for 1971 based on a total writeoff of $125 million in the jet engine program for the Boeing 747 jumbo airliner.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

Hold Stocks For Gradual Recovery

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. In 1954 I purchased 20 shares of Allis-Chalmers at $67 and 20 shares of Allied Stores at $48.50. Market prices now are $11.50 and $29.89, respectively. Should I still hold onto these stocks for a possible comeback or sell? — S.M.

A. Allis-Chalmers (NYSE), recently discussed here, may be held for its potential recovery prospects as may Big Board-listed Allied Stores. Stock's presently depressed trading levels reflect in large part a sharp downturn in the company's earnings, despite steady sales gains.

After posting two deficit quarters (the first and second of fiscal 1971), Allied reported a 10 cents a share profit for the third period, compared with 13 cents in the year-earlier quarter, on a 7.4 percent increase in sales. For the nine months ended October, however, Allied's red ink was trimmed to 11 cents a share versus fiscal 1970's 27 cents a share loss.

Operations are expected to pick up for the balance of fiscal 1971 and beyond aided by an improvement in retail trade conditions in general, increased consumer buying in the Christmas season, and new store openings. Now quoted about 41 percent below its all-time levels, shares may be held for gradual recovery in line with Allied's operations.

Q. I would like some comment on the reliability of the Lykes-Youngstown 7½s of 1993-94. The bond interest is always received on time. What is its current value? Would this bond be readily salable? — B.K.

A. This lower-medium grade BB-rated debenture is trading around 70, i.e., $700, a price which indicates the speculative nature of the issue. Operating deficits were incurred by Lykes-Youngstown in 1969 and 1970 and in the first nine months of the current year.

The preferred dividend has not been paid for four quarters. Your holding, which is a direct but unsecured obligation of the company, is subordinated to the company's senior debt. The issue trades regularly on the NYSE. Sale is suggested.

Q. We have $5,000 to invest in absolutely safe 10-year tax-free bonds paying 8 per cent. If we are wrong in any of our requirements, please suggest what is available. — R.B.

A. Top quality, short-term tax free bonds are currently returning about 4.4 per cent — taxable equivalent of about 6.5 per cent in a 32 per cent tax bracket. Even in 1970, when bond yields were at their peak, returns on tax exempt bonds never reached 8 per cent. Unless you and your wife are in a 40 per cent or higher tax bracket I would advise a taxable corporate bond carrying A or AA rating, with 15 or 20 years to maturity. In this category you should be able to find a bond returning 7.5 per cent or better.

OTHER PEOPLE'S BUSINESS

By HARRY CRAFT

200 Businesses Came To Marin During Course Of '71

Approximately 200 new business ventures were started in Marin County - or transferred here from points outside the county - during 1971.

About a third of these were in the general retail store category — women's wear and other clothing stores and shoe stores (6 per cent); antiques, furniture, furniture design and furniture refinishing, import and art goods shops (9 per cent); paint, sporting goods, flower shops, bicycle sales and rental shops and other miscellaneous stores - 18 per cent.

The automotive group — new dealers, automotive parts and supplies, tire centers, auto repair shops, car washes and motorcycle shops and parts stores - accounted for another 9 per cent.

Service businesses - securities and insurance offices, law offices, real estate offices, business counselors, advertising and public relations offices, accountants, schools and instruction centers and collection agencies - made up 19 per cent. Securities and insurance offices were the most numerous in the group, with 11 new offices. There were eight new lawyers' offices opened.

A general industrial and construction-related group, which included wholesalers and distributors, manufacturers, building contractors, engineers, architects and industrial designers, research and electronic firms, moving and storage companies, swimming pool contractors and suppliers and termite correction contractors, totaled 14 per cent. Wholesalers and distributors were in the lead in this group, with 11 new firms. Included in the category was one glass blower.

A fourth group of miscellaneous businesses accounted for 24 per cent of all new ventures. This included new banks and branches, restaurants and delicatessens (13 new establishments), printing and publishing firms, yacht brokers and marine supply firms, mortage bankers, photographers and photographic shops, beauty and reducing salons, lease and rental agents, pet hospitals, motion picture theaters, commercial film producers, travel agencies, limousine service, office and answering services and general offices.

ARTHUR G. FALK of San Rafael has been advanced to second vice-president, claims, by Fireman's Fund American Insurance Companies. He joined the organization in 1957 and for the past four years has been assistant vice-president in charge of claims. He has been in the life insurance business since 1938.

M. B. (TIM) MCGOWAN of San Rafael has been appointed vice-president in charge of domestic construction operations of the Ben G. Gerwick Co. He joined the company on 1957 and for the past four years has been a general superintendent. Gerwick is a division of Santa Fe-Pomeroy, Inc.

RAY AND NADINE SCHRAM, doing business as Raydina Ice Skating, have purchased the 14,000-square-foot ice rink at 10 Fiver Avenue, Corte Madera, which they have been occupying as a tenant, from Western Real Estate Development Corp. They have been here more than four years. Previously their ice rink was located in San Anselmo.

Oddsmakers 'Happy' When Right 5 Of 10

By RALPH CHATOIAN

Just like the people who run the Nevada casinos, oddsmakers go for the volume of business, not the big percentage of winnings. I was told once the men who run the casinos are happy with a 51 or 52 per cent winning average. But they want volume.

San Rafael publicist Dick Skuse informed me about the winning and losing of Nick Antos the man who studies all the variables and then comes up with a football point spread for Harrah's Tahoe Racebook.

"People only remember the times the oddsmakers might be wrong, such as the big Super Bowl upset by the New York Jets," said Antos. "So this year I decided to find out just how well we oddsmakers do."

Nick went back over the 182 games he picked point spreads on during the 1971 regular National Football League season. He had 87 winners in which teams won by the point spread or higher. He had 82 losers in which teams either did not win by enough points or lost the game altoghether. If a point or two off, the game went into the loser's category. There were 13 "pick'em" games which had no point spreads at all.

"Thus," said Antos, "our winning percentage was 51.4 per cent. In our 49.6 per cent losers, there were many games in which the favorite won by 4 when he was favored by 6; by 6 when he was favored by 7, etc. If an oddsmaker can call the point spreads in more than 50 per cent of the games, then he is doing a good job."

For last week's playoff games, points out Skuse, Antos had correct picks on Dallas over Minnesota and Baltimore over Cleveland, and "missed Kansas City and Miami by narrow width of Jan Stenerud's missed field goal (had Kansas City by 3), and missed 49ers over Washington by a couple of points."

Let's hope his Dallas pick over the 49ers (5½ points) Sunday is one of those in the 49.6 per cent class.

IN CASE YOU were wondering how much that 49er victory over the Redskins was worth to each San Francisco player, the answer is $5,500 and a chance for a lot more.

This is the way playoff pay works:

The league pays each player on every team that makes the playoffs one-fourteenth of his yearly salary, so players in that first playoff game make the same pay as they do for one of the 14 regular season games. But by winning the game, the team advances to the conference championship game which guarantees $5,500 to eash loser, while each winner gets $8,500.

And not only does each player get his $8,500 share, he is guaranteed another $7,500 even if his team loses in the Super Bowl. The winning players each get $15,000. So the total for the winning player after it's all over is $23,500 plus 1/14th of his salary, roughly $25,000. Not bad bay for a kid's game, eh?

IF TRANSPORTATION to tomorrow's Shrine East-West football game at Candlestick Park is still needed, check with Shaun Wiltshire of Wiltshire Towers in San Rafael. He's taking his double-decker bus and says there are still seats available. It leaves at 11:15 a.m. but you gotta have your own game tickets.

LES WALSH, San Rafael photog and father of Sharon, said he received a telephone call from her Tuesday from Port Elizabeth, South Africa, where she is competing in a tennis tourney. Sharon told her dad that winds of 20 miles per hour were nothing, "it usually blows about 40 miles per hour." Said Walsh: "She told me it was the second windiest city in the world."

I guess that makes the Port Elizabethians try harder.

Strong Backfields Meet In Shrine Tilt

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Imagine, if you will, a backfield of Craig Curry at quarterback and Ed Marinaro and Eric Allen as the running backs.

Or how about one with Brian Sipe at quarterback and Bobby Moore and Bernard Jackson as the running backs.

Which would you take?

Hard to pick, isn't it, and yet the two threesomes will line up against each other tomorrow in the 47th Shrine East-West football game. An expected capacity crowd of 45,000 at Candlestick Park and a nation-wide television audience can argue over the New Year's Eve cocktails as to which is the best team and maybe even then never reach an unanimous conclusion.

Because television cameras spend most of their time zeroing in on the quarterbacks, running backs and wide receivers, the aforementioned six players stand out front and center. But they are by no means the only stars in the game which benefits crippled children's hospitals.

CURRY

Curry, for instance, is only the East starting quarterback but he'll have to allow playing time for John Reaves, the all-time NCAA passing champion from Florida. Sipes, who hails from San Diego State, will have to do the same for the West, giving way at times to Jimmy Jones of Southern California.

Murray Warmath of Minnesota is in charge of the East offense and since he likes the option series Curry, who played for Warmath, gets the starting call over Reaves.

The West will go with a passing game only if the East stops Moore, of Oregon, Jackson, of Washington State, and Dave Schilling, of Oregon State. The three were the best runners on the West Coast in 1971 and any coach who wouldn't take advantage of their abilities should turn in his whistle.

SIPE

Sipe is the West's passing quarterback while Jones is the option-type. That means when Jones plays there will be a lot of running and when Sipe gets in there will be some throwing, especially to flanker Jim Krieg of Washington and wide receivers Leland Glass of Oregon and Tom Reynolds of San Diego State.

Curry is the East's running quarterback, but he can throw if need be. Chances are he'll be handing off to Marinaro, the all-time NCAA rushing champion from Cornell, and Allen, the man from Michigan State they affectionately call the "Flea."

Mike Connor Hits 15-Footer To Give Redwood Win, 43-41

By LEW CODDINGTON

Steve McGee carried Redwood High most of the long journey and Mike Connor took the final triumphant step as the Giants defeated Sacred Heart of San Francisco last night, 43-41, in a basketball duel of great regional importance.

McGee was the outstanding player on the floor and scored 26 points, but it was Connor who got the final two. He hit a 15-foot jump shot from the right corner with two seconds left to break a 41-all tie.

In an earlier game on the same bill at Redwood, Lowell of San Francisco defeated foul-prone Marin Catholic, 52-38. In the Pinole tournament, San Rafael downed St. Patrick's of Vallejo, 44-33, and faced De La Salle of Concord for the consolation title today at 2 p.m. Terra Linda defeated its alumni, 71-53.

"It was the sweetest victory here in some time," said coach Dick Hart, whose Giants are now 12-0. "They deserved to win."

Sacred Heart (7-3) is considered one of Northern California's best teams. Its two previous losses came during the Catholic lay teachers' strike, and among its triumphs was a conquest of powerful San Joaquin Memorial.

Connor had been cold up until his final shot, hitting only three of 11 previously. Redwood had put the ball in play with 20 seconds left, with instructions from Hart not to shoot until the clock showed :03.

The earlier part of the game, especially the first half, was all McGee. The 6-foot-6 senior center scored on layups, jumpers and hooks; he rebounded, dribbled, and perhaps even sold peanuts in the stands. He won his personal duel with Sacred Heart's star center, Glen Hubbard, outscoring him, 26-21.

McGee scored 14 of Redwood's first 17 points as the Giants bounced back from an early 4-0 deficit to compile a 27-21 lead early in the third quarter.

Then the Giants played their only erratic stretch, missing five straight poor outside shots and making two bad passes. Sacred Heart forged ahead early in the fourth period, 35-30.

McGee scored on a set shot and a two-footer and a jumper by Connor tied things at 36-36 with 4:35 left. San Farb made a free throw, and then McGee made a free throw and a bank shot for 40-36.

Hubbard scored on a bank, and after a McGee free throw, Ken Cooper of the Irish converted a three-point play to tie the game with 0:26 remaining.

Redwood shot 41 per cent (17 for 41), a little below its recent figures, and made 10 turnovers, a little more than the current norm. McGee was 11 of 15 from the floor.

Marin Catholic (5-7) had suffered from rashes of excess fouling before, but last night's infection reached epidemic proportions. The Wildcats committed 27 fouls to Lowell's eight, and made six of 12 free throws compared to Lowell's eight, and made six of 12 free throws compared to Lowell's 28 of 43.

Lowell scored 16 points in the fourth quarter, all from the line. High scorer Nick Hoppe had 29 points, 15 from the line. That pretty much tells the tale.

"We're going to have to go back to game one and start all over again," said coach Dave Gonsalves. "And what a time to be doing it — after 12 games of the season."

Dan Mahoney scored 14 for the Wildcats.

San Rafael (6-5) got 12 points from Bill Lechner and effective performance out of a 1-2-2 zone defense to subdue St. Patrick's. The Bulldogs allowed their foes only nine field goals.

CABRILLO, MARIN VIE

Winners 12 times in 13 games, College of Marin's Tars will host Cabrillo College of Aptos tonight at 8 o'clock in a non-conference basketball game in Kentfield.

Most recent victory for Marin was last Thursday in Oakland against powerful Laney College, 70-65, in a game called by Marin Coach John Panagakis, "A really great team performance."

Frosh Cage Tourney Won By Riordan

Led by the scoring and rebounding of Ricky Lee, who was named the tourney's most valuable player, Riordan High of San Francisco whipped Moreau High of Concord, 55-35, yesterday in the championship game of the Marin Catholic Freshman Invitational basketball tournament.

Lee scored 24 points and broke his own rebound record of the night before by pulling down 29. Dennis Benitez led Moreau with 11 points.

In the consolation game, St. Ignatius of San Francisco defeated Drake of San Anselmo, 51-45 behind Tony Passanisi's 16 points. Leading Drake scorers were Mike Ghiringhelli and Gary Peak, each with 15 points.

Bishop O'Dowd of Oakland edged the host Wildkittens from Kentfield, 54-51, for third place, despite the 24-point production of Marin's Mike Mahoney. High for O'Dowd was Eric Edgerly, 15 points.

St. Patrick's of Vallejo edged Serra of San Mateo, 57-56 to win seventh place. Mike Krog scored 23 points and Carl Webster 22 to top St. Pat's and Jim Walsh and Tim Fitzgerald each had 15 for Serra.

Joining Lee on the 10-man all-tourney team were Erick Gilsberg of St. Ignatius; Benitez and Dave Belville of Moreau; Mahoney of Marin Catholic; Ghiringhelli of Drake; George Andrews of O'Dowd; Webster of St. Patrick's, and Alton Byrd and John Cook of Riordan.

STANFORD RESERVE

Mike Askea Listed As 'Questionable'

LONG BEACH, Calif. (UPI) — Mike Askea, a reserve tackle, suffered a knee injury in Stanford's practice Wednesday and was declared questionable for the Rose Bowl game against Michigan.

Coach John Ralston said if Askea, a 6-foot-4, 240-pound junior, could not play he would move sophomore Bill Wiley in behind starter Tim Schallich.

The Indians drilled at Cal State Long Beach and Ralston came away "pleased" although he said he was "worried" about the Wolverines controlling the ball Saturday.

"In order to win," he said, "we've got to be able to control the ball ourselves and keep our defense from playing 75 per cent of the time out there."

Meanwhile Michigan football coach Bo Schembechler, an advocate of artificial turf, isn't letting up on the Rose Bowl's real grass field one bit.

"I don't think," Schembechler said Wednesday, "the turf at the Rose Bowl is going to be any good.

"It's just rained too much. The field has been soaked too long. I really can't believe how water holds in fields in this area."

After a week of rain, the sun was out Wednesday and the Wolverines went through a one-hour workout at East Los Angeles Stadium.

"I think we'll be ready to play," Schembechler said. "We're going to be all right."

SEARCH STARTS

Chicago Bears Oust Head Coach Jim Dooley

CHICAGO (UPI) —Chicago Bears owner George Halas launched a "wide open" search for a new coach today, but it was unlikely some stranger would come in to take over the job.

Halas fired his protege, Jim Dooley, yesterday after four unsuccessful years in the job, during which the Bears had three consecutive losing seasons for the first time in history. He said "the door is wide open for a new man to step in."

Halas, though, said he would consider "other coaches with professional experience, or college coaches." The new coach was to be named before the NFL draft Feb 1-2.

Prospects from these categories might find it hard to get the job, however. Pro coaches first would have to get clearance from their current employer and college coaches, who also might be under contract, would have to break down the thought that pro football requires different talents.

Halas said he would pay Dooley for the year remaining on the five year contract he signed when he became head coach, but added that Dooley was free to seek any other job he wished. Should Dooley take a job in pro football, Halas might not have to pay his full salary for next year.

Halas said Dooley was let go because "the record speaks for itself."

On the record Dooley's teams won 20 and lost 36 games and he was in charge in 1969 when the team had its worst record ever, one win and 13 defeats. The last two seasons the Bears finished 6-8, and this year, with a 6-3 record to be contenders for the Central Division title after nine games, they lost the last five to fall into third place.

'Experience Available' Says Nolan

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— Coach Dick Nolan of the San Francisco 49ers feels as though he is playing a chess match with his counterpart—Tom Landry—while preparing for Sunday's NFC championship.

In the Cowboys' 17-10 win over the 49ers in last season's NFC title game, Dallas sent Duane Thomas on sweeps around his left end. He usually had three blockers ahead of him and gained 143 of his team's 229 rushing yards.

That right side of the 49er defense consisted of rookies Cedrick Hardman and Bruce Taylor, third-year Bill Belk and second-year men Jim Sniadecki or Skip Vanderbundt.

"Dallas did take advantage of our inexperience," said Nolan, "but some of our guys were young and had never been in a pressure situation like that before.

"We had four years of experience in there most of the game last year. Now with Cedrick, Skip and Bruce we have seven."

However, Taylor's availability is still doubtful. He's been ordered to stay off his sprained right ankle until the weekend.

Nolan believes he has the key to defensing that particular play. But he's wondering if Landry knows about using three receivers on the same side as did the Kansas City Chiefs with success against the 49ers this season?

If Landry does, he'll probably put speedster Bob Hayes in the slot between flanker Lance Alworth and the tight end (Mike Ditka or Bill Truax).

Johnny Fuller was trying to cover Otis Taylor of the Chiefs when Kansas City ran that play on Fuller's side. Now regular safety Mel Phillips is back and Nolan said he would go against Hayes in the slot formation plays.

"We worked a little on some new offensive patterns," said Nolan. "There are a few new things we'll use against Dallas. I expect them to unveil something they haven't used against us."

Angels Pick Moss

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — The California Angels Wednesday named Les Moss, manager of their Shreveport, La., farm club, to take over the pennant-winning Pacific Coast League Salt Lake Angels.

Broom Ball Bids For Recognition

So you like hockey, but you don't like stray pucks whizzing toward your cranium at 120 m.p.h. Besides, you don't even skate. What can you do?

One possibility is to drag out your favorite chair, stock up on potato chips and beer, and watch the Seals on TV all winter. The only problem is that the Seals aren't on TV.

What you can do instead is play broom ball, which is hockey without mayhem, and which is catching on in Marin County. There's even a four-team league, which plays its games at Radine's ice rink in Corte Madera.

The chief architect of the league is Cliff Cameron, an Independent-Journal delivery man who plays hockey. Cameron also plays in a broom ball league in Santa Rosa.

"Santa Rosa has a league and so does San Fracisco," he said. "Charles Schulz, who draws the Peanuts comic strip, is an official in the Santa Rosa league.

"I thought broom ball would catch on here, and it has. We had a large crowd watching the other night — mostly College of Marin students with their dates."

The game is almost identical to hockey. There are six players on a team — two forwards (wingers), a center, two defensemen and a goalie. The fouls are the same, and there's even a penalty box. Scores run about the same, as well.

The differences? There are four main ones. Instead of a puck, there's a round ball, about seven inches in diameter. Instead of a stick, there's a broom. Instead of skates, there are tennis shoes. And instead of cuts requiring 18 stitches, there are the more conventional knocks and bruises.

Most of the players in the Marin league are in their early 20s, including a number of College of Marin students. "The young bulls," says Cameron.

There are four teams in the league: Novato, San Rafael, Santa Venetia and Marin. "We'd like to expand to eight teams next year if we can generate enough interest," said Cameron. There are 10 to 12 players on a roster, so about 48 are participating now.

The season began Dec. 9 and will run for 12 games, terminating March 2. Teams play at 10 p.m. Tuesdays and 10:30 p.m. Thursdays, and games last about an hour.

"We're starting to get a lot of people who never even played hockey," said Cameron. "They're catching on quickly, though. They're starting to play as teams now. Before, they were just batting the ball around anywhere."

Batting the ball, at least for the 48 players and their growing numbers of fans, is a great deal better than stale potato chips and a blank TV screen.

PREP NOTEBOOK

Taking A Peek Into New Year

By LEW CODDINGTON

Things that ought to happen next year in Marin County prep sports, but won't . . .

January — After defeating a team from Oregon, Redwood High basketball coach Dick Hart denies he is campaigning for a national championship . . . Terra Linda ties San Rafael in a crucial water polo match when a potential game-winning shot freezes in mid-air . . . the Marin County Athletic League Board of Managers agrees to move water polo from winter to fall, then hears the rest of the country has changed from fall to winter.

February — Dick Hart announces his 1972-73 schedule will contain a team from Texas, but denies he is campaigning for a national championship . . . After a bomb scare at College of Marin, Tamalpais High decides to play all its home basketball games at Berkeley . . . Drake's first-year wrestling team wins the MCAL., Coach Imants Abers quits to start a jai alai team, claiming wrestling is too easy.

March — Redwood is barred from the Tournament of Champions for being too powerful . . Hart announces his 1973-74 schedule will contain two teams from Pennsylvania, but denies he is campaigning for a national championship.

April — After a bomb scare in Berkeley, Tam decides to play its home basketball games in Hanoi, "where it's safe" . . . During the second teachers' strike, Marin Catholic baseball players announce they will play without a coach, and win 18 straight . . . Hart announces his 1974-75 schedule will contain six teams from four eastern states, but denies he is campaigning for a national championship.

May — The MCAL announces it is dropping golf and tennis due to "lack of interest in these sports in Marin County" . . . Hart announces his 1975-76 schedule will contain College of Marin, but denies he is campaigning for a national championship . . . Four athletes are kicked off the Redwood track team for having short hair.

June-August — summer vacation.

September — Hart announces his 1976-77 schedule will contain Stanford, but denies he is campaigning for a national championship.

October — Novato, Redwood, San Rafael and Terra Linda all defeat each other in MCAL football . . . Hart announces his 1977-78 schedule will contain UCLA and Marquette, but denies he is campaigning for a national championship . . . Water polo coaches request the season be moved back to winter due to accumulation of autumn leaves in the pools.

November — Marin Catholic, recently admitted to MCAL football, wins the championship — still without a coach . . . Drake wins MCAL jai alai, and Abers quits to start a chess team . . . Hart announces his 1978-79 schedule will contain the Milwaukee Bucks, but denies he is campaigning for a national championship.

December — Redwood loses 15 straight basketball games, including one to Tamalpais during an air raid . . . The I-J bans all year-end predicitons by prep columnists.

FIVE FOR FIVE — Drake uses a two-platoon system in basketball. Against Lincoln of San Francisco Tuesday, the Pirates played five men in the first quarter and a completely different set of five in the second period.

"The two groups scrimmage each other in practice to see who will start," said coach Bob Fitzhenry. It's hard to tell the difference between the two units on the balanced Pirates.

WIN ONE, LOSE ONE — San Marin basketball guard Greg Mazeres, who aggravated a back injury Dec. 4 and has been out since, returned to action Tuesday against St. Elizabeth of Oakland. He was rusty, but coach Andy Frauenhofer expects him to be in good shape for the league opener.

On the other hand, guard (formerly forward) Hoza Wright had minor surgery and will be out until next Tuesday's Sonoma game.

GILLES STEAL — California Golden Seals' goalie Gilles Meloche took away a potential goal off the stick of Montreal forward Marc Tardif last night in Montreal. Meloche's teammate Paul Shmyr (3) kept Larry Pleau (8) from joining the battle. Montreal won 3-2.

Seals Bow To Montreal

MONTREAL (UPI)—Memo re the Montreal Canadiens: Be alert at all times.

Goalie Gilles Meloche of the California Golden Seals took his eye off the puck very briefly twice Wednesday night and the Canadiens cashed in on two unassisted goals to nip the Seals 3-2.

Yvon Cournoyer broke a scoreless tie at 8:40 of the middle period when he picked up a loose puck and drilled a backhand drive past Meloche.

A power play goal by Walt McKechnie of the Seals, who took Norm Ferguson's pass and beat Phil Myre just 33 seconds later, tied the score.

Then Frank Mahovlich blasted a 50-footer past Meloche midway through the second period to give Montreal a 2-1 lead it never relinquished. Mahovlich took the puck in the Montreal end of the rink and skated into the Seals zone before firing a shot to Meloche.

The Seals had a golden opportunity against Myre who was making his first start of the season but failed to notch any more goals despite outshooting the Canadiens 33-32.

That gave the Seals a 0-3-1 record against Montreal so far this season. California next tackles the Red Wings in Detroit on New Year's Eve.

Quarterback Battle Set In AFC Tilt

MIAMI (UPI) — The only prediction President Nixon has made on Sunday's Baltimore-Miami Championship game is that "nobody's going to win big."

He was talking about the teams and the battle shaping up between two premier quarterbacks, Bob Griese and Johnny Unitas. But the Commander-In-Chief could have been talking about the Miami Dolphins' fans.

First, those who have managed to get tickets to the game are gladiators who have battled the lines for as long as 72 hours, viewing a passing parade of other sports fans who since Sunday have streamed by them for other Orange Bowl events.

And those who did not have the experience of camping out on sidewalks while North-South shrine game fans (Monday) and NCAA soccer championship enthusiasts (Tuesday) walked by, may not even get to see the game on home television.

The local press, civic leaders, and presidential candidate John V. Lindsay, have all asked NFL commissioner Pete Rozelle to lift the hometown blackout. Rozelle has refused.

Motels and resorts outside of the 75-mile blackout radius are already piling in reservations for New Year's eve parties which will continue right through the 1:30 p.m. (PST) Dolphins-Colts kickoff time. And the refugees from the land of the dark screen won't help Gov. Reubin Askew's pleas for drivers, especially tipsy ones, to stay off the highways.

Around town there are many Colts fans — Tuesday night some 15,000 folks greeted the Baltimore squad.

Wednesday the Colts held a two-hour workout at Tampa Stadium (which Tampa residents hope will one day be the home of the Colts) and worked mostly on offense.

But Baltimore tight end John Mackey took a more mercenary view of meteorology: "Heat or anything else shouldn't be an excuse in a big game. Going for $8,500 and a chance to go for $15,000, we should be willing to play in a furnace."

Powers' Memory Passes Stern Test

Francis Powers is Public Relations Director of the East-West game, the 47th of which will be played Friday in Candlestick Park. It's true that Powers does direct publicity for the annual charity classic. But that's the least of Powers' jobs at Shrine football headquarters.

"Francis wears so many hats I've never been able to count them," said Ted Balliet, general manager of the game who wears quite a few hats himself. "He's my right hand man — don't know what I'd do without him."

POWERS' MOST important job is coordinating information on hundreds of collegiate football stars from all sections of the country. He has one of the greatest scouting staffs in the land and all of his scouts, like the players and coaches in the game itself, contribute their talents for the benefit of crippled children.

There isn't a pro scout in the country with whom Powers is not on a first name basis. And it's the same with college football coaches.

"Both squads this year have more versatility than any previous East-West teams since football was separated into offensive and defensive specialties," said Powers. "Both are equipped with runners and passers for a spectacular game."

POWERS THEN rattled off names and statistics of players faster than a computer. He talks so rapidly that a court reporter would find it difficult keeping up with him. He carries on interviews while answering his telephone.

As he was giving a statistical rundown on Gary Hammond, an extremely versatile member of this year's West team, the telephone rang. "I'll take care of it," said Powers into the phone. It was a request for special shoes for players on Candlestick's artificial turf.

"As I was saying," Powers resumed his interview, "Hammond can do it all. He played split end, tailback and quarterback for Southern Methodist. He also is outstanding on punt returns."

What about Dave Chaney?

"Few linebackers ever had a greater day than Chaney did when San Jose State defeated Stanford," said Powers.

WITHOUT LOOKING at any notes, Powers quickly added: "Chaney was credited with 12 solo tackles, five assists, two fumble recoveries, a pass deflection, an interception, plus dropping Stanford's punter on his one yard line."

Powers' memory is prodigious. But could he recall the 1948 Shrine game? He smiled.

"I'll never forget it," said Powers. "Johnny Lujack, Notre Dame's two-time All-America quarterback, had his greatest day at passing, running and kicking in leading the East to a 40-8 vicotry.

"LUJACK CERTAINLY was one of the greatest, if not the greatest, player in East-West history. Lujack, George Connor and Ziggy Czarobski made a remarkable Notre Dame trio in that 1948 game. They all were PT boat commanders in World War II.

"They never waited for an invitation to play in the East-West game of '48. They called me in September that year and told me they were coming. Czarobski was the captain of the '48 East team — a unanimous pick, including his own vote. Ziggy said after the election 'You didn't think I'd vote for anyone else?'"

BROCKINGTON

Packer Named Top Rookie

NEW YORK (UPI)—John Brockington, who took his "cloud of dust" to the pros and used it in record proportion, is United Press International's 1971 National Football Conference Rookie of the Year, early beating out San Francisco halfback Vic Washington.

Brockington, schooled in the "three yards and a cloud of dust" running offense of Woody Hayes at Ohio State, was one of the few bright lights for the Green Bay Packers this season as he became the most productive rookie runner in National Football League history.

Brockington's 1,105 yards are the most ever recorded by a first-year player and he is only the fourth rookie ever to surpass the 1,000-yard mark, joining Beattie Feathers, Cookie Gilchrist and Paul Robinson.

His performance, best in the All-NFC team and landslide election Thursday as Rookie of the Year. Brockington received 32 of the 39 votes cast by 39 sports writers, three from each HFC city. Washington of San Francisco received four votes and linebacker Isiah Robertson of the Los Angeles Rams the other three.

Brockington, a 6-foot-1, 216-pounder from Brooklyn, N.Y., is only the third Packer ever to rush for 1,000 yards —joining Jim Taylor and Tony Canadeo —and the second Green Bay rookie to win the honor. Boyd Dowler was honored in 1959.

Georgia Tech, Mississippi Vie

ATLANTA (UPI)—The 1971 Peach Bowl question: Can Mississippi's amazing sophomores stand up to Georgia Tech's bully-boy defense?

The answer comes tonight in Atlanta Stadium before a national television audience watching on a special network.

Coach Billy Kinard is a rookie and so are 21 members of the Mississippi squad. Either 10 or 11 first year men will be in the starting offensive and defensive units for the Rebels.

THIRD

But with this contingent of youngsters, Kinard ran up a 9-2 record and finished third in the tough Southeastern Conference. Among the Rebel victories was a 24-22 defeat of Louisiana State, Tech's tough defense wasn't enough early in the season. But the Yellow Jackets began to win halfway through the season when quarterback Eddie McAshan was able to move the offense over sustained drives. Tech won four of its final five games and cut off the potent Florida State passing attack with only two field goals in a 12-6 win.

McASHAN

McAshan, first black ever to quarterback a Deep South team, suffered a groin injury after the end of regular-season play, but Georgia Tech coach Bud Carson said Wednesday he expects McAshan to play. However, he said McAshan will not start.

Kinard will have sophomore Norris Weese at quarterback. Weese took over in mid-season after his roommate, Kenny Lyons, suffered a shoulder separation. The Rebels rolled to six wins in a row with Weese calling the plays and the sophomore completed 46 of 71 passes for 650 yards and five touchdowns.

SHOULDER

Lyons' shoulder apparently has mended but Kinard said Wednesday that he does not anticipate putting him in the game. "I don't think it will help Kenny to play," the coach said.

The young Mississippi team reached its season peak Thanksgiving Day against Mississippi State by rolling up 42 points during a span of nine minutes and 25 seconds of playing time in the second quarter. It was the most explosive scoring burst by any team in Southeastern Conference history.

The Peach Bowl has had bad weather for its first three years. The forecast for tonight calls for cloudy weather but no rain.

Man Of Year Award Won By Trevino

ST. LOUIS (UPI)—The Sporting News today named pro golfer Lee Trevino as Sport's Man of the Year.

Trevino won the U.S., Canadian and British Open titles among five tournament victories in 1971 and earned $231,224 in official money winnings. He also was on the winning American team in Ryder Cup competition and teamed with Jack Nicklaus for an American victory in the World Cup.

The year was a tremendous one for Trevino, 32, despite the fact that he underwent an emergency appendectomy during the summer and was away from golf for six weeks.

Trevino is the fourth winner of the award, which went to Denny McLain in 1968, Tom Seaver in 1969 and John Wooden in 1970.

Hubert Green Picked

NORWALK, Conn. (UPI)—Hubert Green, a 25-year old from Alabama, and Sally Little, a 19-year old from South Africa, were named Wednesday the 1971 professional golf tour rookies of the year by Golf Digest magazine.

Warriors Beat Cincinnati By 5

DETROIT (UPI)—After taking care of Bob Cousy and his gang, the Golden State Warriors tonight try to outscore Dave Bing and company.

With Cazzie Russell igniting a fourth-period surge with 10 of his game-high 33 points, the Warriors defeated the Cincinnati Royals 107-102 Wednesday night to snap a three-game losing string. It was only the third win for the Warriors in their last 13 outings.

Golden State beat the Pistons Dec. 18 in Oakland while Bing was recovering from eye surgery. Bing returned to the lineup Tuesday night against the New York Knicks and scored 21 points in a losing cause. So he should be ready for the Warriors.

At Cincinnati, Golden State and the Royals were tied 77-77 at the end of three periods. Paced by Russell, the Warriors outscored Cincinnati 30-25 in the final period to hand the Royals their ninth straight loss.

Clyde Lee of the Warriors came up with his best offensive effort of the season—21 points—and pulled down 17 rebounds. He took over for Nate Thurmond who accrued four fouls with nine minutes remaining in the first half.

In an effort to offset Cincinnati's speed, coach Al Attles of the Warriors put 6-5 Joe Ellis on the Royals' 6-1 Nate Archibald.

Old Hands Abound At Dodge Ridge

By CHARLIE COANE

Turnover of key personnel at Dodge Ridge is not the order of the day for area head Earl Purdy, who has been at the Mother Lode area for 22 years.

Ski school director Ray Patton is in his 18th year and his wife Leah has run the ski shop for 12 years. "Even tha restaurant and rental shop managers are 12-year veterans," reports Purdy, "and most of the mountain crew has been with me 15 to 18 years."

Apparently Purdy's system has paid off. The family-oriented resort increased business around 25 per cent last season over the previous season, and is certainly not hurting financially.

"We try real hard," says Purdy, "to appeal to the skiing family. I think we groom our slopes as well as anywhere and you'll even find our food prices not sky high."

Dodge Ridge, with 6 chairlifts and 6 rope tows, has mostly intermediate terrain. About one-third of the area is beginner and 10-15 per cent is expert. The weekend daily adult rate runs $7; $5 midweek. This is fairly inexpensive by California standards. Four dollars will give you Little Silver Nugget Chair and the rope tows and this is the lowest chairlift rate in the Sierra. For kids under 12, that's $2.

This season the Heron chairlift was replaced with new equipment which increased the capacity. Also, the lower level of the day lodge now has a 150-locker ski and equipment room. Those who enjoy an occasional drink of water will be glad to learn that Dodge has a new water system to eliminate water shortage problems.

Dodge will again host the National Veteran's races at the end of February, and the area ranked 12th nationally in the number of NASTAR (National Standard Race) participants last season. That program continues this season.

Dodge Ridge, located 32 miles from Sonora, is perhaps the closest major resort in number of miles to the Bay Area. A number of ski firms are available to clubs and organizations.

HAFB Cagers Carry On

The fans are roaring, the announcer is screaming and the opposing players are trembling with fear. The mighty Los Angeles Lakers take the court — and Wilt Chamberlain isn't there.

Far-fetched? Not really. The Hamilton Air Force base basketball team had just that type of disaster happen recently when star center Mike Terwilliger, discharge papers in hand, headed off into the wild blue yonder, taking his 29-points-a-game scoring average with him.

But the Defenders are carrying on, in the best military tradition. In fact, they finished second in the recent Mather A.F.B. Invitational Christmas tournament. They lost the opener, reeled off three straight victories to gain the finals, and then lost to Mather, 70-60. Their season record is 9-5.

The Defenders' next mission is tomorrow at Travis A.F.B. Saturday they defend their own installation against the McClellan team, 2 p.m.

Hamilton's resident star is now guard Larry Hudgins, the only man with college cage experience. He played awhile for Merritt College in Oakland. He scored over 20 three times in the five-game Mather tourney.

The Defenders play in the Northern California Travel League, a loop composed of military installations. There are six Air Force bases — Hamilton, McClellan, Travis, Castle, Beale and Mather —and one Army installation, the Presidio. Hamilton is 3-3 in league play at the moment.

The Defenders' coach is Kenneth L. Coleman, an all-state cager at Centralia, Ill., High School, and one-time Southern Illinois University freshman player. A career officer, Coleman is in his second year of coaching at Hamilton.

High point of the year for Hamilton will be the Aerospace Defense Command tournament, scheduled for Feb. 4-7 at Otis A.F.B., Mass.

Coleman also was selected to be the coach of the Air Force team in the world-wide tournament at Sheppard A.F.B., Tex., Feb. 13-17.

UNIQUELY MARTIAN

Dead Man Found By Roommate

Joseph S. Comano apparently hanged himself, according to Donald L. Cornish, deputy coroner. Cornish said three notes indicating that intention were found in his bedroom. One named a nephew, Julius Arjo of Palo Alto, executor of his estate, according to Larkspur police.

Police said Camono's roommate, Robert E. Bain, returned from work about 5 p.m. and found the body hanging from a rafter in the rear of the garage. A ladder was leaning against the wall nearby.

Cornish said Comano may have been despondent over failing health. Comano had been under a doctor's care for hypertension and was on a severe diet, the deputy coroner said.

Comano was a retired San Francisco cab driver and was unmarried, Cornish said.

Corps Urged To Weigh Creek Study Criticisms

The Ross Valley Flood Control Zone advisory board yesterday didn't join the chorus of criticism against an Army Corps of Engineers report on the impact of concreting Corte Madera Creek in Ross, but the board didn't sing its praises, either.

The advisory board urged that the corps of engineers give weight to sharp criticisms of its environmental report on phase four by county staff, but wouldn't endorse all the objections.

In a separate action, the board authorized its staff to work with Larkspur toward setting up a study of the effects of boats and docks in the creek below Bon Air Bridge.

The boat issue became entangled in the impact report discussion when Joi Losee of Larkspur, spearhead of the move for a boat study, said the corps study didn't deal with the effect on the marshes or the question of boating.

Advisory board member Edward W. Colthurst, a Corte Madera councilman, reacted: "I'm for recreation in Corte Madera Creek. Boats, people, horses, I'm for it. I don't believe in restrictions. I personally would not ask for a big mishmash of environmental studies that could go forever and a day."

Larkspur Mayor Earl J. O'Grady, also a board member, opposed recreational development of the creek.

However, he later joined in the unanimous decision to let staff determine the feasibility of a boating study. Harlan Barry, assistant to the Larkspur city manager, said there is a strong possibility the Department of the Interior will do a study for free.

Mrs. Losee, in a letter considered on Dec. 14 by the Marin County Board of Supervisors, sought a study by the corps of engineers on the effect of recreational use, but Charles E. Murphy, flood control engineer, said the Army refused to do it.

Fred B. Graham, an advisory board member from Kentfield, wanted assurances the study by Larkspur wouldn't be "hack work" like the environmental impact report.

He said criticism from Werner Von Gundell, county planning director, and Pierre W. Joske, parks and recreation director, and the county public works department was better than the report.

The two county officials called it a whitewash and a justification for further concreting through Ross.

The only comment the board added was that the report should take more account of homeowners who have flooding.

The report goes to the county board of supervisors on Jan. 4 for comments. All will be incorporated into the report for consideration by a federal board on whether the project should be authorized, according to Ray W. Foreaker Jr., county public works director.

Blue Cross To Extend Benefits

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Blue Cross of California says it will extend benefits for more than 100,000 Northern Californians over the age of 65 starting January 1.

George C. Lucia, president of Blue Cross of Northern California, said Tuesday the benefit increase was made "to help fill the gaps in Medicare coverage."

On the first day of the new year Medicare will raise the deductible amounts the patient must pay for hospital care. This increase will vary but in many cases Medicare patients will have to pay the first $68 rather than the current $60.

Lucia said the Blue Cross companion program is expanding to absorb the higher costs while remaining at its present $4 monthly charge.

Extortionist Sentencing Date Set

Kenneth Edwin Carter, 40, of Monte Rio, Sonoma County, must serve from six months to five years in state prison for attempted extortion of a Kentfield woman last June.

Carter pleaded guilty to attempted extortion on Tuesday before Marin Superior Court Judge Joseph G. Wilson. The Judge stayed execution of sentence until Jan. 7.

Carter was originally charged with burglary and armed robbery, but the charge was amended after negotiation between Carter and the district attorney.

Carter was arrested last September on a warrant charging him as the gunman who burst into the home of Arlene Grossenbacker on Rosebank Avenue, Kentfield, on June 14. The victim told police the robber bound her and took $1,300 in cash, jewelry and antique silver.

Several days after the robbery, Mrs. Grossenbacker got a telephone call from a man who offered to sell her back the antique silver, according to Asst. Dist. Atty. Gary W. Thomas.

Deputy Dist. Atty. Jerry R. Herman said Carter has a list of prior convictions including burglary, grand theft, forgery and escape. He is still on parole for a 1962 escape from San Bernardino County Jail.

Vandal Takes Dome From Police Light

An early-rising prankster took the red dome of an emergency light of a Larkspur police car yesterday, but apparently decided he didn't want it.

Police said the dome, taken from the car at the police station between 4:30 and 5:30 a.m., was deposited at the back door of the station about 11 p.m.

Marin Fiscal Budget Boom Among Highest

Despite a generally sagging economy, 1971 proved to be a fiscal budget boom year for most of the state's 58 county governments — with Marin County outbooming all but one.

Figures released this week by the state controller's office show Marin's fiscal 1971-72 budget grew by more than 22 per cent over the previous year — second place statewide in percentage increase. Only the mammoth Los Angeles County budget grew more.

Of California's 58 counties, only five were listed showing a decrease in budget spending. (San Francisco County was not included since its city-county budget is not comparable.)

County Auditor-Controller Michael Mitchell agreed Tuesday that Marin's 22 per cent increase — from $38,091,412 last fiscal year to $46,648,398 this year — appeared staggering. However, he could point to other comparative county figures showing Marin's budget in a more favorable light.

Of the nine Bay Area counties, he said, Marin has the second lowest tax rate ($2.63 per $100 assessed valuation) bettered only by Santa Clara county ($2.63). Statewide, he said, 35 counties have higher tax rates, 22 have lower tax rates.

Mitchell said most of the budget increase occurred in three general categories; public safety, road construction and welfare.

Of the total $8 million increase, about half was paid by county property taxpayers. The remainder was financed through other sources, mainly state and federal taxes.

Sonoma County, meanwhile, increased its budget 13.46 per cent and has a tax rate this fiscal year of $3.85 — sixth highest in the state.

Superior Court Trial Ordered

SAN JOSE (UPI)—A judge Tuesday ordered that Pamela S. Watkins, 18, be tried in Santa Clara County Superior Court and not Juvenile Court for the slaying of two small children for whom she was a baby sitter.

The decision was handed down by Judge James B. Scott who set Jan. 31 for trial.

Miss Watkins, a high-school dropout from Ventura County, was accused of the Nov. 20 deaths of Tynya Aldridge, 6, and her sister, Shelvia, 5, whose bodies were found behind an apartment.

After Scott's decision, Deputy Public Defender Frank Katz entered pleas of innocent and innocent by reason of insanity for her.

1971 A MIXED YEAR

Victories, Defeats, Delays In Equal Rights Struggle

(Editor's note: This is the first of two articles on the progress in 1971 of the movement for women's rights.)

By BARBARA HOSMER

"Women Granted Equal Protection by High Court."

"National Press Club OKs Women Members."

"California Courts Lift Some Curbs on Jobs for Women."

"Nixon Vetoes Child Care Bill."

"Reagan Vetoes Birth Control Bill."

Women interested in equality for their sex had a lot to talk about this year. Some news they viewed as cheerful and long overdue, some they saw as tokenism, causing them to take a "wait and see what happens" attitude. Some they hit as blatantly sexist.

Struggling against past sensationalism and distortion by the press, the women's rights movement took its challenge to the halls of power rather than to the streets in 1971. The results at this point are checkerboarded.

The Equal Rights Amendment passed the House of Representatives this year by a good margin but has failed to make it out of committee to the Senate floor, though it picked up more public awareness and support.

(Congress was still concerned about whether girls could serve as Congressional pages, though some were appointed by legislators.)

WOMEN COULD claim a victory of sorts when just last month the Supreme Court's seven male justices held that the "equal protection" clause of the 14th Amendment denied to states the power to establish different classes of persons (women, for example) to be administrators of estates "on the basis of criteria wholly unrelated to the objective." The Court also refused to review a lower court decision which held that under a union or company or pension plan women workers could not be compelled to retire at an earlier age than men.

Thus, feminists could count two victories, of sorts, from the court, which in previous decades had ruled that the equal protection of the law clause of the 14th Amendment did not apply to women.

But, said women's rights advocates, the court did not go further and declare any legal distinction between the sexes as unconstitutional. If a state legislature decides to treat women as a class differently from men, it can do so if it comes up with an "objective" reason.

Marin Women

Thursday, December 30, 1971 Independent-Journal, 13

The women vowed to increase their efforts toward passage of the Equal Rights Amendment to the Constitution, which would forbid any legal distinctions between the sexes, adding that the fate of women as a class should not be left to the changing whims of the male-dominated courts.

The California Supreme Court ruled in the Sail'er In case that the state may not restrict employment of women without some compelling reason. The decision allowed any women to work as bartenders — a better paid occupation than waitressing. Previously women could tend bar only if they owned the business.

WEIGHT-LIFTING restrictions on the job and working hour restrictions for women were struck down in California also be a federal circuit court. Atty. Gen. Evelle Younger has stated that he is studying other California laws affecting women alone, such as minimum wages, overtime and rest period requirements to see if these laws also are in violation of Title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964.

Women's rights advocates call for a full review of labor laws, one by one, asking that beneficial ones be extended to men and that restrictive laws be stricken from the books. Some segments of the labor and some political groups have opposed the Equal Rights Amendment on the grounds that it would wipe out hard-earned protection for women workers as a class. But equal rights for women champions counter that women are denied jobs and promotions because of such limiting labor laws which they say restrict job progress rather than protect.

If a law is beneficial, why not extend it to men also, thus eradicating sex-based laws, they ask. As to weight-lifting restrictions — now struck down — some women and some men can lift heavy weights, the women argue, and some women and some men cannot — it is not a sex-based thing.

Equalizing state labor laws to cover men and women alike will likely be a part of the California Legislature's considerations in 1972 and beyond.

MEANWHILE, 400 Californias used the one-year-old law against sex discrimination in jobs to file complaints with the state Fair Employment Practices Commission, 90 per cent of them by women. As the law becomes better known, more California women are expected to file job discrimination complaints, said FEPC director Paul A. Meaney this month.

In 1971 women's groups across the nation charged bias against women in hiring and promotion and filed suits and complaints against universities from Columbia and Harvard to the University of California, against government bodies, department stores and business and financial corporations. Some were class action suits and some were indivudal landmark decisions, such as Lorena Weeks vs. Southern Bell Telephone, in which she won the right to hold a switchmen's job and obtained all the back wages for the years she had been denied that higher paying job.

Just Wednesday Jules H. Gordon of the U.S. Equal Employment Opportunity Commission reported that the world's largest nongovernment bank, the Bank of America, pays women less for doing the same jobs as men. The report came after a group of women employees filed an anti-discrimination suit against the bank, whose headquarters are in San Francisco.

TOMORROW: Gains and losses.

Many Individual Victories In Women's Rights Field

By GAY PAULEY

NEW YORK (UPI)—On the women's liberation front, 1971 was a year of win a few, lose a few. The entire movement, launched with special momentum in 1970 to celebrate the 50th anniversary of women's suffrage, slowed a bit in '71. Most of the more significant breakthroughs by women were on the individual level.

Aug. 26 marked the 51st anniversary of the 19th Amendment to the Constitutuion. Rallies, celebrations and marches marked the day in towns large and small. The letters MS became the standard bearer of address in lieu of Miss or Mrs, the liberationists' way of saying no marital differentation.

But shadowing overall were news conferences and meetings called by the National Women's Political Caucus, a new coalition of women's rights groups. One of their goals—equal number of delegates at the 1972 political conventions.

ANOTHER WAS the perennial one: Enactment of the Equal Rights Amendment introduced in every Congress since 1923.

There were some forward governmental steps. In an Idaho probate case, the U.S. Supreme Court held that the "equal protection" clause of the 14th Amendment bars states from legally discriminating against women in naming them as administrators of estates.

As for the court itself, when two vacancies occurred there was a tremendous clamor for President Nixon to name at least one woman to the high bench. He didn't even with First Lady Pat Nixon among the rooters.

Aides of Mrs. Nixon said "naturally she was disappointed." But the president in an appearance before the National Federation of Republican Women said in part..."Let me say that at least we have made a beginning and there will be a woman on the Supreme Court in time."

Although there are no women in the president's cabinet, Nixon has named several women to high-ranking posts, including several "firsts."

AMONG THEM: former Congresswoman Catherine May Bedell, chairman of the U.S. Tariff Commission; former Congresswoman Charlotte Reid, the first women since 1948 to be named to the FCC; Mrs. Jayne Baker Spain, vice chairman of the Civil Service Commission, the first to be named in 10 years.

The President also named several women to the rank of general in the armed forces. And the Secret Service swore in five women agents.

Even so, Eleanor Flexner—examining the progress of women since the 19th Amendment in 1920—found that only one woman today serves in the U.S. Senate, only 12 in the House of Representatives.

No woman is now the elected governor of a state. Women mayors are rare, although this year Oklahoma City put into office, Mrs. Patience Latting, making her city the nation's largest in the country with a woman at the executive helm.

Two women led their nations through severe crises. They were Mrs. Golda Meir, prime minister of Israel, whose nation was embroiled in the continuing dispute in the Mid-East, and Prime Minister Indira Gandhi, who as the year ended led India through a two-week war with Pakistan.

THE NATION'S First Family, as usual, grabbed its share of the headlines, including the "wedding of the year." Tricia Nixon, the older daughter of the President, was married to Edward Finch Cox, the man she had described as "my first and last love." It was a June wedding with all the pomp and circumstance a presidential family could plan—the eighth involving a presidential daughter at the White House.

Rain for a time delayed the ceremony in the Rose Garden of the White House... but let up sufficiently for the 25-year-old bride to walk to the alter on her father's arm, radiant as a bride should be as she and Cox exchanged vows before a celebrated group of guests. It was the first outdoor wedding in the 171-year history of the Executive Mansion and united the president's daughter with the 24-year-old scion of Easterners whose ancestors trace to the leaders of the American Revolution.

About that wedding cake! The White House gave out the recipe, broken down to family proportions—a lot of food experts tested it, and found it wanting—something. Seems its batter overran the pan.

UPI's food editor Jeanne Lesem thought something was wrong with the egg content and observed that "the White House needs a good proofreader."

Anyway, the cake stood the test in its much larger proportions, came the big day.

YOU COULDN'T wrap up the domestic scene '71 without this note: Elizabeth Taylor Burton became a grandma. The baby whom grandma described as "gorgeous" is the daughter of the 39-year-old Miss Taylor's son, Michael H. Wilding. The actress once was the wife of the senior Wilding.

Strangely, as the names of personalities moved across the news stage, that of Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis cropped up without much sequence. She was photographed at parties, she went shopping, but mostly it seemed she'd moved out of the ever-constant spotlight—that is, until she went to court late in the year asking that action be taken to protect her from one stubborn photographer who, she said, kept her almost a prisoner in her Fifth Avenue apartment. The man was enjoined from continuing his quest for Jackie pictures.

Kate Webb Is 'Most Exciting'

SYDNEY (UPI)—The Australian magazine Woman's Day today named Kate Webb, United Press International manager for Cambodia, as one of its "most exciting women of the year."

Miss Webb's name was among the top 12 women of the year which included Britain's Princess Anne, singer Diahann Carroll, Mrs. Aristotle Onassis, swimmer Shane Gould and Wimbledon champion Evonne Goolagong.

"Kate Webb certainly proved to be one of the more dramatically exciting women of the year —and for reasons far removed from the glamor and glitter of most of the women who made the news in 1971," Woman's Day said.

Shirley Jones To Be Honorary Leader

Shirley Jones, singer and television and film star, will be the honorary chairman for the California Mothers' March to prevent birth defects, the North Bay Chapter of the March of Dimes has announced.

The Mothers' March of volunteers collecting funds for the March of Dimes will be held in January in Marin and across the nation.

Miss Rogers Lone Woman In Medex

Former San Rafael resident Patricia Rogers of Yelm, Wash., is the only woman in the country accepted into the Medex program.

The program is designed to train men and women with a background of medical experience in the armed forces to become assistants to physicians, usually in rural or remote areas, which have a shortage of doctors.

Miss Rogers, a native of Napa, studied for three months at the University of Washington and this month began on-the-job training, working for a year with a licensed physician in the Yelm area. Her specialized training follows four years as a medical service specialist in the Air Force. She worked in Marin as a licensed vocational nurse.

Span Shorter For Singles

LONDON (UPI)—A report submitted to Parliament says wives tend to live longer than unmarried women.

The report, prepared by Registrar-General Michael Reed, said more unmarried women than wives die between the ages of 25 and 64.

The report said statistics showed that more single women died from blood clots, strokes, pepetic ulcers, heart disease and intestinal trouble than their married counterparts.

It also said single women were more likely to get cancer of the breast or of the womb.

Miss Wieser Betrothal Is Told

Mrs. Arnold Wieser of Kentfield has announced the engagement of her daughter Ellen Wieser to Tom Lilienthal, son of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Lilienthal of Sleepy Hollow.

The engagement was announced during Christmas at Lake Tahoe, where the two families stayed for the holidays.

Ellen also is the daughter of the late Dr. Arnold Wieser. She was graduated from the University of Arizona and is a teacher in Oakland. She is the sister of Kathryn McGarr of Los Angeles and Marni and Beth Wieser of Kentfield.

Tom is attending California State College at Hayward and plans to receive a teaching credential in music. He is the brother of Peggy Linden of Rockville, Md., and Vicki Lilienthal of Berkeley.

The engaged pair are planning to be married next summer.

Wedding Plans For Miss Avilla

An Aug. 5 wedding is planned by Kellie Lee Avilla and Steven Lee Stanley, both of Novato.

The future bride is the daughter of Mrs. Ann Avilla of Novato and L. J. Avilla of Redlands. She is the sister of Louis John Ferrari of San Rafael and Gary Ferrari of Novato and the granddaughter of Mrs. Constance Avilla of Mill Valley. Kellie attends Novato High School.

Steven is the son of Mrs. Ellen Stanley of Novato and L.W. Stanley of San Rafael. His brother and sisters are Dennis, Cheryl, Michelle and Kimberly Stanley, and he is the grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Short of Mountain View. He is a graduate of Novato High School and works for Western California Telephone Company in Novato.

Answers To Inquiry About Dating And Unwed Mothers

DEAR HELEN AND SUE:

In reply to the letter from "Wondering" who asked how guys felt about dating unwed mothers, I can only speak for myself, but I say — it makes no difference.

I dated an unwed mother for over a year. She never tried to hide the facts, and I never blamed her. My case was a little different in that I'm sterile. The fact that she already had a child made her even more attractive to me, as I want desperately to be a father. However, there are thousands of men like me — and I'd guess that many would feel as I do. So the fact that a girl has a child is not much of a deterrent to a good marriage (unless the guy is a prude, in which case she wouldn't want him anyway).

DEAR RAP:

This is to "Wondering": I don't know whether you kept your baby or whether you had an abortion, but I had to write and tell you things will be better soon.

Last year I went through your same doubts, I gave up my baby for adoption. My folks wanted me to have an abortion and when I refused, they felt I'd ruined my life. They wanted to keep everything secret.

When I gave my baby away, I thought my life had ended. I was wrong. Soon after, I started dating again, and I learned to recognize the fellows who would understand and those who couldn't. There are plenty of both.

This year I met and married the most wonderful guy in the world. He knows all about my past and understands.

I have several friends who either had abortions or babies they gave up. They all agree with me when I say that if a man is worth having, to date or marry, he will not let the past keep him away. — SURE

DEAR RAP:

You showed a remarkable amount of common sense in your answers to "Doubtful" who got fleeced by a phony "witch." But you also desplayed a lack of knowledge of certain facts.

"Doubtful's" boyfriend was obviously not influenced by the actions of the "wicca," as she mistakenly termed some charlatan who fleeced her.

You see, today's so-called witches are a bunch of kooks who are supposed to go around casting "evil spells." This is far from the actual truth.

"Wicca" (meaning "wise one") can only be correctly applied to someone who follows a nature-and-fertility religion which dates back to Paleolithic times. It is a realistic, valid religion that places great emphasis on love and trust; it has nothing to do with worshipping the devil or any sort of similar nonsense.

True, its followers do believe they can work magic through the use of natural (not "super" natural) forces, just as Christians believe they can obtain miracles through prayer.

It would be interesting to see how different would be the reaction, if "Doubtful" had "gone to church" to get her guy back. If witchcraft is "superstition" then certainly so is religion.

In addition, it is against the rules of this "wicca" religion to accept money for achieving desired effects, so no witch ever victimizes anyone financially.

I hope this note has helped inform you of what witchcraft really is as opposed to popular misconceptions. — WISE ONE

DEAR WISE ONE:

Not really, but thanks for your interesting letter. — RAP

Some Tips On Proper Poultry Care

All poultry is perishable. Care and cleanliness should be used in the preparation, cooking, and serving of poultry products.

Left-over cooked poultry, broth, stuffing, and gravy should be separated, covered and refrigerated. Use within one to two days. Freeze for longer storage.

KATHERINE KNIGHT

Miss Knight Engagement Announced

Mr. and Mrs. Ted Knight of Tiburon have announced the engagement of their daughter, Katherine Mary, to Richard Dale Rusk of Rancho Cordova.

Kathy was graduated from Redwood High School and is a senior at University of California at Davis, majoring in philosophy and English. The bride-elect has three younger sisters, Paula, Susan and Laura Lee.

A graduate of Cordova High School, Richard is a senior at U.C. Davis, majoring in psychology and mathematics. He is affiliated with Delta Sigma Phi fraternity. Richard is the son of Mrs. Verle Rusk of Rancho Cordova and the late Mr. Rusk, and he is the brother of Mrs. Jay Crawford of Ridgecrest.

Popular Handbags Of Patent, Suede

Patent and suede are a popular combination for spring handbags, according to Women's Wear Daily. The combination pits the texture of suede with the sheen and gleam of patent and will be seen in clutch bags and shoulderbags.

Big On Campus

A big thing for the girls at Sarah Lawrence College is to wear a Brownie or Girl Scout uniform, reports Women's Wear Daily. The boys, it reports, go for shoulder bags or flag motif knapsacks, and both boys and girls sport multi-colored striped or patterned vests.

PIA LINDSTROM A BRIDE AGAIN

Former Bay Area television news personality Pia Lindstrom was wed to Joseph Daly Tuesday in a ceremony at St. Thomas More Church in New York. The bride's mother, actress Ingrid Bergman, attended the ceremony. Pia, also the daughter of Dr. Petter Lindstrom of Tiburon, was graduated from Mills College in Oakland and was previously married to the late Fuller (Clay) Callaway III. Her church wedding to Daly, a New York stockbroker, was in sharp contrast to the "spur of the moment" ceremony in the police radio room of the county jailin Elko, Nev., where she and Callaway were married.

New Year's Eve Party A Day Early

By MOLLY MARIN

Adm. (ret.) and Mrs. John F. Flynn have invited guests to a cocktail buffet tonight at their home in Corte Madera.

Among the 24 guests who will celebrate New Year's Eve a day in advance are Adm. (ret.) and Mrs. E. John MacGregor of Piedmont, Col. (ret.) and Mrs. Joseph L. McGerity and Mr. and Mrs. John K. Fulton of Mill Valley, Mayor and Mrs. Cornelius Van Vliet of Fairfax, Capt. and Mrs. Jack Reddy of San Francisco and Messrs. and Mmes. Thomas Clyde Huddleson and Jack I. Miller of Corte Madera.

The Flynns decided to have their party the evening before the traditional celebration, says Mrs. Flynn, because they felt it would be a safer time for their guests to be on the road.

PERDITA AVERY of Melbourne, Australia, arrived on Christmas day to join a family reunion at the Kenneth Merklin home in Tiburon. She lived with the Merklins in 1965 and 1966 when she was an American Field Service exchange student attending Redwood High School.

The Merklin's daughters, — Mrs. Scott Johnson of Davis and Mrs. Paul Hammel — and their husbands also spent the holiday with their parents. Rita Johnson and Perdita were classmates at Redwood High School.

Roma and Paul Hammel have been living in Washington, D.C., where he was stationed with the Navy. They are moving to Stanford, where he is enrolled for the winter quarter, which begins next month.

MR. AND MRS. Howard Ager of San Anselmo are vacationing in Sun City, Ariz.

A NEW YEAR'S EVE buffet supper for Sausalito Woman's club members and their friends who wish to celebrate the arrival of the new year together is being planned by club president Mrs. Walter C. Thomson, and Mr. Thomson and the James McCarthys. The supper served at 8:30 p.m. will be followed by dancing and toasting of the new year at midnight.

A "RECOVERY BRUNCH" on New Year's Day will be the first event of the new year for the Sausalito Yacht Club. The clubhouse will be open at 10 a.m. for members who wish to watch the football games, and the brunch will be served at 11 a.m. Carl Lischeske is chairman.

Cheese Logs— Simply, Quickly

To make cheese logs simply and quickly, cut package of cream cheese in half lengthwise. Coat one portion with chopped nutmeats, the other with snipped parsley or chives.

The trick is to put the nutmeats and cheese on a sheet of waxed paper, lifting the edges of the paper to toss the nuts onto the cheese.

Golden Anniversary Celebrated

Mr. and Mrs. Percival George Alford of San Rafael celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary at a family gathering Christmas Eve at the home of their daughter and son-in-law, Mayor and Mrs. C. Paul Bettini of San Rafael.

On Dec. 19 the Alfords were honored at a surprise party hosted by the Bettinis and the Alfords' other daughters and sons-in-law, Messrs. and Mmes. John Adams of Bristol, England, and Raymond Rossi of San Rafael. Guests at the party, held at Bel Marin Keys Yacht Club, included members of the English Women's Club of Marin.

Percival and Marjorie Sterling Alford came to San Rafael in 1951 from their native England. Prior to his retirement Mr. Alford was employed by Northwestern Pacific Railroad.

Grandchildren of the couple are Richard, David, Brian and Roger Bettini, Al and Janet Rossi and Angela Garten. They are great-grandparents of Alison Garten.

Mrs. Alford is vice-president of the Goldenaires Club in San Rafael, a group in which both are active members. She also is a member of the English Women's Club.

The Alfords' hobbies are bowling and gardening and both enjoy travel and frequently visit friends and relatives in England.

Hot Dog Bites

Hot dog bites rank high as a holiday appetizer on many points — popularity, cost and convenience. Reposing in a chafing dish in a zippy sauce, they stay hot and inviting an entire evening. But keep an eye on the chafing dish; it will need refilling. Either bite-size pieces of frankfurters or cocktail franks can be heated in barbecue sauce spiked with hot sauce.

Pat Nixon And The Blue Room

By HELEN THOMAS

WASHINGTON (UPI) —First Lady Pat Nixon's transformation of the Blue Room in the White House is expected to get under way in early February.

The so-called "Blue Room" became white on white under the restoration of former First Lady Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis in 1961.

Mrs. Nixon wants the historic salon refurbished in its former traditional style with blue walls and furnishings.

While the public shows more respect for White House belongings than those of the vandal-plagued John F. Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts, the mansion needs constant sprucing up to remain the pride of the nation.

WITH THE White House police on duty as guides and protectors, the possessions in the White House are not disturbed.

But chief housekeeper Shirley Bailey does have a complaint which she vents in Allen Drury's new book on the presidency, titled "Courage and Hesitation."

"I find it kind of embarrassing and rather heartbreaking, how the public treats this house," Mrs. Bailey told the author.

"Of course I know they regard it as theirs, and of course it is, but people will put children on antique chairs, they will sit down and eat food and scatter crumbs on the rugs.

"THEY WILL touch the tapestries and wallpaper and get them dirty," she bemoaned.

"They will throw cigarette butts in the fireplaces. There seems to be little real respect among the public who visit here. We have police stationed all over the house to warn them, but it doesn't seem to make too much difference. I wish there was some way to convince them that this is an historical house and they should take care of it."

And yet there seems to be none of the same proprietary air that has afflicted some visitors to the Kennedy Center, who have snipped the rug and clipped the crystals from some of the magnificent chandeliers.

Curator Clement Conger, who is in constant quest of priceless furnishings for the first house in the land, said that the President and Mrs. Nixon" were terribly upset at how down-at-the-heel the place looked when they came in."

"THE JOHNSONS seemed almost afraid to change anything left by the Kennedys for fear they would be criticized by the press and the public," said Conger. "But the Nixons are very much interested in seeing the house brought up to its full perfection.

"They want it to be the most beautiful home in America."

Patrons, Drivers Like New Buses

By MARY LEYDECKER

"Two bits to go anywhere in the county! People are crazy not to take the bus," and "Oh, boy, now we can go bowling," are comments typical of passengers on Marin's new local bus system. (See another story, page 1.)

One driver, Ray Skinner, who formerly drove Greyhound buses out of San Jose, said, "People are nicer in Marin. We get more 'good mornings, goodbyes and thank yous'."

Jerome Kuykendall Golden Gate Bridge District's transportation developer, confirmed that things are going well — better than district officials had dared hope — with the intracounty bus system now almost three weeks old.

"We are very pleased with the acceptance by the public as well as the operation itself," Kuykendall said.

Seven local routes are now in operation Monday through Friday and served by 23 buses. Tomorrow a vastly expanded commuter service to San Francisco and Santa Rosa will replace the old Greyhound lines, and the two services will link at numerous points.

On a sunny afternoon this week the enthusiasm of passengers and the cheerfulness of the driver made the trip from Peacock Gap to Fairfax almost a festive occasion.

First to board the bus, which runs every half hour, was a group of 10-year-old boys, headed for the movies. Only one had been on the buses before.

As the boys boarded the bus, they learned from driver Skinner that the exact change for fare (15 cents for youngsters through age 16 and senior citizens and 25 cents for adults) was necessary. (Children under 5 ride free.)

"Maybe your buddy can pay for you and you can pay him back," Skinner suggested to one boy who had only a $1 bill.

FRONT VIEW — Riders on the new Golden Gate Bridge District buses see this view as they head down San Rafael's Fourth Street on the Number 23 run from Peacock Gap to Fairfax. Those riding the bus express enthusiasm not only about the buses themselves, the convenient routes but also the pleasant drivers.

This settled, the boys took front seats, examined schedules and found to their excitement, they could arrange a transfer so they could go bowling on another day.

Children on the way to outings, teen-age girls with armloads of packages to exchange, older women who chatted quietly, young couples with babies and even people on the way to afternoon jobs made up the afternoon's passenger load.

The questions were numerous — most riders seemed to be using the new bus for the first time. As the driver pulled into the transfer point at Fourth and Hetherton streets, other buses were ready and waiting to take passengers either north or south in the county.

Three teen-age girls loaded with parcels who wanted to go to Terra Linda were told the northbound buses were on the right side of the street. They then had to ask, "Is Terra Linda north?"

A driver change quickly took place at this stop, and the new driver, John McMillen of Petaluma, wryly made a faceas he looked at the pileup of traffic on Fourth Street. He explained earlier schedules had been revised when bus officials learned how long it takes to maneuver through the downtown traffic.

At San Anselmo, riders got another chance to transfer, either for Sleepy Hollow or south to Corte Madera and Sausalito. Most did so with only a few taking the full ride to Fairfax.

Each day, he said, patronage has increased on the seven routes, which also include runs from Mill Valley to San Marin, Sausalito to San Marin, Sausalito to Belvedere, East Corte Madera to Sleepy Hollow, Santa Venetia to Terra Linda and the Civic Center to Novato.

There are several transfer points at which riders may change to other routes, giving wide variety of possible choices.

The first day of bus service on Dec. 13 carried about 1,000 passengers (about double the average daily patronage of the old Marin Transit Systems Inc. buses). By Tuesday, the new buses carried 2,909 passengers in the daily runs. Kuykendall said he predicts a continuing rise as more Marin residents learn how to use the service.

'Jekyl, Hyde' To Kick off Film Series

Director Rouben Mamoulian's classic 1932 horror film, "Dr. Jekyl and Mr. Hyde," starring Frederic March, will open the Sausalito Youth Center's 1972 Friday Night at the Movies series on Jan. 7.

All films in the series will be presented at 8 p.m. in the youth center's new location in Central School, Caledonia and Bee streets.

Other films planned include: Jan. 14, "A Woman Rebels" (1936), with Katherine Hepburn and Herbert Marshall; Jan. 21, "The Strong Man," (1926); Jan. 28, "The Devil Is a Woman," (1935), starring Marlene Dietrich; Feb. 4, "Duck Soup," with the Marx Brothers; Feb. 11, "Phantom of the Opera" (1925) with Lon Chaney Sr.

Also scheduled are : Feb. 18, "Tarzan the Ape Man," Feb. 25, "Masque of the Red Death,"; March 3, "Hollywood Revue of 1929", starring Joan Crawford, Marion Davies, Marie Dressler, John Gilbert, Buster Keaton, Laurel and Hardy, Norma Shearer and Conrad Nagel.

'Claire' Is Named Best 1971 Film

NEW YORK (UPI)—The French film "Claire's Knee" was named the outstanding picture of 1971 Wednesday by the National Society of Film Critics. Bernardo Bertolucci was named best director for "The Conformist."

The society, made up of 24 critics from national publications, named Jane Fonda the best actress for her performance in "Klute" and Peter Finch the best actor for "Sunday, Bloody Sunday."

"Le Chargin et la Pietie" was given a special award for a film of extraordinary public interest and distinction.

Other awards by the national society:

— Best supporting actor, Bruce Bern, "Drive, He Said."

—Best supporting actress, Ellen Burstyn, "The Last Picture Show."

—Best screenplay, Penelope Gilliatt, "Sunday, Bloody Sunday."

Rome Tries Free Bus Ride Plan

ROME (UPI)—The city fathers turned Rome into a city of freeloaders today with free bus rides for everyone in an effort to end the eternal traffic problem. First indications were the plan was working—there were even a few parking places on the side streets.

The city's two bus companies began the nine-day experiment in hopes of unclogging the streets of downtown Rome and persuading Romans that buses make more sense than cars in traveling in and out of the city center.

For Romans used to double parking and traffic snarls on main streets into the downtown area, there were two surprises —buses were making their trips faster and newsmen spotted several unfilled parking spots on side streets.

The No. 61 bus, which runs about two miles from the northeastern section of Rome to the main post office, made the trip Wednesday in 43 minutes. Today it did the trip in 27 minutes.

"I couldn't believe it would work so well," passenger Claudia Esposito said.

the idea has been kicked around for some time, but this was the first time anyone decided to try it. Other Italian cities, notably Milan and Turin, were watching the experiment closely to see whether they also might try free bus transport.

The two bus companies, Atac and Stefer, will continue the experiment until midnight Jan. 7. The free ride deal does not apply to existing subway lines or to some suburban bus service where a fare of about 10 cents is required between midnight and 6 a.m.

Modern Bridge District Buses Offer Luxury And Roominess

The air-conditioned green and white coaches not only are spanking new, but have far more leg and hip room than Greyhound buses.

The fleet consists of 132 new coaches and 20 leased Greyhound buses built since 1965. Of these 20, only the three that have been used to feed the Sausalito ferry have been repainted with district colors. The remaining 17 will retain Greyhound colors, but the district's symbol will replace Greyhound's.

All 20 Greyhound buses are to be replaced with additional new district coaches in about five months.

The district also owns two traditionally furnished buses being used for the Sausalito ferry feeder service.

Of the 132 new coaches, 112 are the "suburban" type with high-back reclining seats, eight of them turned sideways in the front of the bus to speed loading on shorter runs.

Each has 45 seats, eight fewer than usual to give extra leg room.

The district's bus transit manager, H. Donald White, proudly points to the fact that the fleet is the only completely new one in existence with the "environmental improvement package" developed by General Motors to assure the latest emission and sound controls.

Virtually invisible emissions come out a vertical exhaust at the top of the rear of the bus, and the sound controls eliminate most of the engine noise so common to older buses.

While also points with pride at the little touches — such as the bright white light outside the door to illuminate the sidewalk stops at night.

Specifications for the two types of coach generally are identical, except that at 23,260 pounds curb weight the suburban type weighs 860 pounds. more than the transit type. The weight difference is largely in the seats and flooring. Inside, there are four different color combinations and fluorescent lighting.

There is no provision for advertising, inside or out.

All of this costs — with the price tag over $47,000 for each of the 112 suburban coaches and over $45,000 for the 20 transit models.

But these and other costs of the bus system are to be offset by a $6.1 million federal grant to cover two-thirds of the cost of the initial system.

Other specifications for the technically minded follow:

ENGINE — Transversely mounted, 565 cubic-inch diesel V-8 developing 235 horsepower at 2,000 rpm and capable of maintaining at least 23 miles an hour on the Waldo Grade with a full seated load, and able to negotiate occasional grades up to 12 per cent.

TRANSMISSION — Fully automatic.

BRAKES — Drum forward and rear.

TIRES — Tubeless 12.5x22.5, single in front and double in rear; leased from Firestone at a cost of one cent per mile per tire, including servicing.

FUEL — One 125-gallon tank, with consumption at about five and a half miles per gallon.

SUSPENSION — Air.

AIR-CONDITIONSING — Ten-ton capacity.

DIMENSIONS — Length, 40 feet; width, 102 inches; minimum headroom in center aisle, 76 inches; seat width, 38 inches; aisle width, 18 inches, turning radius, 42 feet, six inches.

FARE BOX — Exact change only; no change.

RADIOS — Two-way system to be installed on all coaches.

Senator Spong Says Soap Safer

WASHINGTO (UPI)—After conducting months of hearings on cleaning products, Sen. William B. Spong Jr., D-Va., concluded that common soap is safer than non-phosphates and more wholesome to the environment than phosphates.

Soap can cause environmental problems, Spong said Wednesday, "bat these are generally less worrisome than those associated with phosphates."

Spong said the evidence from hearings before the Senate Commerce subcommittee he chairs led him to believe that "soap is a safer product than all of the major currently marketed non-phosphates. While it is no safer than many of the phosphate products, it is superior environmentally."

BIRTHDAY QUIZ

By GORDON B. GREB

Guess who was born today Dec. 30, and became famous as:

1. A great 19th Century English writer? Born in Bombay, this Nobel prize winner won international acclaim for his stories, poems, and novels about English life in India, making famous "Wee Willie Winkie" and "Gunga Din": (A) Rudyard Kipling; (B) Joseph Conrad; (C) Arthur Conan Doyle.

2. A network radio and TV personality? Now the master of ceremonies for the annual coronation of "Miss America," this 57-year old entertainer got his start on the "Eddie Cantor Show" and hit the jackpot with "Stop the Music": (A) Jimmy Wallington; (B) Don Wilson; (C) Bert Parks.

3. A Big League baseball champion? One of baseball's greatest pitchers, this lefthander for the Los Angeles Dodgers (36 today) holds the all-time major league record for strikeouts, 382 in one season: (A) Bob Feller; (B) Sandy Koufax; (C) Claude Osteen.

4. An American philanthropist? A former U.S. Senator, this wealthy industrialist and his wife decided to do something to honor their son, establishing a foundation whose assets today exceed $25 million:
(A) Leland Stanford; (B) Simon Guggenheim; (C) Henry Ford.

ANSWERS

1-A (Rudyard Kipling); 2-C (Bert Parks); 3-B (Sandy Koufax); 4-B (Simon Guggenheim).

HOW TO PLAY

WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

Don't Blame Your Luck When Chances For Victory Go Sour

"You say that there is virtually no such thing as luck at the bridge table, writes a distraught reader. "How would you explain what happened to my partner in the accompanying hand? The odds were 10 to 1 in his favor, but still he went down."

South dealer
Both sides vulnerable

NORTH

◇ A 4
♣ 9 7 6 5

South	West	North	East
1 NT	Pass	3 NT	All Pass

Opening lead — ◇ Q

TOP DIAMOND

West led the queen of diamonds, and East won the first trick with the king. My partner had to win the next diamond with the ace.

"South then led two top clubs, discovering that he would have to win the third club in dummy and the fourth club in his own hand, with no way to get back to dummy for the fifth club.

FINESSE TRY

"He tried a finesse with the queen of spades before going on with the clubs, but West took the king of spades and three more diamond tricks.

"My partner pointed out that only a diamond lead could give him any trouble, and then only if the opening leader had five or more diamonds. Even then the hand would be easy if the clubs broke 2-2 or if East had the king of spades.

"Isn't it bad luck when all of these chances go sour?"

LUCK IS RELATIVE

Luck is a relative term. South's method of playing the hand was lucky for the defenders and unlucky for the poor dummy. It's meaningless to call South himself either lucky or unlucky: He simply misplayed the hand.

After winning the second diamond with the ace and cashing two top clubs, South should lead a diamond from the dummy, discarding a club from his own hand.

SAFE ACTION

This is safe since only three diamonds are still out. Whenever West has finished with the diamonds, South can win any return and lead his sole remaining club to dummy. Then dummy can stay in the lead with the three and deuce of clubs. South makes his game with five clubs, one diamond, two hearts and one spade.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with one heart, and the next player passes.

You hold:
♠ - K 10 4 3
♥ - 10 7 2
♦ - Q J 10 9 7
♣ - 10.

What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid two hearts.

Winning Ticket Is Stolen In Purse

NEW YORK (UPI)—Holda Johannson, 66, cried Tuesday when told that her Irish Sweepstakes ticket had won $52,000. Her purse containing that ticket had been snatched a month ago by a young thief as she walked down a Manhattan street.

But the Brooklyn widow's story may have a happy ending. The seller of the ticket said he still has the receipt and Mrs. Johannson will get the money if she can provide positive identification.

An Answer To Sewage Woes

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—A team of consulting engineers Tuesday proposed a twopronged answer to sewage-disposal problems in south San Francisco Bay.

It called for the discharge of highly treated effluent into the bay north of the Dumbarton Bridge and utilization of a potential market for up to 130 million gallons of reclaimed water a day in the South Bay Area.

Marin's Top 1971 News Stories

By FRANK FARRARA

One of Marin County's landmarks went up in flames during 1971 and another experienced the darkest day in its history as six men met violent death.

On a May evening, the 98-year-old Marin County courthouse in downtown San Rafael was wrecked by an arsonist's fire. In an ignoble anticlimax, the structure was razed by wrecking crews and its place is now marked for a city parking lot.

Meanwhile, San Quentin Prison, a Marin fixture for more than a century, was shaken by a burst of violence that left three prisoners and three guards dead and brought calls for the prison to be abandoned.

While the old structures met with tragedy, the county's $4.1 million Veterans Memorial Building came to life with a flourish, a sea of champagne and a premiere performance by the Marin Symphony Orchestra and soprano Dorothy Kirsten.

In another major development of 1971, a disastrous oil spill in San Francisco Bay sparked increased concern for the environment — a concern that also saw the Regional Water Quality Control Board ban new construction in Southern Marin and much of the Ross Valley.

Weary travelers looked forward to a new look in transportation as the Golden Gate Bridge District jumped into the bus business with a fleet of shiny buses, running locally now and scheduled to go into full commuter operations Jan. 3.

Labor problems also were in the news in Marin this year as Mill Valley city employees, except police and firemen, walked a picket line and lay teachers at Marin Catholic High School walked off the job as part of a Bay Area strike against the San Francisco Archdiocese. And a 19-month-long strike by San Francisco Typographical Union 21 against the Independent-Journal came to an end.

Voters kept the purse strings tight, trouncing the Marin Municipal Water District's plan to join the Sonoma-Marin aqueduct project and failing to give two-thirds support to the Marin Community College District's $16.7 million bond measure.

State politicians wrangled over reapportionment of senatorial and assembly districts, and at year's end, Marinites still wondered how their districts would shape up.

The cases of black militant Angela Davis and San Quentin inmate Ruchell Magee lingered throughout the year, a persistent reminder of the Aug. 7, 1970, shoot-out at the Marin Civic Center in which Superior Court Judge Harold J. Haley and three others died.

A capsule report of the events of 1971, month by month, follows:

JANUARY

Black militant Angela Davis was linked to guns used in the Aug. 7, 1970, shootout at the Marin Civic Center which ended in the death of Superior Court Judge Harold J. Haley, two convicts and their accomplice. She charged she was a "political prisoner."

Two large Standard Oil Co. tankers collided in fog and darkness under the Golden Gate Bridge and spilled hundreds of thousands of gallons of oil into bay waters. The massive oil slick was the most disastrous in the bay's history.

Thousands of volunteers gathered at Marin shorelines in an effort to save the lives of birds caught in the oil slick, clean beaches and save Bolinas Lagoon from the spreading oil.

The First Presbyterian Church of San Rafael, a 74-year-old landmark was slated to be razed, but a group of congregation members started a battle to save it.

Jean Varda, Sausalito's grand old man of art, died at 77 while vacationing in Mexico, and the Rev. Ilion T. Jones, professor emeritus of practical theology at San Francisco Theological Seminary in San Anselmo, died at his home in Novato after a short illness at the age of 81.

FEBRUARY

In the Reed School District, scene of struggle between advocates of traditional and progressive education, a move got under way to recall Gordon C. Wright, chairman of the district board.

Nature Conservancy acquired the Slide Ranch, 133 acres of rocky coastline north of Muir Beach, and received a gift of 540 acres of rolling, brush-covered land east of Muir Beach from George W. Wheelwright III.

An escaped San Quentin inmate kidnapped two Novato housewives, one the wife of a Novato police officer, and two children and took them on a harrowing, 400-mile ride to Southern California before releasing them.

A 32-year-old San Anselmo man tested security at the Marin Civic Center by attempting to enter with what appeared to be bomb components, including a clock, hidden in a grapefruit. He was arrested.

Fred R. Dickson, 70, warden at San Quentin from 1957 to 1964, died of a heart attack in Vacaville.

MARCH

Army officials announced that four Nike-Hercules missile sites in Marin would be shut down — a battery in San Rafael, two at Fort Cronkhite and 2nd Battalion Headquarters at Fort Baker — and 270 men would be transferred to other Army Air Defense Command posts.

The Golden Gate Bridge District recommended a $331.5 million start on a bus, rapid transit and ferry system.

The Department of Defense announced closing of the 876-acre Two Rock Army Station, west of Petaluma, as an economy move by June 30, affecting 83 civilian employees and 332 military personnel.

Efforts to begin a hearing in the Angela Davis case at the Marin County Hall of Justice were thwarted twice by telephoned bomb threats, and hundreds of her supporters, chanting and making speeches, gathered outside the building.

County Administrator Alan Bruce recommended firing of Dr. Carolyn B. Albrecht, Marin County health officer for almost 17 years, because of allegedly inept management of the department.

APRIL

Marin County officials flew to Washington, D.C., to meet with Air Force and Federal Aviation Agency officials seeking joint civilian-military air use at Hamilton Air Force Base.

The Marin Community College District chose Ernest H. Berg, 51, president of the College of Alameda in the Peralta Community College District, to head the district's north campus.

Gordon C. Wright, chairman of the Reed School District board, was recalled and Dr. John J. Osborn, a heart specialist, elected as his successor.

A bomb rocked the Bank of America branch in Mill Valley, a blast occurred at Tamalpais High School and the office of Principal Raymond J. Bell was set afire.

The Coast Guard won approval from the Department of Transportation to take over the Two Rock Army Station, west of Petaluma, effective June 30.

Russ Hodges, radio voice of the New York and San Francisco Giants for 22 years, died at Marin General Hospital after suffering a heart attack at his Mill Valley home. He was 60.

MAY

Thirty-seven peace demonstrators were arrested after they refused to disperse from a sit-in at the San Rafael office of the Selective Service.

JUNE

A minor league naval engagement erupted on Richardson Bay when houseboat dwellers, seeking to prevent county officials from seizing vessels that didn't conform to county codes, battled sheriff's deputies and the Coast Guard.

The state attorney general's office ruled the state wasn't responsible for paying any of the expected $1.5 million costs for trying Angela Davis and San Quentin inmate Ruchell Magee in connection with the Aug. 7, 1970, shoot-out. Miss Davis was denied a bid for bail and her lawyers said they would seek to move her trial to another county.

The Regional Water Quality Control Board banned new construction throughout much of Southern Marin until a subregional sewage system is completed. Limited building would be permitted as sewage pollution was reduced, the board said.

Donald R. Frost resigned as county public works director after nine years to become public works director and county water agency director for Yuba County.

JULY

Dr. James M. Stubblebine, former Marin psychiatrist, was named state director of mental hygiene.

The Air Force agreed to permit limited air commuter service out of Hamilton Air Force Base. Flights to San Francisco International Airport by Golden Pacific Airlines were envisioned.

The Marin Civic Ballet Association reported it had received a $350,000 grant to build a headquarters in the proposed cultural center area of the Marin County Civic Center.

The San Rafael Military Academy, beset with financial woes, closed after 80 years as a preparatory school, and a special board was set up to consider opening an Episcopal high school on the site in 1972.

More than 500 employees of the Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Co. in Marin joined a nationwide strike of telephone workers.

The Regional Water Quality Control Board placed a ban on new construction in most of Ross Valley, with limited exceptions. It was similar to the ban imposed earlier in Southern Marin.

AUGUST

Offices of the Marin County Housing Authority and Redevelopment Agency were picketed by Marin City residents because the agencies held a series of secret meetings.

A 33-day strike by city employees in Mill Valley ended as all employees won a $50-a-month pay raise.

San Quentin Prison had what officials described as the "blackest day" in its history when three guards and three prisoners, including Soledad Brother George Jackson, died during an abortive escape attempt.

A warrant was issued for the arrest of an East Bay attorney, Stephen M. Bingham, the last man to visit San Quentin inmate George Jackson before the prison violence erupted. Bingham was believed to have smuggled a gun to Jackson, setting off the chain of events that led to six deaths.

William W. Ward, regional disaster office chief for the state, warned Marin supervisors that the county's disaster plan was only a "skeleton" and cities in Marin had no plans at all, leaving Marin in effect without a plan in the event of a disaster.

SEPTEMBER

Marin residents called for a minimum of auto travel at Point Reyes National Seashore and an expansion of the wilderness area. Under discussion was a National Park Service master plan for the seashore.

Two homes in Corte Madera were destroyed and a third was badly damaged after a car battery charger exploded.

The Renaissance Center announced plans to recreate an Elizabethan village on a 1,000-acre ranch in Lucas Valley and ran into almost unanimous opposition from valley residents.

Marin County's $4.1 million Veterans Memorial Building opened with a gala concert featuring the Marin Symphony Orchestra and soprano Dorothy Kirsten.

Reports leaked out that Fairfax Police Chief James R. Orr had been asked to resign or face dismissal.

George R. Scott, 74, of Mill Valley, longtime Marin County labor leader, died after a long illness, and Edward Z. Lewis, 58, president of the Bolinas Stinson School District Board, collapsed and died while playing tennis in Stinson Beach.

Independent-Journal shop employees voted unanimously against representation by the San Francisco typographical union, and the National Labor Relations Board approved the result, ending a 19-month strike marked by widespread violence, including the murder of an I-J employee, attacks on persons and property of other I-J employees and vandalism against property of I-J advertisers, crimes for which several members of unions were jailed or imprisoned.

Asst. County Administrator John F. Barrows was appointed county administrator, succeeding Alan Bruce, by a 3-2 vote of Marin supervisors.

OCTOBER

The Marin Hospital District Board endorsed an architect's proposal to expand Marin General Hospital by adding an eight-story wing estimated to cost $12 million.

Commerce Clearing House, publisher of law books, opened a $6 million three-story office building on Quail Hill overlooking the Northgate area.

Voters of four fringe areas of Tiburon — Strawberry, Bel Aire, Eagle Rock and Bay View — defeated the city's bid for annexation.

Residents of Upper Lucas Valley mounted a campaign against the proposal to have an old English village and the Renaissance Pleasure Faire in Lucas Valley.

The Audubon Canyon Ranch announced plans to purchase 42 acres of Tomales Bay tidelands and to acquire a nine-acre cypress grove, north of Marshall, as a gift.

The Fairfax City Council backed the firing of Police Chief James R. Orr by City Adm. Robert E. Crowe. The ouster was appealed by the chief.

Senate leaders backed a bipartisan reapportionment plan that would leave Marin wholly intact in a new district including north and west San Francisco and part of San Mateo. Earlier plans would have divided the county. Sen. Peter H. Behr, R-San Rafael, and Sen. Milton Marks, R-San Francisco, would clash for the district seat if the plan were adopted.

NOVEMBER

The Marin County Planning Commission rejected the controversial Renaissance Center proposal for Upper Lucas Valley, and Phyllis and Ronald Patterson, its creators, dropped the plan.

Judge Richard E. Arnason transferred the Angela Davis case to Santa Clara County because he said there was reasonable likelihood she couldn't get a fair trail in Marin.

Voters rejected the Marin Municipal Water District's proposal to participate in the Sonoma-Marin aqueduct project by a nine-to-one ratio.

The Marin Community College District's $16.7 million bond proposal to complete the Kentfield campus and start a north campus near Novato failed to get the needed two-thirds vote.

Youths in the 18-21 age bracket voted for the first time and the turnout was at the same ratio as their elders — 49 per cent.

The nearly century-old Marshall Hotel, once a haven for rum runners, was destroyed by fire. Twenty five occupants escaped unharmed.

Tiburon City Councilman Anne L. Ellinwood announced her candidacy for the Third District supervisorial seat held by Michael Wornum of Mill Valley.

Nineteen lay teachers at Marin Catholic High School in Kentfield, members of the Secondary Teachers Association, went on strike in a salary dispute, but the school remained open.

Herb Madden Sr., owner of Sausalito Yacht Harbor, withdrew plans for a $3 million expansion of the 425-berth harbor, blaming conditions set by the city planning commission.

Leon G. Kalimos, building manager, objected to permitting a rock concert at the Veterans Memorial Building. But it went on and resulted in damage from cigarette burns, spilled drinks and scuff marks.

Sausalito's 96-year-old history as a railroad town ended when the last train ran over the 7.2-mile branch line to Corte Madera.

Dr. Charna Perry, physician in Sausalito for 50 years, died in Greenbrae at the age of 77, and James Doyle, former Sausalito police chief, died in San Francisco after a long illness at the age of 87.

DECEMBER

Angela Davis, who had spent almost a year in Marin County Jail, was whisked in a predawn rainstorm to a cell in Santa Clara County jail in Palo Alto.

The old Sea Beach Hotel on Shoreline Highway in Stinson Beach, built in 1915, was destroyed by a flash fire.

Justus F. Craemer, co-owner of the Independent-Journal who died in 1966, was named to the California Newspaper Hall of Fame by the California Press Association.

Irate Marin City residents fought the Marin County Redevelopment Agency over proposed transfer of valuable ridgelands in the community to California Development Co.

Marin Community College District trustees voted to press ahead with construction of Indian Valley Colleges and to levy a construction tax rate of 42.8 cents per $100 assessed valuation.

The Golden Gate Bridge District started its local bus service and announced full commuter service would start Jan. 3.

Bay Area Pollution Control District directors were caught in a turmoil. In the midst of a move to fire their legal officer, Matthew S. Walker, they were confronted with a demand that their top administrator, D. J. Callaghan, be fired instead.

Fairfax Police Chief James R. Orr was charged with favoritism toward a policewoman, drunkenness, failing to set up necessary police procedures, threatening officers and a cadet and dismissing parking tickets without justification in a series of hearings on his firing, which recessed in mid-month.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

British Physician Lind Was Father Of Nautical Medicine

James Lind, physician to the Royal Navy, is known as the father of nautical medicine. He served at a time when England's global colonization and expansion of world trade was at its height. Conditions aboard ship, such as pestilence, scurvy, and foul quarters, also disturbed him. Radical reforms were needed if Britain was to continue as ruler of the sea.

The practical experience of Dr. Lind led to much needed changes. But he will go down in history for his controlled research on the value of fruits and vegetables as a cure for scurvy. Many antiscurvy agents were uncovered by the Britisher, including green vegetables, sauerkraut, onions, wine, and cider. But the best remedy turned out to be the juice of citrus fruits.

THESE FRUITS tend to spoil on long trips. Furthermore, they are not always obtainable at every port. But Lind solved this problem. He squeezed the oranges and lemons, and allowed the liquid portion to evaporate, leaving the rob, or extract which was bottled and preserved.

Captain James Cook confirmed Dr. Lind's observations. On a voyage lasting three years, Cook lost only one man, but not of scurvy. We do not know whether Lind accidentally discovered the relationship between citrus fruits and scurvy. In all probability, he heard or read that 16th century sailors used these fruits for this purpose.

DR. LIND also insisted upon cleanliness for the sick on board — "a bath, clean clothes, and clean bedding." And he also recommended a regular ration of extract of cinchona, a Peruvian bark containing quinine.

Today it may sound elementary, but Lind discovered that the steam arising from boiling sea water was perfectly fresh. On long voyages the crew need not worry about the lack of drinking water. All they had to do was to distill salt water from the sea.

Questions on medical topics will be answered by mail if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request to Independent-Journal.

WORRY AND GRAYING

P. S. writes: Does worry cause gray hair? I have been in a stew about my grades since I began high school. Now at 17, I have so many gray hairs I can't pull them out fast enough.

REPLY

There are instances in which worry contributed to graying hair but it takes more than high school study. Most of us find a few gray hairs from teen-age on. If you have more than the average, decide you are going to be prematurely gray and make the most of this distinction. If the grayness is distrubing your peace of mind, why not have your hair tinted?

TENSION BRING SYMPTOMS

T. D. writes: Could insomnia, restlessness, and depression be caused by nervous tension?

REPLY

PAIN IN ARMPIT

C. C. writes: What causes pain in the armpit?

REPLY

Infection, or swelling of the lymph glands is the most likely origin. Now and then it stems from the strain of too much exercise.

ASTHMA AND AIR TRAVEL

R. L. writes: Can people with asthma travel by plane?

REPLY

Athmatics can fly provided they are not short of breath, or in an acute asthmatic state immediately before making the trip.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that the Board of Directors of North Marin County Water District will conduct a public hearing on the matter of the proposed annexation to said District of the inhabited territory hereinafter described and designated by the Local Agency Formation Commission of Marin County as "Town of Marshall Annexation," at 8 o'clock p.m., P.S.T., on Tuesday, January 18, 1972, at the office of the District, 999 Atherton Avenue, Novato, California. Said hearing will be held pursuant to and on the matters stated in Resolution No. 917 of the Board of Directors of said District adopted on December 7, 1971, which resolution reads as follows:

Legal Notice

'RESOLUTION NO. 917
RESOLUTION OF THE BOARD OF DIRECTORS OF NORTH MARIN COUNTY WATER DISTRICT INITIATING PROCEEDINGS FOR THE ANNEXATION OF TERRITORY TO NORTH MARIN COUNTY WATER DISTRICT, FIXING THE TIME AND PLACE OF A PUBLIC HEARING THEREON, AND DIRECTING THE GIVING OF NOTICE THEREOF.

BE IT RESOLVED by the Board of Directors of North Marin County Water District as follows:

1. This Board of Directors does hereby find and declare that:

(a) Preliminary proceedings for the annexation to North Marin County Water District of the territory hereinafter described were commenced by the petition of property owners. Thereafter on November 10, 1971, following a public hearing the Local Agency Formation Commission of the County of Marin adopted its Resolution No. 71-43 making a determination approving said annexation.

(b) The distinctive short form designation assigned by the Commission to the territory proposed to be annexed is "Town of Marshall Annexation." A description of the exterior boundaries of said territory is set forth in Exhibit A attached hereto and incorporated herein.

(c) The said territory is inhabited.

(d) The reason for the propsoed annexation is to provide for a community water supply system and a community sewage disposal system to said territory.

(e) The terms and conditions of the proposed annexation are as follows: None

2. Tuesday, January 18, 1972, at 8:00 P.M. at the North Marin County Water District office, 999 Atherton Avenue, Novato, Marin County, California, is hereby fixed as the date, time and place of a public hearing on the proposed annexation.

3. Any interested person desiring to make written protest against said annexation shall do so by written communication filed with the Secretary of the District at the offices of the District at 999 Atherton Avenue, Novato, California, not later than 8:00 P.M. on January 18, 1972. A written protest by a landowner shall contain a description sufficient to identify that land owned by him; a protest by a voter shall contain the residential address of such voter.

4. The Secretary is hereby directed to give notice of said hearing as required by Chapter 2 of Part 5 of the District Reorganization Act of 1965.

EXHIBIT A

. . .beginning at the most southerly corner of that certain parcel of land described in the deed to Oscar Johansson et al, as recorded in Vol. 1175 of Official Records at page 384, being a point on the exterior line of Tideland Survey No. 234 and the easterly terminus of that certain course bounding the North Marin County Water District described as 'EAST a distance of 116.8 feet to the most southerly corner of said parcel' and running thence along the easterly boundary of said Johannson parcel, and the southeasterly boundary of the Water District, NORTH a distance of 63.36 feet to the northeasterly corner thereof and Station 7 of Tideland Survey 99 which station 7 lies on the southerly boundary of the lands described in deed to Hall as recorded in Vol. 1174 of Official Records at page 167, Marin County Records. Continuing thence along the southerly boundary of said Hall parcel, North 82° 15' East, a distance of 415.8 feet and North 44° 15' East a distance of 114 feet to the westerly corner of the lands of Paul and Catherine Keeney as said lands are described in the deed recorded in Vol. 1216 of Official Records at page 325, Marin County Records. Continuing thence along the southwesterly boundaries of said lands of Keeney, South 62° 32' East, a distance of 265 feet and North 71° 26' East a distance of 106.0 feet to the most southeasterly corner of said lands of Keeney and a point on the westerly line of California State Highway No. 1 (Shoreline Highway).

Continuing thence North 71° 26' East a distance of 50 feet more or less to the centerline of said California State Highway No. 1 and following said centerline and the boundary of the North Marin County Water District, southerly and southeasterly a distance of 1350 feet, more or less, to their intersection with the northeasterly prolongation of the southeasterly boundary of that certain parcel of land described in the deed from Summerfield to Summerfield as recorded in the office of the County Recorder for the County of Marin in Vol. 1105 of Official Records at page 309, thence South 77° 43' West, 195 feet, more or less to the exterior line of Tidelands Survey 99 and the line of Mean Low Water of Tomales Bay, thence northerly and northwesterly, following the meanderings of the line of Mean Low Water on the easterly shore of Tomales Bay, 1653.69 feet more or less to the point of beginning, comprising an area of 12.3 acres, more or less.

Any person may appear at the hearing and present any matters material to the subject thereof.

Written protests against the formation of the propsoed annexation, signed and acknowledged or proved in the manner required to entitle deeds to be recorded may be filed at the aforesaid office of the District until 8:00 P.M. on January 18, 1972, and may be filed thereafter at the said hearing at any time prior to the conclusion thereof.

Court Upholds Janitor's 1970 Murder Conviction

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—The murder conviction of a teen-age janitor in the beating of a teacher at a rural school near Salinas was upheld Wednesday by the State Court of Appeal.

The decision rejected Michael Rigmaiden's contentions that the evidence was insufficient, that he was entitled to a trial by jury and that new evidence required reopening the case.

Rigmaiden, then 17, was convicted in 1970 in Juvenile Court of beating to death Susan Jameson, 23, whose body was found at the San Benancio School, 12 miles west of Salinas.

Rigmaiden's father, Herman, was the principal of the school and the youth worked there as a janitor.

Judge Anthony Brazil, who conducted the original trial, ordered Rigmaiden into the custody of the California Youth Authority after finding him guilty of first degree murder.

Evidence leading to the conviction showed Rigmaiden and the victim were alone in the school, and that there was blood on his trousers and shoes. There was testimony he had tried to wipe off the blood stains.

The youth called sheriff's deputies May 27, 1970, and reported he had discovered Miss Jameson's body but there was evidence the report was late.

In his appeal, the youth said that new evidence involved another possible suspect, but the high court rejected that and affirmed Judge Brazil's refusal to grant a new hearing.

The high court decision, written by Justice Thomas W. Caldecott, reviewed the evidence and concluded it was more than speculation, as the youth had claimed. It noted that several recent decisions by the U.S. Supreme Court have held that a juvenile has no right to a trial by jury.

Caldecott also wrote that the "new evidence" was available to the defense at the time of the original hearing.

Including in that evidence was testimony by three witnesses that "one Kermit Hansen stated to 'a number of persons' that he killed Susan Jameson and that a person resembling Hansen was in the vicinity of the school at the time of the beating.

Defense attorneys subpoenaed Hansen as a witness, but failed to call him although he waited outside. The district attorney's office asserted that Hansen had an alibi and that he was known to make up stories to impress friends.

Coldecott's opinion said the "new evidence" was based on "double hearsay" and that Hansen's presence outside the court justified Judge Brazil's ruling that it was not new.

Nightclub's Signs Referred

An application for three signs at the Tale of the Tiger nightclub, 726 San Anselmo Avenue, has been referred back to the club's owner by the San Anselmo Design Review Committee.

Thelma Foster, secretary to the committee, said the committee decided the signs proposed by owner Peter Montalbano were too large.

In other action at a meeting Monday, the committee approved signs proposed for Pacific House, an oriental import business, at 727 Sir Francis Drake Boulevard, and for the John Young service station, 1535 Sir Francis Drake Boulevard.

MOSCOW (UPI)—The Soviet Union Wednesday launched an Earth satellite designed to aid weather forecasting services, the official Tass news agency said today. It said all instruments aboard the craft were functioning normally.

Guard's Drug Hearing Reset

A preliminary hearing for Samuel Thomas Jr., 28, San Quentin guard accused of smuggling drugs into prison, has been reset for Jan. 11.

The hearing had been set for Tuesday in Marin Municipal Court, but the chemist who analyzed the drugs was not present to testify.

At the request of the district attorney, Judge Robert A. Smallman put off the hearing for two weeks.

Thomas, who lives in Richmond, had been hired as correctional officer at San Quentin in September. On Dec. 1, he was arrested as he arrived for work and was charged with bringing alcohol, benzedrine, and seconal into prison and possessing dangerous drugs within a state prison.

Expert Says Super Bomb Impossible

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (UPI)—A report that the United States is using a "super bomb" in Vietnam—a non-nuclear weapon that destroys everything within 3,280 feet—is a scientific impossibility, says one of the nation's foremost explosive experts.

Dr. W. E. Baker, who earned three engineering degrees at Johns Hopkins University and is listed as one of the "American Men in Science," said Wednesday that even if such a bomb existed, it would be so heavy no airplane could lift it.

Baker contradicted reports by two biologists, Drs. E. W. Pfeiffer and Arthur H. Westing, who described the "super bomb" Monday in a report to the American Association for the Advancement of Science annual meeting in Philadelphia.

"I've been doing research on explosives for more than 25 years, and I know enough to know the numbers they are giving out are impossible," Baker said. "I think they should recheck their numbers or their sources."

Pfeiffer and Westing said the bomb was created primarily to clear dense jungle for landing zones, but later was used as an antipersonnel weapon in combat situations.

Baker said he would believe a bomb that could destroy everything within 130 feet—but not 3,280.

"To have a weapon of the size they describe, you would have to have 283 million pounds of TNT and a B52 could not even lift it," said Baker, who is manager of engineering dynamics at the Southwest Research Institute.

"I understand they are biologists—not explosives experts—and I think they may have received some misinformation." Pfeiffer, a zoologist at the University of Montana and Westing, b ology department chairman at Windham College in Putney, Vt., released the figures at the scientific meeting in a paper titled "impact of modern weaponry development on the human environment in Indochina."

They quoted Air Force officers as saying, "It's the next best thing to a nuke" and said the bomb was referred to as an "explosive bulldozer."

Baker said, "the question is not whether the U.S. is using super bombs or not. The question is—is such a huge bomb possible? My calculations show it couldn't even be lifted off the ground."

Two Scientists Ask Technology Brakes

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — One scientist Wednesday suggested a ban on further research into science's growing ability to fashion life forms, and another today said mankind's only hope in an increasingly mechanized society is to impose "deliberate public control" over future technology.

Both suggestions came during the annual meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science (AAAS).

At a symposium entitled "Living Systems: Synthesis, Assembly, Origins" during Wednesday's AAAS session, seven scientists described their progress in synthesizing component parts of life —which, very broadly, means "altering" present life forms, or producing higher life forms from existing ones.

But Dr. Charles C. Price, professor of chemistry at the University of Pennsylvania, said, "The developing techniques for the synthesis of genetic information and for inserting it into existing living systems raises the question of whether and how such an awesome possibility should be utilized to 'improve' the species.

"A basic philosophical question is whether society should control such a remarkable power, whether it should be exercised by free individual choice, or whether it should be outlawed.

"My personal view favors the second alternative but this whole question is one of major significance, and one on which there will certainly be strong and emotional opinions of great diversity."

At another symposium today, Dr. Mulford Q. Sibley of the University of Minnesota said technology has lengthened man's lifespan and was thus to blame for the population explosion; has despoiled natural resources, and had dehumanized people by doing the work once done by man.

"Adoption of new complex technology has a far greater effect in revolutionizing the traditional American way of life than anything the Communists propose to do," he said. "Yet we send FBI agents after the Communists and allow those who introduce new technology not only to escape official public notice but to be rewarded for the revolution they are carrying out."

Sibley said man has gone too far on the path of technology to abandon it. "Our only hope is to become fully aware of where we stand and to subject introduction of future technology to deliberate public control. We ought also to re-examine our sublime faith in technology and develop attitudes which view its curtailment, on occasion, as possibly desirable."

To adequately control technology, he said, agreements would have to come at the world, not merely the national, level.

Prison Seeks More Guards

Applicants must apply in person no later than 3 p.m. tomorrow at the prison's personnel office. Applicants must be between 21 and 35 years of age, have a high school diploma and two years of work experience. Salaries start at $651 per month increasing to $791 in three years.

The written test will be given Monday and oral interviews will begin that afternoon, Nelson said. He wants applications from black and Chicano communities, he said.

Ex-Justice Harlan Dead; Called 'Great Dissenter'

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Four teen weeks ago, ill health forced the retirement of Supreme Court Justice John Marshall Harlan, a scholarly jurist who earned the title "The Great Dissenter" during more than 16 years on the court.

Wednesday, Harlan, 72, died at George Washington University hospital. The cause of death was not announced, but it was widely known when he retired Sept. 23 that he was suffering from spinal cancer.

His death came eight days before the scheduled swearing in of William H. Rehnquist, a former assistant U.S. attorney general, who will be his replacement. Joining the court at the same time will be Richmond, Va., attorney Lewis F. Powell Jr., who was appointed by President Nixon to replace the late Justice Hugo L. Black.

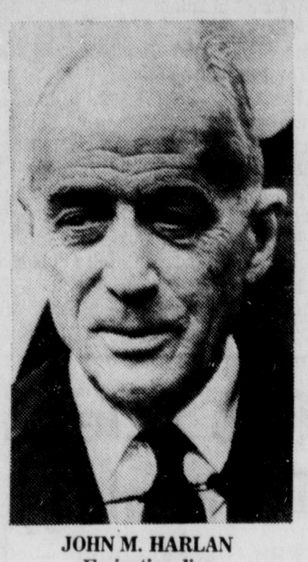
Harlan was the only Supreme Court justice with a direct ancestor who served on the court. The ancestor was his grandfather, the first John Marshall Harlan, after whom Harlan was named.

Harlan was born in Chicago, May 20, 1899, and graduated from Princeton University in 1920. He attended Oxford University as a Rhodes scholar and obtained his law degree from New York Law School in 1924.

He became a respected Wall Street lawyer and served in various advisory positions in the New York state government until his appointment to the 2nd



JOHN M. HARLAN

U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals Feb. 10, 1954. On March 17, 1955, President Dwight D. Eisenhower nominated him for the Supreme Court.

As a justice, Harlan established a conservative reputation, arguing that the court was going too far, was trying to find a cure for "every major social ill in this country" in some constitutional "principle." He believed in the principle he called "federalism," a clean dividing line between federal and state authority.

Typically, his voice alone said "no" when the court ruled June 15, 1964, that both houses of state legislatures must be apportioned on a one-man, one-vote basis.

But Harlan also at times was on the winning side. Last spring he wrote the 5 to 4 opinion that held that the simple display of a common four-letter vulgarism is constitutionally protected speech and may not be made a criminal offense.

"While the particular four-letter word here is perhaps more distasteful than most others of its genre, it is nevertheless often true that one man's vulgarity is another's lyric," Harlan wrote.

A tall, distinguished looking man with thinning gray hair and a slight stoop, Harlan had been afflicted in recent years by failing eyesight. Reading became difficult for him and he was forced to deliver his opinions on the bench from memory. The practice only seemed to give his pronouncements more weight with his colleagues.

At Harlan's bedside Wednesday were his daughter, three sisters and his close friend, Justice Potter Stewart, who described Harlan as "a beloved brother and noble friend."

"His generous and gallant spirit, his selfless courage, his freedom from all guile, his total decency—these were the qualities that gave him such singular leadership and strength," Stewart said.

Search For San Quentin Inmate Off

San Quentin Prison officials today called off their "behind the walls" search for convicted murderer Jacon Zitzer who is now listed as having successfully escaped Dec. 13.

"We now believe he made it over the wall," Joseph R. O'Brien, prison information officer, said today.

Zitzer, 27, escaped over the prison's main wall with a prison-made rope but two other convicts were captured. It had earlier been thought Zitzer might have been hiding in the prison's industrial area.

O'Brien said an extensive search of that area has been called off and the night guard is back to its standard level.

Jack C. Duncan, 37, and Juan Colon, 28, were captured shortly after the young son of a prison official reported seeing activity near the prison wall.

A rope made of prison denims had been attached to a grappling hook made of pipe and thrown over the wall. The rope had broken.

Cleverly fashioned dummies had been placed in the cells of the three prisoners.

Zitzer was serving time for a murder committed in a Los Angeles robbery seven years ago.

Law enforcement has become so complex that more than 100 state, local and federal law enforcement agencies now employ legal counsel to advise them.

Packard Gives $2.8 Million To Stanford

STANFORD, Calif. (UPI)—David Packard, who resigned recently as deputy defense secretary, has given $2.6 million to Stanford University. It was part of $18 million he must dispense of.

Packard was required to place his $300 million of stock in Hewlett-Packard, an electronics firm he cofounded, into a trust established when he took the federal post in 1969. The value of the stock rose $18 million before he resigned this month.

The profit must go to educational and charitable institutions.

Youth Denies Burglary Count

Arthur Michael Farmer, 18, of Novato, pleaded innocent yesterday in Marin Superior Court to a charge of burglary.

Judge E. Warren McGuire set his trial for Feb. 14.

MAKING YOUR MOVIES MOVE

The major difference between still and motion picture photography is implied in the names. Movies show not just a single picture but a continuous action. Many home movies forget this basic principle. Instead of "moving," they are just collections of bits and pieces.

The ideal solution is to use your movie camera to tell a story. Take that New Year's Eve party, for instance. It might be fun to view a collection of mixed "highlights" . . . but a more effective film will make it a "story" with a beginning, middle and end.

Start where you want — with the first arrivals, for instance, opening the first bottle of champagne. Let your "highlights" build to the climactic midnight festivities. And the ending? Well, how about an "after-the-party" glimpse, when everyone has gone and you collapse, tired and happy, among the hats and favors, in the stillness?

The point is to plan a story . . . and you'll hold your viewers. Make that a resolution now . . . and resolve to see us in the New Year for the best in photographic needs, from cameras to film to dependable, prompt developing and printing.

Ronnie L. Lahr, 24, picks through the rubble of his burned-out rooms at 24 Bay Road, Fairfax, searching for salvageable belongings. Lahr and five other occupants of the two-story duplex lost a pet cat, a hamster, some fish and all their belongings. The blaze, which was reported at 11:40 p.m. yesterday, apparently started near a heater on the ground floor. Firemen listed the occupants as Lahr, Bruce and Connie Bohm, both 22; James Reel, 22; Marshall Knight, 24, and Karoline Wallinsky, 25. All were out for the evening or at work when the blaze started and spent the night with friends after the fire. The duplex, which firemen said was a total loss, is owned by Mrs. Jean Tourte, operator of a carpet store in San Rafael's Montecito shopping center.

Reindictment For Ellsberg

Federal Grand Jury Also Charges Russo

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Daniel Ellsberg, who leaked the secret "Pentagon Papers" on the Vietnam war, was reindicted today on serious, new federal charges of stealing and distributing Defense Department documents.

The indictment returned by a federal grand jury in Los Angeles and announced by the Justice Department also accused Ellsberg of keeping national defense papers. He was charged with violation of the 1940 Espionage Act.

Also named in a 15-count sealed indictment, returned Wednesday and opened today, was Anthony J. Russo Jr., who spent 47 days in jail for civil contempt rather than testify about how parts of the 47 volume study were leaked to the news media.

Russo, 35, once worked at the Rand Corp. —a socalled "think tank" —with Ellsberg. He is being sought by FBI agents.

Officials said Ellsberg, 40, did not need to be arrested because he is already free on bond posted after his first indictment in the case last June 28.

The new indictment disclosed that Vu Van Thai, 52, a former South Vietnamese ambassador to the United States, got one volume of the study. It named Thai and Mrs. Linda Sinay, 28, a Los Angeles advertising woman, who helped duplicate the papers, as unindicted co-conspirators.

The Justice Department would not say if either Thai or the woman testified before the grand jury.

Ellsberg was indicted originally on two counts of possession of government documents and converting them to his own use, for which he could receive a maximum penalty of 20 years imprisonment and a $20,000 fine.

DANIEL ELLSBERG
New charges

The new superseding indictment, announced by the office of vacationing Attorney General John N. Mitchell, accused Ellsberg of 11 federal crimes plus conspiracy for which he could receive a maximum of 115 years in prison sentence and fines of up to $120,000 fine.

Russo could face a maximum 35 years in prison and a $45,000 fine if convicted on three substantive counts and one of conspiracy.

Both men were charged with conspiring for 18 months — from March, 1969, to September, 1970 —to steal classified government documents from the Rand Corp., to distribute them to unauthorized persons, and to illegally possess them and refuse to surrender them to the government.

Ellsberg was charged with stealing and distributing government documents worth more than $100 and Russo with receiving. Both were charged under the Espionage Act with acquiring and illegally retaining national defense documents.

The documents —the celebrated Pentagon Papers as they became known —were based on a study of the origins and the progress of the Vietnam war initiated by Robert S. McNamara before he stepped down as defense secretary in 1968.

The papers were cited by critics of the war as supporting their argument that the United States never should have become so embroiled in Vietnam.

Supporters of Vietnam policy argued that the documents reflected an incomplete story of what happened.

In the new indictment, Ellsberg was listed in two counts of giving Thai and Mrs. Sinay copies of different parts of the 47-volume study. The indictment referred to his alleged possession, however, only of 18 volumes of "a 38-volume-Department of Defense study titled 'United States' Vietnam Relations 1945-1967.' "

The grand jury said Thai was given one volume titled "Settlement of the Conflict — Negotiations, 1967-1968, History of Contacts" by Ellsberg.

At the time, Thai apparently was a consultant to the administrator of the United Nations Development Program. He is now believed to be with a U.N. river development project in Dakar, Senegal.

A Justice Department spokesman said the new indictment was "not an indication of whether there will or will not be any more indictments" in the case.

New Buses To Roll On Saturday

Distribution of the schedules to commuters began this morning aboard Greyhound buses, and will continue through tomorrow until Greyhound is replaced early Saturday by bridge district buses, which also will carry the new schedules.

Copies are to be available locally by tomorrow at all post offices, banks, city and county offices, chambers of commerce and libraries.

Schedules also are available by telephoning the bridge district's "Golden Gate Transit" office in San Rafael at 517 Jacoby Street. The telephone number is 453-2100.

District officials stressed that with extremely rare exceptions, which they could not pinpoint, their system initially will serve the same routes and schedules as Greyhound. Coming weeks will see expansion of the system into residential neighborhoods, however, so that most commuters in population centers need walk no more than a quarter of a mile to a bus stop.

One major change effective on Saturday will be that downtown San Rafael commuters no longer will use the Greyhound depot on Third Street. District buses instead will stop on Fourth Street under the freeway just east of Hetherton Street.

But any commuter going to the same stop at the same time as he did with Greyhound should find a bus, according to district officials. They readily conceded there may be bugs in the system, especially on Monday, when they roll 140 buses. Greyhound used 103.

About 40 buses will be used on the weekend transbay service starting Saturday.

The weekday local service within Marin will use commuter buses returning from San Francisco.

Commuter service will be provided from essentially all Marin communities to and from San Francisco, linking at various points with the local service. In Sonoma, service will include Petaluma, Cotati and Penngrove as well as Santa Rosa Junior College, downtown Santa Rosa and the Coddington area.

Buses on the transbay service will operate every day of the year, with heavy emphasis on morning and evening commute hours. Schedules extend into the late evening hours and begin early in the morning to accommodate shift workers, shoppers and other late commuters.

District officials promise there will be no standees, and that additional coaches will be added promptly when needed to assure everyone a seat.

In San Francisco, buses will follow two routes, one through the financial district, and one to the Civic Center area. Buses will be marked to indicate destinations.

To speed loading in San Francisco, commuters boarding there will not pay fares until

Viet Bomb Raids Come To An End

SAIGON (UPI) — American planes hit North Vietnam for the fifth consecutive day today, then concluded the most sustained and the most intense bombing campaign north of the Demilitarized Zone (DMZ) ever ordered by President Nixon. Three U.S. planes were reported lost in the five days of raids and five crewmen missing.

U.S. military spokesmen said the "limited duration" raids were completed and that one Air Force Phantom jet was shot down on Sunday and two Navy jets, an F4 and an A6 Intruder, were lost today. Five U.S. airmen were missing and one rescued.

North Vietnam had reported only a few hours earlier that 14 American planes had been downed since the raids began Sunday, including three jets shot down today. Hanoi said "a number of pilots" had been captured.

U.S. spokesmen said one of the crewmen of the A6 jet was rescued and the other was missing as are the two crewmen of the F4 Phantom lost today and the two crewmen of the F4 shot down Sunday.

In announcing the end of the raids, the command disclosed for the first time that the bombing was confined to the North Vietnamese Panhandle south of the 20th Pareallel, which is 70 miles south of Hanoi. The communique said that most of the raids were south of the 18th Parallel, which is more than 200 miles south of Hanoi and 70 miles north of the DMZ.

In Washington, the Pentagon said a total of 1,000 sorties were flown in the bombing campaign. A sortie is one mission by one aircraft. It meant the Air Force and Navy jets had surpassed in intensity the air effort of 400 sorties at the time of the American-South Viet-

Silent Nixon Ordered N. Viet Bomb Stepup

KEY BISCAYNE, Fla. (UPI) —The Florida White House concedes that President Nixon ordered the intensified bombing of North Vietnam, but the President himself maintains strict silence on the subject.

When Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler was asked whether the President personally ordered the bombing, he replied "I'm not going to speak to the obvious."

But since then, the Florida White House has referred all inquiries on the bombing policy to the Pentagon and military spokesmen in Saigon. Heavy bombing of North Vietnam entered its fifth day today, but the U.S. command in Saigon announced later that the bombing campaign had ended. It was the most prolonged bombing campaign north of the demilitarized zone ever ordered by President Nixon.

"The government (State and Defense departments) is speaking to it," Ziegler said before he departed on the first leg of his trip to Peking to make arrangements for Nixon's journey to the Communist mainland in February.

But he would not be drawn into a full discussion of the issue.

Nixon kept in touch with developments at his Biscayne Bay villa here and prepared to head back to Washington later today or Friday to ring in the New Year with his family. Nixon and his close ones were conscious that 1972—an election year—will be busy.

The President was in a sunny mood as he wound up two days of summit talks with West German Chancellor Willy Brandt Wednesday. On the lawn outside Nixon's white stucco residence, Brandt exuded the same contentment with their intensive conversations.

"I can say without qualification that the state of German-American relations are excellent at this time," Nixon said.

His remarks followed a communique that stressed Nixon's promise not to make any private deals with the Soviet Union on troop cuts in Europe when he travels to Moscow in May.

Brandt had sought such reassurance and he got it, unequivocably.

"The President reaffirmed that no decisions affecting the Atlantic alliance will be taken without full consultation with the allies," the joint statement said. Nixon also pledged American commitments in Europe will remain status quo and there will be no reduction of troops stationed in Europe.

Many Men May Escape '72 Draft

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The Selective Service said today that more than 100,000 young men with low lottery numbers may escape the draft altogether if no one is inducted in the first three months of 1972.

A spokesman said that about 90,000 of the men —born in 1951, physically qualified and holding lottery numbers below the 1971 cutoff of 125 — graduated from college this year or for other reasons lost their deferments.

An additional 10,000, he said, are young men born in 1950 or earlier with lottery numbers below 125 who also have lost their deferments. They, for the most part, are carryovers from 1970.

A third group, the spokesman said, is made up of men in college 20 years or older with student deferments and low lottery numbers. These young men, however, would have to drop their deferments before midnight Friday, Dec. 31, in order to be assured that they would not be drafted if there were no calls during January, February and March.

Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird said Monday that there would be no draft calls in January and possibly none in February and March.

Under Selective Service regulations, men with lottery numbers below the cutoff number are placed in what is called an "extended priority group" after their deferments expire. This means that they continue to be eligible for induction through the first quarter of the following year.

Judge Orders Gag In Juvenile Crimes

By WAT TAKESHITA

Beginning immediately, Marin County law enforcement officials may not release the identities of juveniles under 18 who are arrested or cited for any crime.

That order was delivered in writing yesterday to all police agencies in the county yesterday by Judge Joseph G. Wilson of Marin Superior Court.

The judge drew a clear distinction between the "identity" of any minor and the incident in which a minor may be involved. The release of identity is banned, but not a report of the incident itself.

For example, if a 16-year-old held up a bank, the judge explained, the holdup would certainly be reported. However, the robber would not be identified if under 18.

Another point that still remains unresolved is what to do about juveniles cited for traffic violations.

"Frankly, we hadn't thought about that," said Judge Wilson. "But I would think these would also come under the ban."

However, he conceded that a problem arises when these juveniles appear in juvenile traffic court, because the court is open to the public. "We can't close traffic court because that would cause a physical impossibility for the traffic judge."

"I'm sure we haven't figured out all the answers to problems that will come up," said the judge. "The only way to figure them out is when they rear their heads such as this one."

The judge asked all police departments to comment on the effect of his order and to make any suggestions.

The judge issued his order in accordance with a recent State Supreme Court decision in the case of TNG vs. Superior Court, in which the court said that the state welfare and institutions code requires police to get per-

WIRE NEWS BRIEFS From Everywhere

Rocky Eyes Another Term

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI) — Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller, who has served longer as governor than anyone now in office, said yesterday he might run for a fifth term in 1974.

Rockefeller

He made the statement while dismissing as "purely rumors" speculation he might run for vice president or accept a cabinet post in the Nixon administration.

"I'm seriously considering running for a fifth term" he said. Rockefeller said he would like to remain as governor until the state's current fiscal crisis is solved.

"I've spent 13 years trying to make this the best state in which to live, work and do business," he said. "I do not want to see a temporary fiscal crisis destroy what I've done."

Rockefeller was elected to his first four-year term in 1958 and is in his first year of his fourth term. Should he be elected to a fifth term it would be unprecedented in New York history.

Home Fired

BELFAST (UPI) — Fire today swept the country home of Maj. Ivan Neill, speaker of Northern Ireland's House of Commons. The Irish Republican Army (IRA) claimed responsibility for the blaze.

In a statement issued in Dublin, the official wing of the IRA said they wrecked the house with "explosives and an incendiary device ... in retaliation for the wrecking of working class homes in the Newry-South Down area by British terrorits troops."

Gift Muddle

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Pentagon spokesman say they do not know why North Vietnam refused to accept 900 gift packages destined for American prisoners of war.

The Defense Department revealed Wednesday that the packages had been rejected despite the fact North Vietnam some time ago said they would be accepted. But spokesman Jerry W. Friedheim said the packages were refused before the new U.S. bombing attacks against the North began last weekend.

Malta Pullout

LONDON (UPI) — Britain set plans in motion today for a quick military pullout from Malta, the strategic Mediterranean island that has been a key British base for 171 years.

It did so, even at risk of a Soviet takeover, rather than knuckle under to a two-time ultimatum from the island's fiery Socialist Premier Dom Mintoff.

In messages to the British government on Christmas Eve and again on Wednesday, Mintoff demanded withdrawal of all British armed forces from the island by Friday unless Britain paid immediately another $11 million for the right to station them there.

This was in addition to a one-time cash payment of $12.35 million already paid by Britain for six months from Sept. 30.

Blast Kills Three

NEW ROCHELLE, N.Y. (UPI) — A boiler explosion and fire demolished a two-story commercial building on this city's main street yesterday, killing three men and injuring 30 other persons.

The blast shattered windows in nearby buildings on this city's main street yesterday, killing three men and injuring 30 other persons.

The blast shattered windows in nearby buildings in the business center of this Long Island Sound community 20 miles north of New York City and sent a sheet of flames into an adjoining structure, gutting it.

The explosion was set off by a fire in the boiler room of Crabtree Motor Sales Co., resulting in a second raging blaze which took more than four hours to control.

Language Law

BOSTON (UPI) — Gov. Francis W. Sargent signed legislation yesterday making Massachusetts the first state to provide mandatory bilingual education for children with limited knowledge of English.

The law goes into effect next September.

"There are more than 40,000 school-age children in Massachusetts whose primary language is other than English," Sargent said in signing the measure.

Off To Peking

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A group of American experts were headed for Peking today to set up protection for President Nixon and arrange communications to keep him in touch with the White House during his February visit to China.

The advance group of about 25 men including White House Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler and representatives of the three major U.S. television networks left Wednesday with scheduled stops in Hawaii and Guam. They were scheduled to arrive in Peking Jan. 3.

Dock Session Set

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Leaders of East and West Coast longshoremen have decided to meet in New York City next week — possibly to discuss the possible merger of their two powerful unions.

The high-level conference was disclosed by President Nixon's top labor mediator, J. Curtis Counts, who has been directing peace talks between West Coast dockworkers and the Pacific Maritime Association PMA.

Counts said the 15,000-member International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union ILWU were recessing talks with the PMA until after the New York meeting. The two sides met three hours Wednesday.

NATO Held U.S. Euromart Bridge

KEY BISCAYNE, Fla. (UPI) —President Nixon is looking hopefully at the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) as a possible economic bridge between the United States and the increasingly potent European Common Market.

The idea would be to refurbish NATO, created as a Western bastian against the Soviet military threat of the Stalinist-era, into a general purpose organization with emphasis on the economic and political as well as the military.

If such a change takes place, it could save NATO from the danger of becoming a Cold War relic and give Washington a vital economic window into Europe at the same time.

Nixon Wednesday named ambassador-at-large David M. Kennedy to serve as U.S. representative to the NATO headquarters in Brussels.

Kennedy, Nixon's first Treasury secretary and a longtime Chicago banker, has been involved in money and trade negotiations and was named to his ambassadorial post Feb. 11.

The White House said Kennedy would continue to hold the rank of ambassador-at-large and would retain his seat in the Cabinet. Presumably, he would have frequent contact with the Common Market headquarters, also in Brussels.

The key nations in NATO are the United States, the six present members of the Common Market—Italy, West Germany, Belgium, France, The Netherlands and Luxembourg—and Great Britain, which plans to join the European bloc.

The United States is preparing f comprehensive trade negotiations with the European community. Nixon wants freer access for American goods, especially agricultural products, to th growing market in Europe.

The President announced Kennedy's appointment while standing beside West German Chancellor Willy Brandt on the lawn of Nixon's villa by Biscayne Bay.

Nixon said the selection of Kennedy "indicates, as I have told the chancellor, the commitment that the United States has to NATO."

"Cooperation on monetary and trade policy, one of the most important conditions and guarantees for close American-European relations, has been successfully adapted to new conditions and now holds out favorable prospects for further development," the communique said.

A formal White House statement said the Kennedy appointment emphasizes "the priority which the administration attaches to materially strengthening U.S.-European economic, political and military relations."

Mideast War Possible, Israel's Dayan Concedes

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Israeli Defense Minister Moshe Dayan said Wednesday the possibility of another Mideast war was very real and he would be convinced Egypt wanted peace only when it took a positive step toward settling the conflict.

Dayan, speaking on Israel television, said Egypt would not announce its true plans.

"We shall only be able to tell that they (Egyptians) will not open fire when we see an active expression of a move towards the alternative—a continuation of the struggle by political means," Dayan said.

Egyptian President Anwar Sadat has said more than once that war is the only way Arabs can regain land lost during the Six Day war with Israel in 1967. However, he said recently he would try to seek a peaceful position.

"I assume that Egypt, in its public announcements, wishes to retain both possibilites. Even if they take a final decision on one—that is to say, open fire—they will keep up their smokescreen of talking. And, conversely, if they have decided not to shoot, they will not announce this," Dayan said.

The Jerusalem Post said today Sadat threatened to resign several times this week because of criticism of his Middle East policies but decided not to quit after receiving a vote of confidence at a joint session of the Arab Socialist Union (ASU), Egypt's only legal political party, and the People's Council (parliament).

The newspaper said it got its information from "reliable Western sources in Israel."

The newspaper said Sadat was unhappy because of dissent among political and military leaders over his policies and the Council-ASU meeting was postponed twice because of Sadat's threats.

In spite of the vote of confidence, the newspaper said, Sadat cancelled a national radio broadcast scheduled for Tuesday night.

In Cairo, the newspaper Al Akhbar said Arab nations should take decisive action against United States commercial interests in the Middle East because the United States is the only major power extending unlimited friendship to Israel.

The semi-official newspaper Al Ahram also said Sadat was meeting with Palestinian guerrilla leader Yasser Arafat.

Major Jewish Daily Folds

The paper, with a daily circulation of 38,000, ended its 57-year existence because of an apparent lack of funds. There was no announcement of the newspaper's closing in Tuesday's editions.

Cholera Hits Bangladesh Prisoners

NARAYANGANJ, East Pakistan (UPI)—Cholera claimed the lives today of 12 more of the 30,000 Biharis held as prisoners without food or medical supplies in the world's biggest jute mill in this town 14 miles from Dacca.

The Biharis are non-Bengali Moslems, most of whom came to East Pakistan from the west wing of the country. They are hated by the Bengali natives because they cooperated with the West Pakistan army. The Biharis say the Bengalis have killed 400 to 500 of them since Pakistan surrendered Dec. 16.

The Bangladesh Government has denied them both food and medicine but an Indian army spokesman said arrangements were being made to bring in medical supplies because of the outbreak of cholera in the jute mill.

Dr. Nazir Ahmed, medical officer at the fortress-like Adamji jute mill, said "there area so many cases of cholera and starvation I can't count them all." Indian officials also have reported an increasing number of deaths from malnutrition.

The Biharis are afraid to leave the jute mill for fear they will be killed by the Bengali guerrillas who call themselves the Mukti Bahini freedom fighters. The Indians have placed a contingent of troops at the mill to protect those inside.

Maj. R. Kanwar, the Indian troop commander, said he was arranging for medical supplies but that food would remain the biggest problem even if medical aid arrived. He said International Red Cross relief plans have been blocked by the Bangladesh Government. Nazir said the Indian army troops had stopped the killings by the Mukti Bahini but that local police were looting houses in the town while searching for socalled collaborators.

18 Antiwar Vets Take Over Viet Consulate, Then Give Up

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Eighteen veterans put their hands over their heads Wednesday and ended a nearly three hour occupation of the South Vietnamese Consulate with each man giving his name, former rank and serial number as they were marched to a police van.

The demonstrators, members of Vietnam Veterans Against the War (VVAW), were arrested for trespassing by police Capt. Joseph Flynn who told the group there "will be no amnesty."

The ex-GIs walked into the consulate early Wednesday and ordered four Vietnamese out before barricading the windows and door with boxes. They said their action was to protest "the continuing 11-year genocide against the peoples of Southeast Asia."

Flynn arrived at the third-floor suite in the downtown Flood Building on orders from Mayor Joseph Alioto at 11:40 a.m. and shouted through the locked door: "You've got all the publicity you're going to get. You're subject to arrest for trespassing. What is your decision?"

After a 15-minute conference the demonstrators replied: "We have not damaged anything here. We will not leave. We will not remove the barricades."

Flynn told the group there would be no amnesty and a protestor answered, "You understand, we're not going to resist. If you don't want to break anything, just sort of push the door open."

Police then unlocked the door and took the 18 demonstrators downstairs in a freight elevator to a waiting police van.

Before police removed the group, one veteran, Tom Kenney of Berkeley, told newsmen "we've liberated the consulate." A spokesman at VVAW's San Francisco offices said the action also was taken "to protest President Nixon's personal decision to unleash an unprecedented bombing attack on the innocent people of North Vietnam."

MARDI GRAS SPIRIT

Claire Tilden of San Rafael puts finishing touches on a giant mask which will decorate the New Year's Eve ball of the Folk Dance Council of Marin County tomorrow. The seven-foot high mask was designed by Fred Sweger of Tiburon and built by members of the Kopachka folk dance group of Mill Valley. The mask was constructed at the San Rafael Recreation Center in the courthouse annex and will be transported to the Masonic Building in San Rafael for the ball, which this year has a mardi gras theme. More than 200 members of folk dance groups in Marin are expected to attend.

Tax Relief Plan Held Crucial

By ERIK M. INGRAM

The proposed countywide general plan and some form of tax relief to property owners are two of the most critical issues facing the county in 1972, three of Marin County's five supervisors said today.

Their comments, ranging over a wide variety of subjects expected to be considered next year, came on the weekly KTIM "Marin Sounding Board" radio program.

Other major issues which the three supervisors — John F. McInnis, Michael Wornum and Louis H. Baar — said will probably be considered deal with governmental organization in the county.

Among those, Wornum told the radio audience, is reorganization of the Marin County Redevelopment Agency into a government body with directors elected by Marin City residents.

Another, supervisors agreed, is forming some kind of governing or advisory board for Marin's annual fair.

The radio program, moderated by Kitty Oppenheimer, will be rebroadcast at 10:05 a.m. Sunday.

Passage of a countywide general plan by late 1972 or early 1973 is "imperative," McInnis said. "There has to be a yardstick to measure ... development."

McInnis was supported by both Baar and Wornum on the urgent need for such a plan. However, the question of the plan's so-called "superagency" to coordinate development between the cities and county brought mixed reaction.

Baar said he would oppose any such agency since "there are too many agencies now."

McInnis called the proposal "foolish" and said there was no need for such an agency since the City-County Planning Council of Marin fills that need through its non-authoritative attempts at coordinating planning on a countywide level.

Wornum, while not endorsing the proposed superagency empowered to veto development plans in conflict with the general plan, said the need for greater coordination exists and should be explored.

The matter of county taxes relates directly to the development of the county, they agreed.

Wornu4 said he didn't know how one dealt with the increasing demand for county services, which hike the tax rate, and the growing desire of many Marinites for more park and open space, which removes property from the tax rolls.

"I wish the public could become aware of the demands for county services ..." McInnis added.

The supervisors' comments on creating another fair board are among the few made publicly since the board voted to scrap Fair-Marin two years ago.

Fair-Marin was a collection of businessmen and residents who had promised to operate the new Marin Veterans Memorial building and county fair through mostly private funds.

The proposal folded after a long and involved controversy over operation and administration of the quasi-public body.

Only Wornum, who voted against scrapping Fair-Marin two years ago, voiced strong support today for another governing fair board.

McInnis said he would oppose such a board, but said he would consider establishing an advisory committee to the board of supervisors.

Shotgun Robbery In Marin City

A 20-year-old Marin City youth was booked into Marin County Jail yesterday on suspicion of armed robbery after he and a companion allegedly broke into the Marin City home of the companion's former girlfriend, sheriff's deputies reported.

Deputies said Larry James Stover, 20, of 89 Cole Drive, was arrested at his home about 8:30 a.m. after a complaint from Vorine Adams, 15 Cole Drive.

Miss Adams said Stover and her ex-boyfriend had come to her home about 8 a.m., according to deputies, who said a window of the home was broken.

Officers said the second man threatened her with a shotgun, then removed several items of clothing, including three of her coats, from the residence.

The second robber is still being sought.

No bail had yet been set for Stover, who was to appear today in Marin Municipal Court.

Clinic Burglary

A burglar took an X-ray cassette and film worth $205 from a cabinet at the Ross Valley Medical Center between 5:45 p.m. Tuesday and 8:20 a.m. yesterday, according to Larkspur police.

Honduras Incident: No Word

I-J Special Report

WASHINGTON, D.C. — A State Department spokesman said today that American officials have been unable to confirm a report that a missing Honduras boat with a Marin man supposedly aboard has been towed to Havana, Cuba.

Scott Harris, 25, of Tiburon, was reported by friends to have been aboard the Night Hawk when it disappeared Dec. 19 on a run between Roatan Island and Belize City, British Honduras.

According to Gale Wallace, State Department spokesman, the only word of the missing vessel came from a ham radio operator on Roatan who picked up a message from a Cuban fishing boat. This message supposedly said the Cuban crew had found the Night Hawk drifting with inoperable engines and had towed it to Havana.

Honduras and U.S. officials have asked the Swiss Embassy in Havana to investigate the whereabouts of the Night Hawk and the 10 persons aboard, but no word has been received, Wallace said.

According to his father, Perry Harris of San Francisco, young Harris had gone to Honduras with three other persons to bring a yacht back to this country. The friends told the father that Harris had taken the Night Hawk to bring supplies back to the yacht.

3 Judges Named To Appellate Court

Three Marin County Superior Court judges have been named by California Supreme Court Chief Justice Donald R. Wright to serve on the appellate department of their county court.

Deputies Break Up A Family Operation

A San Francisco mother of five was arrested near a Strawberry home yesterday by Marin City sheriff's deputies who said they may have broken up a family-style burglary ring.

Sylvia Ann St. Andre, 30, was booked into Marin County Jail on suspicion of burglary. Her husband, Theodore Edward St. Andre, is still being sought, officers said.

Deputies reported they received a tip about 4 p.m. of a burglary in progress at the residence of Vernon B. Winiker at 80 Bayvista Drive and went to the home.

As they neared the residence, officers said they saw two girls, ages 12 and 13, carrying a color television set down the back stairs of the home. A back window had been broken by rocks, according to deputies.

Mrs. St. Andre was apprehended in a car parked in the driveway of the home, according to officers, who said a search of the vehicle revealed items taken in another Strawberry burglary yesterday.

A witness told officers he had seen a man, believed to be St. Andre, leave the scene on foot just as police arrived.

Mrs. St. Andre was freed on $2,000 bail to appear in Marin Municipal Court Jan. 3. The two girls were released in the custody of their grandparents who are also caring for the St. Andre's other three children, ages 7 and upward.

Sausalito Plaza Plan May Go To Ballot

Proponents of a move to have Sausalito voters decide the fate of a controversial park plaza plan have acquired sufficient signatures for a ballot measure, they announced yesterday.

They will seek to have voters in April force the city council to put the plan before the voters, unless the council will agree to present it to voters before then.

Representatives of three Sausalito organizations said yesterday they have collected nearly 550 signatures on a petition asking the council to let residents decide on the William E. Spangle plan for downtown Sausalito. Approximately 400 signatures, representing 10 per cent of the city's 4,000 voters, are needed to put the question on the ballot.

Alan Conner, president of the Sausalito Citizens Council, said his group, in conjunction with the Sausalito Businessmen's Association and the Chamber of Commerce, first plan to submit an ordinance to the council next month. The ordinance the group seeks to have passed states the council will do nothing about the plan without first referring it to the electorate, along with statements of the cost of the project and possible loss of revenue which could result.

If the council refuses to pass that ordinance, Robert D. Bauerle, president of the businessmen's association, said it will be placed on the ballot to give voters a chance to decide if they want an opportunity to vote on the plan.

The outcome of the vote would not be binding on the council, according to Conner, but he said the three groups hope to convince the city government that an overwhelming number of residents feel they should be allowed to decide if they want the park plaza plan for their city.

The Spangle plan, adopted by the council in May, would turn the heart of Sausalito's downtown into a series of pedestrian malls, walkways and open-space park. The proposal has drawn fire from the three groups, because it calls for conversion of the city's 180-space parking lot No. 1 into an open space park.

In September the council decided not to submit the park plaza plan to voters after city Atty. Leland H. Jordan determined it would be illegal for the city council to use taxpayer money for a ballot measure asking resident opinion on the plan.

Delay Given In Drug Sale Case

Eugene L. Syrup, 20, of Novato, accused of selling narcotics and dangerous drugs, is scheduled to appear in Marin Municipal Court on Jan. 4 to plead.

He appeared before Judge Robert A. Smallman on Tuesday and asked for a continuation to get an attorney.

Syrup was arrested Christmas Eve and charged with selling amphetamine, hashish, methamphetamine, and marijuana to an undercover Novato police officer in August and September.

Death Row Inmate Gets Life Term

A San Quentin inmate who spent four years on Death Row has had his sentence changed to life imprisonment.

Joseph R. O'Brien, prison information officer, said William Archie Fain, 26, was removed from Death Row last week after a Sacramento County Superior Court jury returned a life verdict in a retrial of the penalty phase of Fain's 1967 murder conviction.

Fain had been sentenced to death for the murder of a Modesto teen-age boy and the rape of two teen-age girls, but the state supreme court threw out the sentence in 1969 on grounds jurors who opposed the death penalty were improperly excused at his trial.

The retrial was held in Sacramento after the supreme court granted a change of venue.

Fain has been transferred to the Department of Correction's facility at Vacaville, O'Brien said, where he will be processed as though he were a new man entering the prison system.

Youth Found Hiding In Car

A teen-age Petaluma youth was arrested yesterday on suspicion of car theft after police said he was found hiding in a stolen car.

Polce withheld the name of the juvenile on orders of the Sonoma County distirct attorney's office. He was booked into Sonoma County juvenile hall.

Patty Ann Barnes, of Santa Rosa had told police at 11:15 p.m. yesterday that her 1960 Chevrolet had been stolen from the parking lot adjacent to the Petaluma River. Officers said the car was recovered at 1 a.m. on North McDowell Boulevard with the youth found hiding on the floor in the rear.

Prostitution Pleas Innocent

Four women accused of soliciting for prostitution and two men charged with keeping a house of ill fame at the Executive Sauna in San Rafael pleaded innocent yesterday in Marin Municipal Court.

Judge Robert A. Smallman set Jan. 17 for a pre-trial conference.

Two men charged with keeping a house of ill fame are Richard Leonard O'Leary, 31, of Larkspur, and Max Joseph Oncina, 49, of San Rafael.

Speed Record

MOSCOW (UPI)—The Soviet TU144 supersonic airliner attained a record speed of 1,564 miles per hour in a recent test flight, the Tass news agency said today.

Innocent Pleas In Drug Case

Judge Alexander J. McMahon set a preliminary hearing for Jan. 6 at 9:30 a.m. for Dawn C. Fowler, 20, of Petaluma; Larry J. Patton, 20, of Novato; Tommy J. Logan, 22, and Ricky B. Joseph, 19, both of Petaluma. All were charged with battery on a peace officer, possession of marijuana and dangerous drugs.

McMahon ordered Miss Fowler, Logan and Joseph freed on their own recognizance, but Patton was held in lieu of $1,000 bail. They were arrested at 2 a.m. Sunday after neighbors complained of a loud party at 163 Webster Street. Four othrs were arrested on misdemeanor charge and seven others reportedly escaped arrest during the raid.

Innocent Plea To Car Theft

Thomas H. Thompson, 25, of San Rafael, who was re-arrested Tuesday on car theft charges, pleaded innocent yesterday in Marin Municipal Court.

Judge Robert A. Smallman set a preliminary hearing for next Tuesday.

Thompson was arrested by San Rafael police on Dec. 8 and charged with stealing a car owned by an Oakland resident. A preliminary hearing had been set for last Tuesday, but the case was dropped because the prosecution witnesses were not ready.

Burglars Fail To Open Safe

Burglars attempted to pry open every door to Rubini's Restaurant in Fairfax before giving up on the doors and smashing a window to enter it late Tuesday or early yesterday, Fairfax police reported today.

The culprits had no more success with a safe inside than they did with the doors, police said, reporting that a combination dial on the safe had been smashed off but that the safe still had not been opened.

Guilt Admitted In Car Theft

Richard Paul Derham, 23, of Mill Valley, pleaded guilty Tuesday in Marin Municipal Court to a misdemeanor car theft charge. Judge Peter Allen Smith set Jan. 4 for sentencing.

Derham was arrested on Dec. 6 and accused of stealing a car on Oct. 29 from a Mill Valley auto shop. The felony car theft charge was dropped yesterday on the recommendation of the district attorney when Derham admitted the mesdemeanor.

getting off in Marin. But southbound passengers boarding in Marin will pay fares as they board.

To further speed loading and prevent robberies, drivers will carry no change, so exact fares will be needed. Either a cash fare or a "convenience book" ticket can be used.

Books of 20 tickets, with a discount of 25 cents for each trip, can be bought at the following: Greyhound depots in San Rafael and Petaluma; Tower Drugs at Sansome and Sacramento streets, Shell Building Drugs at Battery and Bush streets and the East Bay Bus Terminal, all in San Francisco, and by mail to the district, P.O. Box 9000, Presidio Station, San Francisco 94129.

Arrangements for selling the books still were pending at the bus depots in Mill Valley and San Anselmo as well as at other San Francisco locations.

The books cost $10 for commuters from south of the Corte Madera ridge, $15 in the rest of Marin, $20 south of Santa Rosa, and $25 from Santa Rosa. Tickets also can be used to cross the bridge and on the Sausalito ferry.

Bridge commute tickets, in turn, can be used on the buses in lieu of cash, or used with cash — allowing a 25-cent discount — to make up the difference for fares over 50 cents.

Broken down by fare zones, one-way convenience ticket fares will be 50 cents from Southern Marin, 75 cents from the rest of Marin, $1 from Sonoma points south of Santa Rosa, and $1.25 from Santa Rosa. Cash fares are 25 cents higher in each zone.

The San Rafael and Novato Greyhound terminals will remain open to serve the company's long-haul system. Bridge district officials figure that terminals should be far less necessary under the new system because buses now will go into residential areas, unlike Greyhound's trunk system which itself made terminals necessary.

Plan for shelters at least at heavily used stops along the routes still are indefinite. The number of stops in Marin, about 450 under the district's initial system, probably will exceed 600 by the end of this coming year, according to district officials.

Witness Gone; Case Dropped

Car theft and grand theft charges against Thomas H. Thompson, 25, of San Rafael were dismissed Tuesday because the prosecution was not ready to proceed with a preliminary hearing.

Judge Robert A. Smallman of Marin Municipal Court dismissed the case when Deputy Dist. Atty. Kathryn Mitchell said her witnesses were not present.

Thompson was arrested on Dec. 9 when police went to his home at the request of the state parole agent and found Thompson in a car which was reported stolen in Oakland.

Prisoner Dies At San Quentin

A 47-year-old San Quentin inmate died of heart failure today in the prison hospital, a prison spokesman said today.

Alvin D. Price of Sacramento, who was serving a life sentence for a second degree Sacramento robbery with five felony convictions, had been hospitalized for about a month.

According to Joseph R. O'Brien, prison information officer, Price was transferred to the prison last month from the Susanville work farm after becoming ill.

He is survived by a son in Sacramento.

Candidate Night Set For Jan. 6

A candidates night for the two candidates for one position on the Lagunitas School District board will be held at 8 p.m. on Jan. 6 at the Lagunitas School multipurpose room, sponsored by the San Geronimo Valley Association.

Candidates Donald Lethbridge and Richard C. Sloan will present their views and answer questions from the audience.

More Interviews

2 Youths Hurt On Highway 101

Two Marin youths were injured yesterday in a single-car crash northbound on Highway 101 north of Sir Francis Drake Boulevard, according to the California Highway Patrol.

Thomas C. Watts, 18, of 1208 Sir Francis Drake Boulevard, San Anselmo, the driver of the vehicle, was reported in satisfactory condition today at Marin General Hospital with multiple facial cuts. A passenger, Leroy Leonhardt, 20, of 3550 Redwood Highway, San Rafael, was reported in satisfactory condition at Kaiser Foundation Hospital in San Francisco with a cut head and bruised back.

Officers said Watts slammed into a highway guard rail when he lost control of his auto after swerving around another car.

Alioto's Uncle In Car Wreck

Joseph F. Alioto, 68, uncle of the San Francisco mayor, was reported in fair condition today at Hillcrest Hospital in Petaluma with head and shoulder injuries suffered in an auto accident Wednesday in Cotati.

The California Highway Patrol said the 7:40 p.m. accident on Highway 101 at Railroad Avenue occurred when the car driven by Alioto a San Francisican, struck the center divider strip, crossed the southbound lane, struck a fence and overturned.

namese invasion of Cambodia in May of 1970.

The Pentagon said 46 sorties were flown the first day of the operation last Sunday, then about 240 daily since including today.

The five days of raids also was more than twice the length of the 60 hours of raids in the 1970 aerial campaign.

As the end of the bombing campaign was announced, the command said one American soldier was killed on Vietnamese battlefields last week for the lowest death toll since the final week of February, 1965, when there were no American battle deaths.

The low casualty toll of one killed and 29 wounded last week was attributed to the low level of Viet Cong activity during its three-day Christmas cease-fire, military sources said.

The U.S. Military Assistance Command, Vietnam (MACV) said in part:

"Limited duration protective reaction air strikes against military targets in North Vietnam south of the 20th Parallel have been conducted and completed by U.S. Air Force and U.S. Navy aircraft during the past five days.

"These strikes were terminated at 3:56 p.m. (3:56 a.m. EST) today. The major portion of the strikes were north of the Demilitarized Zone (DMZ) and south of the 18th Parallel.

"These limited duration air strikes were conducted for the purpose of the protecting the safety and security of diminishing U.S. forces during our withdrawal from South Vietnam.

"These air strikes were directed against surface-to-air missiles (SAMs), antiaircraft artillery sites, air defense radar sites, the enemy's logistic and petroleum-oil-lubricants (LOL) buildup north of the DMZ and particularly opposite major passes into Laos. Also included in the targets were certain airfields south of the 20th Parallel from which there has been increasing MIG activity in recent weeks."

The final day's raids saw more Communist antiaircraft and missile fire and more Soviet-built MIG fighters rising to challenge the U.S. planes but no damage was reported to them.

In the ground war, the South Vietnamese military command called off a five-week-old operation against Viet Cong sanctuaries in eastern Cambodia.

Military sources said the 35,000 troops who took part were needed to try to thwart an expected offensive by Communist guerrillas infiltrating further north from Cambodia into South Vietnam's Central Highlands.

The North Vietnamese government also ordered the nation's 17 million people "on constant alert" because of the American air raids, the longest in duration since former President Lyndon B. Johnson halted bombing north of the Demilitarized Zone (DMZ) Nov. 1, 1968.

The directive was issued by the general command of the North Vietnamese People's Armed Forces and it further ordered the army and militia to help rebuild air raid shelters and along witp civilians "to be on constant alert and ready for combat."

The order was less far-reaching than those of 1965 and 1966 when children and other noncombatants were dispersed to the countryside to cut down o the possibility of civilian casualties when the United States was heavily bombing much of North Vietnam.

Plea Change In Murders Is Refused

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — Harry B. Conwell was arraigned yesterday in Superior Court here on a charge of murdering the mother of a Marin woman after he attempted to change his guilty plea to two other murders.

The 43-year-old ex-convict was indicted Tuesday and arraigned yesterday on a charge of knificg Elinor Cushman, 75, during a robbery Aug. 6. Mrs. Cushman, mother of Jean Wiedenmeyer of San Rafael, died about a month ago.

A motion by Conwell's attorney to withdraw guilty pleas to charges of murdering George Cushman, 89, of Aug. 6 and Ernest Paramino, 76, a week later was denied by Judge Walter Calcagno. Conwell pleaded guilty to those murders last week.

Conwell was arrested after allegedly attacking Paramino with a knife at the old man's apartment. He was subsequently charged with the earlier knife attack on the Cushmans.

He is scheduled to be sentenced for the two murders and to plead to tme third Jan. 7.

ETHEL GILOGLY
Long-time local nurse

OBITUARIES

Ethel Gilogly, 83, Dies

Ethel Gilogly, a nurse at the old San Rafael Cottage and San Rafael General hospitals for 39 years, died yesterday at a local hospital after a long illness. She was 83.

Miss Gilogly was a lifelong resident of San Rafael. She lived at 1014 Grand Avenue.

After graduating from San Rafael High School, she attended Hahnemann Hospital School of Nursing in San Francisco.

After graduation in 1914, she was on private duty for four years, then went to work at the West End Hospital in San Rafael. From there she went to work for the County Emergency Hospital then to the Cottage Hospital in 1926. She retired in 1965 after 39 years at the hospital on Nye Street later named San Rafael General Hospital.

Surviving are two sisters, Eleanor Murray and Ida Heins, both of San Rafael.

A Mass of the Resurrection will be celebrated at 10 a.m. tomorrow followed by burial at Mount Olivet Cemetery in San Rafael. A Rosary will be recited at 8 p.m. today at the Keaton Chapel in San Rafael.

mission of juvenile court before releasing any juvenile information to any third party.

Wilson said the ban will not apply when the following persons or agencies ask for such information:

The minor himself, the minor's attorney, the district attorney, county probation department; juvenile court personnel; parents or guardians of the minor; the school attended by the minor; any law enforcement agency of the state for its use in investigation of the crime; Department of Public Social Services of Marin; hospitals, schools, camps and other placement agencies which reqire information for placement or treatment; and the California Youth Authority.

These persons and agencies who get the information must be notified that the information is confidentcal and should not be released, said the judge.

Jail Term In Store Holdup

Lee Alan Bramson, 22, of Sleepy Hollow, must serve one year in Marin County Jail and remain on supervised probation for five years for robbing a Fairfax liquor store.

Judge E. Warren McGuire of Marin Superior Court sentenced Bramson on Dec. 22.

On July 25, Bramson robbed Celoni's Liquor Store at gunpoint, taking $249 in cash. A probation officer's report said Bramson had responsible jobs until he became addicted to heroin.

The judge ordered Bramson to submit to a narcotics test whenever directed to do so by his probation officer.

JOHN WISHOVICH

John Wishovich, a 10-year resident of San Rafael, died yesterday after collapsing while walking near his home at 6 Nunan Lane.

Wishovich, 85, was a native of Vienna, Austria, and came to the United States at age 14.

He lived most of his life in San Francisco and served three separate tours of duty with the U.S. Army, including service during World War II.

He also had worked with the steel department of the Simmons Company in San Francisco, from which he retired 12 years ago.

He was a member of the Holy Name Society at St. Raphael's Church in San Rafael.

In addition to his wife, Elizabeth, of the family home, Wishovich is survived by two sons, Edward of San Rafael, and John A. of San Diego, and a daughter, Rosemarie Hurst, of Saigon, South Vietnam.

Funeral arrangements were pending at Keaton's Mortuary in San Rafael.

MRS. SALISBURY

Funeral for Verla W. Salisbury of San Rafael will be at 12:30 p.m. tomorrow at Chapel of the Hills in San Anselmo.

Mrs. Salisbury died Tuesday in a local convalescent hospital following a long illness. She was 77.

She was born in Idaho and lived in Salt Lake City and Los Angeles before recently moving to Marin.

Surviving are her husband, William H. Salisbury; a daughter, V. Lucille Hodgen of San Rafael; a son, Glen H. Walker of Malibu; a brother, R. Willis Walker of Rexburg, Idaho; a sister, Mary C. Berkhausen of Salt Lake City, and five grandchildren.

Burial will be in Mount Tamalpais Cemetery in San Rafael.

Hospitals Approve Work Pact

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Eight San Francisco hospitals have approved a new 30-month contract with Hospital & Institutional Workers Local 250.

Details of the pact were worked out by Sam Kagel, an arbitrator and mediator, in consultation with management and union negotiators, it was announced Wednesday.

(No Marin hospital is affected by the pact. Kaiser Foundation Hospital in San Rafael has employees in the union, but negotiates separately.)

Local 250 secretary Timothy Twomey said workers would get pay hikes of 8.2 per cent each 10 months of the contract.

However, four other hospitals here said seven in Alameda County refused to go along with the agreement. A management official said his group objected to the contract because it could not get assurance from the U. S. Price Commission that it could meet the higher wages.

Representatives of the 11 hospitals will meet again with Local 250 in an effort to resolve the situation.

Causes Of 2 Fires Being Investigated

Arson is being investigated as a possible cause of a downtown San Rafael store fire, and an electrical heater is being checked as the possible cause of a $120,000 apartment house fire before Christmas, San Rafael Fire Marshal Ken Mazza said today.

Mazza said San Rafael police have been called into the investigation of the Dec. 9 blaze at Bell's Interiors, Inc., 1212 Fourth Street. Search for routine causes such as electrical short circuits or cigarettes has proved negative, but police are checking out reports of a suspicious-appearing person in the store before the fire, Mazza said.

Damage to the building was estimated at $3,000, but insurance adjustors have not yet tallied damage to the store's merchandise, Mazza reported.

The Dec. 21 fire that routed 75 occupants of the Park Towers apartments, 108 Professional Center Parkway, probably was caused by a faulty baseboard heater, Mazza said. He added that an electrical engineer is checking over the heater.

Damage in the apartment blaze was estimated at $80,000 to the four-story building and $40,000 to the contents of the apartments, Mazza added.

Growth Seen In New Year

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Pacific Gas & Electric Co. predicted today economic growth in northern and central California next year will be "soundly based and at a moderately faster pace than in the past year."

PG&E said in its annual market outlook that population will continue to grow, although at a slower rate than previously, the capacity of minority members to buy is rising and demans for clean air and clean water will have "widespread effect" on communities, developers, industry and employes.

PG&E forecast a 1 per cent increase in employment in the region in 1972, a statewide increase in personal income to a new high total of $100 billion, and higher retail sales.

California Has A Profitable Third Quarter

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—Taxable sales in California hit a record $11.8 billion during the third quarter of this year, the state Board of Equalization has announced.

A report released by the board Wednesday said sales were up almost 5 per cent over the same period last year, netting state and local government $606.4 million in sales and use taxes.

The third quarter sales figure is also higher than the $11.6 billion second quarter and $10.9 billion first quarter this year.

The board predicts that the fourth quarter in 1971 will "far outstrip the slack 1970 fourth quarter."

The board announced that a breakdown of figures for individual counties will not be available until the middle or latter part of January.

'Jesus People' Picket, Decry San Rafael Planned Parenthood

By C.P. McCARTHY

About 20 "Jesus people" staged a short demonstration yesterday at the San Rafael office of the Planned Parenthood Association to protest what they regard as the association's encouragement of extra-marital sex.

Carrying signs with messages such as "Sex is best God's way," "Sex is only for marriage" and "Jesus loves planned parenthood, but not their philosopy," the demonstrators paraded in a circle outside the entrance to the association's office at 710 C Street for half an hour.

Most were from Marin County, with some from Sonoma County, according to one of the organizers of the demonstration, Hugo Coutandin, 16-year old San Rafael High School student.

Coutandin said the members of the unstructured religious movement were protesting planned parenthood's attitude, which he said was "go out and have sex, just don't get pregnant or VD."

He criticized the association's policy of giving birth control devices to young people, saying it encouraged premarital sexual relations, which he said violated God's will.

Charles B. Gompertz, president of the Planned Parenthood Association of Marin County and an Episcopal priest, said he thought the demonstration was "interesting."

But he said the demonstrators were trying to "resolve their anxiety with the present by looking to an idealized past.

"It was just such groups with narrow vision that crucified Jesus in the first place by failing to see that God is continually revealing himself in the present," he said.

However, Gompertz said he took the demonstrator's charges seriously. "I'm not belittling them or their faith," he said, but added he had different beliefs.

He denied the charge planned parenthood encouraged premarital sex, saying that contraceptives are given by planned parenthood only to persons who have already been engaging in sexual relations.

"There is so much suffering in Marin County caused by unwanted children and venereal disease that as a priest and as a person, I can make no other response than to support planned parenthood in Marin," he said.

The Jesus people disagreed. "If this outfit (planned parenthood) had their way, they would have recommended an abortion to the Virgin Mary," said Moishe Rosen of Corte Madera.

Rev. Kent A. Philpott of San Rafael, an ordained Baptist minister who said he ministers to Jesus people, said the group was not against sex. "We're not puritans or anything like that," he said.

"God made sex for marriage," and the "go ahead and screw" attitude of planned parenthood "messes people up," he said.

The group chanted slogans, including "love, not lust," during their short protest and sang spirituals such as "Amazing Grace," and ad libbed chrouses to others like, "Once I was a fornicator, but Jesus set me free."

Year-End Salute To Volunteer Writers

The by-lines of some reporters become almost as familiar to newspaper readers as do the faces of the "personalities" who read the news from teleprompters to TV watchers.

Over the years, Independent-Journal readers have become accustomed to the by-lines of such longtime observers of the local scene as Jeff Greer, Mary Leydecker, Don Keown, Harry Craft, Wat Takeshita (longest of all) and others.

There are also by-lines that appear for awhile, then disappear. This does not always mean the writers have moved elsewhere; they may merely have changed jobs. For instance, the by-line of Donald G. Davis was often seen in our columns a decade ago, and that of Robert M. Strebeigh more recently. Both are still around, but Davis became news editor, and Strebeigh, a non-writing city editor. It takes many more people than those whose names appear on stories to produce a newspaper.

THE I-J HAS, HOWEVER, a host of volunteer commentators who are not on the payroll, and some of their names are almost as familiar to readers as that of any reporter. We refer to the writers to "What Our Readers Say."

This editorial page feature provides a "safety valve" for members of the public with a grievance to air, a compliment to pay, or just some philosophy they would like to pass along.

Many take advantage of it. This year (through Tuesday, with three issues remaining to appear) we have printed 1,283 letters in "What Our Readers Say" — plus more than 200 in our "Rap Session" letter contest last April and May. Last year we ran 1,348; the year before that 1,360.

We have a handful of "regulars" some of whom seem to get the idea they really are on the staff as regular contributors and have to be "rationed" in the number of their letters we print — in order to give others a chance at the space. Except for this "rationing," the column is wide open, the only restrictions being against unsigned letters and those which are personally vindictive or otherwise possibly libelous, obscene, or in execrably bad taste.

SOMETIMES THE LETTERS about a single subject come in floods, as when it seemed that almost everyone in Lucas Valley addressed the editor to deplore the proposal for a Renaissance Center among that valley's meadows. Sometimes a single letter sparks a series of replies and a back-and-forth debate in "What Our Readers Say" that continues so long we have to call a halt.

Some appear trivial. Some are cantankerous. Some are gems of humor. And quite a few letters to the editor spark action toward needed reforms. So "What Our Readers Say" is more than a safety valve; it is an action forum too.

The close of the year 1971 seems an appropriate time to pay our regards to all these volunteer contributors who help make the I-J more readable. Keep the letters coming — but try, please, to hold each to 200 words. The other fellow has something to say, too.

BY RUS WALTON:

State Employees Want Pay Exempt From Control

SACRAMENTO — The California State Employees Association is getting ready to pour $2 million down a rat hole. It is going to spend that war chest on a campaign to get voter approval of a salary initiative which could cost the taxpayers hundreds of millions of dollars.

Somehow I don't think Mr. and Mrs. John Q. will go along with the scheme.

The CSEA wants to short-circuit the established budgetary process, do away with the governor's veto, and leave the salary rates for some 180,000 state employes in the hands of the State Personnel Board.

The only control on such annual salary increases would be in the hands of the legislature, and it would take a two-thirds majority to push that button.

THE WAY IT WORKS now, the State Personnel Board annually recommends salary adjustments to the governor. The governor can accept, modify, or reject those recommendations when he presents his budget to the legislature. He must weigh the recommendations against the state of the public treasury. How much can the employers — the taxpayers — afford?

The legislature can increase or decrease the governor's proposals. If he does not ask for any, it can put in its own, as was the case in the 1971-72 budget. The governor vetoed the salary increases the legislature inserted in the budget, and subsequently vetoed separate wage increase bills which the legislature had also passed.

Much the same process is used for every budget item. The CSEA wants to put itself above the rest of government. It rejects the idea that state employes should work within the taxpayers' means, or find employment elsewhere.

NO OTHER OCCUPATIONAL group is so depression-proof or recession-resistant. Depressions and recession come and go; government employment is forever.

Take the worst depression the nation has known — the years from 1930 to 1940. While millions were standing in breadlines, the governments' hiring halls were open.

In 1930, with 4.3 million unemployed, there were 610,000 federal employes. Five years later, in the dark of the depression, more than 10 million (20 per cent of the labor force) were out of work. But the number of federal employes had increased to 780,000.

And in 140, when eight million were still out of work (14 per cent of the labor force), federal employment had soared to 1,042,420 — almost double the 1930 total.

The trend was similar in state government. From 1930 to 1940 the number of state employes more than doubled. In recent years, state employment has continued to be depression-proof.

Even during the cut-squeeze-and-trim efforts of the Reagan administration, state employment has crept upward. What dips there were came through attrition, not lay-offs.

THERE ARE THOUSANDS of men and women, right now, who would grab a job with the state — at prevailing wages and prevailing job security. Ask any unemployed aerospace worker.

The CSEA wants depression-proof jobs — and the keys to the vault.

It won't work. Many state employees don't go along with the idea. And the public won't, either — especially now that the administration has found $98.5 million for employee pay raises next year.

Commute Bus Driver's Farewell 'Thank You'

It happened once before when the old railroad was replaced by the Greyhound buses, and now the big grey dog is going to be replaced by the buses of the Golden Gate Bridge Transportation District. When will it all end?

For us, the Greyhound drivers, it is ending Jan. 1. The majority of us have worked in Marin County for many years, own homes here and have raised our families in its (Marin's) marvelous surroundings. Some of us will exercise our option to work for the new district, but many others of us will choose to remain employees of Greyhound. It is from the latter contingent that I would like to say, "Thank you."

Thank you — the daily commuter; the many little old ladies and gentlemen; thank you hippies (not all of them hitchhike) and thank you school kids, et al. For without your faithfulness we may have never found Marin County in our search for work and residence.

For many years you have put up with us and in turn we have put up with you. It was a great experience and many friendships were made. We will miss it all, the friendship, the crummy old buses, the routes, that always rewarded driver and passenger alike, which came together to finally emerge from the Waldo Tunnel and opened all eyes to the greatest spectacle of all, the Golden Gate, San Francisco Bay, the most picturesque skyline in the world.

Yes, we will miss it, for some of us will be spread all over the 11 western states. And, should you someday find yourself on a bus trip by Greyhound and recognize the driver as one of your old commute drivers, say hello. He will be interested.

I know I do not have the right to speak for all the drivers but I am sure the majority would share my sentiments. We really do hate to see it end.

Way To Get Back Bridge Discount Book?

As one of the many users of the Golden Gate Bridge who must use a car in business, the discontinuance of regular user discount tickets has a tinge of unfairness about it.

The so-called "convenience" is more to the benefit of the ticket takers who will not have to handle money or make change.

s Perhaps, for those of us left who must run our own cars across the bridge, the use of coinage at the booths would point up the mutual benefit in the use of discount rate ticket books.

It might be worth it to the bridge district to give us a small dividend to avoid the annoyance of toll-takers being required to handle small change.

And more of us, using lots of very small change, might just effect a desirable return to discount books!

Working Mother Finds Discrimination

I am a responsible working mother, separated from my husband, with one child. The purpose of this letter is to point out what I believe to be a major problem in Marin County confronting women in my position; namely, the problem of housing.

I am weary of being hung-up on, having doors slammed in my face, and occasionally being listened to with polite disinterest by potential landlords.

The majority of ads in the paper specify "Adults Only" with a few reading "Family Only". The latter, I have found, does not regard a mother and her child as "family". Upon inquiring into the ads which make no specifications (which are few), I find that a large number of landlords consider a mother and child alone undesireable as tennants and refuse to rent to them.

This discrimination hits the single mother hardest as she is most likely working for less money than a man to begin with. Along with the usual expenses, she must also pay for day care and babysitting which doesn't leave her much in the end. Buying, or even renting a house is out of the question and she has no other alternative but to seek a home in the form of an apartment. It is at this point that she is met with such widespread discrimination against her children and herself as a single mother that the situation begins to appear insurmountable.

I think it's time we recognized the housing needs of the single mothers in Marin County and made some kind of provisions for them. The imposing of blanket rules such as "Adults Only" and "Family Only" weeds out many responsible people as potential tennants along with the undesireable ones; and it does nothing to insure for good tennants. Why not at least give everyone the same chance as separate individuals and stop slamming the door to an entire group of people?

Rabbi Confused By Yule Editorial

Your editorial of Dec. 23 left me with a feeling of confusion and concern. If the article had been entitled, "A Time to Remember Religious Ambiguity," perhaps it would have been more laconic.

No one with any sensitivity would argue that in recent years the religious nature of Christmas has been de-emphasized as a result of commerce in the marketplace. That the Christ has been taken out of Christmas is most assuredly a perplexing problem for the Christian community. But, that there have been protests vis-a-vis public display of nativity scenes and presentation by school children of nativity plays by many who feel that these traditions violate the principle of separation of church and state, should not be of concern to one who calls himself a Christian.

As your editorial pointf out, it was Madison — himself an observing Episcopalian — whose statements led to a delineation of church-state policy in the United States. Our forefathers had experienced the pain of exclusion and even rejection where no established policy separating church-state issues existed. Madison was absolutely correct when he said if government can establish Christianity to the exclusion of all other religions, it can later establish another sect to the exclusion of the rest.

The fact that the religious nature of Christmas has been de-emphasized is, of course, a problem that the Christian community must deal with within the church and the home. . .

. . . Why Christmas, or any other religious holiday for that matter, has to be found in the public schools or on public display in order to have religious tolerance is beyond my comprehension. . .

. . . Yes, Christmas is a time for those who believe in the divinity of Jesus to honor him and through him, God. But, what do you mean, "and under the principle of religious tolerance any attempt to interfere with its observances through the agencies of government is itself a violation of separation of church and state"? Does this imply that the separation of church and state, as established by the early founders of this country and substantiated by the courts, is somehow interfering with a Christian's right to observe Christmas? I think not, and I would be greatly disturbed to discover that the editor feels that such a separation must be rejected in order for a Christian to observe this sacred holiday. . .

DAVID DAVIS
Rabbi
Congregation Rodef Sholom

Santa Venetia.

(The point the editorial tried to make is that governmental interference with Christians' observance of Christmas — by banning public display of religious symbols, for instance — broaches the separation of church and state and represents religious intolerance. Outlawing public display of the of David would be in the same category. — Editor.)

MARQUIS CHILDS

David Packard Not Among Those Who Never Will Be Missed

WASHINGTON — "And who never would be missed, who never would be missed." — "The Mikado," Gilbert and Sullivan.

That refrain applies to innumerable officeholders who have come and gone. A public servant has just left after three arduous years who, on the contrary, will be very much missed indeed.

David Packard, as deputy secretary of defense, did more than anyone in recent history to bring order and coherence to the vast, sprawling empire covered by the word Pentagon. The fact that defense spending is down from nine per cent of gross national product in 1968 to seven per cent owes a lot to the drastic cutbacks in Vietnam and elsewhere, but not a little is owed to Packard's tireless pursuit of waste, efficiency and just plain bureaucratic foot-dragging.

The successful industrialist who takes a Washington job without prior experience in government is a familiar figure. In the Eisenhower administration they filled a variety of high offices and, for the most part, they found the experience frustrating and defeating. With notable exceptions they were eager to return as soon as possible to the little old shop, which might be a multimillion-dollar corporation, back home.

Packard bore a superficial resemblance to the type. He found the processes of government irksome, often maddening, and he would speak sometimes nostalgically of going back to his little shop in California which happened to be a $400 million enterprise. But with determination and great expertise he dug into the Pentagon tangle. While he was often brought up short, he contributed substantially to the reductions in force and money that have been part of the Nixon program to transfer responsibility to nations that have been American satellites.

IN A FINAL press conference, this massive, reticent, unflappable man spoke some of the things long on his mind. Contrary to the howlers and screamers who constantly beat the drums for more and evermore lethal weapons, he said out of his far-reaching knowledge that the United States today has "an acceptable balance in our strategic capability." Then he added:

"The Soviets are continuing to build up their offensive forces at a very rapid pace and unless we can achieve some satisfactory agreement, in our arms limitation talks, I think we may have a problem. I'm hopeful we can reach some satisfactory agreement here, and I believe that we have done enough work here in the government during the past three years to understand the problem well and I think that the President will have adequate and good guidance in deciding what should be done in the future on all strategic forces."

In response to a question about further economies, Packard replied that at least $1 billion could be saved by closing useless military bases. But this was difficult, if not impossible, because of political pressures from members of Congress whose districts would be hurt.

Standing at Packard's elbow was his chief, Sec. Melvin R. Laird. Laird interposed to say that in all fairness it should be added that defense cuts had already affected more than 2,700,000 jobs and people felt, many in Congress, that the Defense Department had moved too rapidly. That, said the secretary blandly, is a constraint to further action at this time.

Whatever his private convictions, no one can fault Packard for a lack of loyalty either to Laird or to the administration. He expressed his confidence in President Nixon and the importance of his re-election to a second term.

WHEN PACKARD was named to the Pentagon post a lot was heard about the military-industrial complex. His firm — Hewlett, Packard — has about 30 per cent of its business, chiefly electronics, in defense contracts. He signed an agreement putting his 3,550,000 shares in Hewlett, Packard in trust with the stipulation that any increase in value go for education and charity.

During his tenure the stock had split two for one and his current holding was 7,100,300 shares. This represented an accretion in value of $18,815,000, which Packard and his wife are currently giving to a variety of recipients. Having begun with an initial investment of $600, it is an old-fashioned success story, and government service is a postscript to that success.

WINDOW ON THE WORLD

Devaluation Of Dollar Puts The Pound In Trouble Again

By JOSEPH W. GRIGG.

LONDON (UPI)—President Nixon has hailed the Washington agreement to rebuild the free world's money system as "historic."

Yet already there is talk in London that the British pound— ailing only a few years ago but now among the world's strongest currencies—may be in trouble again in a year or so.

UNDER THE WASHINGTON package deal, Britain upped the pound's value against the dollar by 8.6 per cent to a new $2.60 parity.

The question now being asked is whether Britain can hold that line or whether it might have to devalue again as it did in 1967.

The Guardian newspaper commented editorially, "Britain could find the task of defending the new dollar exchange rate of $2.60 and at the same time encouraging sustained growth at home a problem a year hence."

The weekly Economist said, "In our view $2.60 is too high a rate for sterling and would probably require another British devaluation within two years."

EVER SINCE THE AUG. 15 dollar crisis Britain, like most western trading nations, has sought to damp down upward revaluation of her currency.

But Barber has found himself in trouble pressing this argument.

Instead of its previous chronic international payments deficits, Britain is expected to show a surplus of more than one billion pounds ($2.6 billion) this year.

Gold and foreign exchange reserves stand at an all-time high of 2.322 billion pounds ($6 billion).

It has been hard for Barber to plead poverty.

YET INFLATION in Britain is running at a 10 per cent annual clip —highest in almost any Western country. Economists say this soon will price many British exports out of world markets.

The government is seeking to slash unemployment —now edging one million—by tax cuts and other boosts to the economy.

This could bring a boom at home but hit Britain's foreign payments balance by encouraging imports and forcing up the price of British exports.

Officials also agree that when Britain joins the European Common Market in 1973 the cost to its payments balance will be high.

All this, experts say, may well destroy the present surplus.

In such a case, the Financial Times of London said, the new $2.60 parity may have to be reconsidered.

Corte Maderans Get The Word On Cost Of Fire Protection

The September fire that sparked evaluation of the Corte Madera Fire Department didn't start a controversy. It rekindled an old one.

Back in 1966, residents of East Corte Madera fumed about spotty fire protection and demanded that the Paradise Drive substation be manned from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. daily.

The town council set up a fire protection committee that eventually rejected the notion of a public safety system in which police would have doubled as firemen. It instead went for hiring full-time firemen and set in motion the slow shift to full-time firefighters.

The public safety plan, which seemed to have been a pet money-saving project of former Town Mgr. Ronald L. Usher, popped up again in 1969. Again it was squelched under objections from volunteer firemen and Chief Frank L. Nelson.

RESIDENTS OF East Corte Madera, still wanting 24-hour-a-day protection, again took up the fight since the blaze which destroyed two homes and damaged a third on Constitution Drive on Sept. 16.

Once more the town council appointed a committee to study fire protection, but this time it threw in $4,000 for a fire consultant's report.

The report by the Watsonville fire chief and a structural engineer from that town confirmed what some residents have been telling the town council and town manager since 1966: The fire department is undermanned and poorly equipped.

A look at the budget shows why. Corte Madera is spending $85,274 this fiscal year to support its five-man fulltime firefighting force and 14 others who are volunteers. The police budget is near $270,000.

Neighboring Larkspur, which is about the same size, budgeted $217,151 for fire protection this year and $185,360 for police.

CLEARLY, CORTE MADERA, which has financed a professional police department, has been unwilling to spend the money for a first-class fire department.

To make up for this past penny pinching, the town needs about $500,000 in equipment — including two new engines and a better located fire house — and 13 more full-time men, according to the consultants, Bill S. Ingram and Chief Bryce W. Connick. Salaries would cost about $272,000 a year, they said.

Now that the townspeople have learned how much it will cost for the best possible fire department, they will be asked in a questionnaire prepared by a citizen subcommittee to decide how much they are willing to pay.

The Free Generation Versus The Germ-Free Old Folks

WASHINGTON — You don't really feel the generation gap in this country until a son or daughter comes home from college for Christmas. Then it strikes you how out of it you really are.

This dialogue is probably taking place all over American this week:

"Nancy, you've been home from school for three days now. Why don't you clean up your room?"

"We don't have to clean up our rooms at college, Mother."

"That's very nice, Nancy, and I'm happy you're going to such a free-wheeling institution. But while you're in the house, your father and I would like you to clean up your room."

"What difference does it make? It's my room."

"I KNOW, DEAR, and it really doesn't mean that much to me. But your father has a great fear of the plague. He said this morning if it is going to start anywhere in this country it's going to start in your room."

"Mother, you people aren't interested in anything that's relevant. Do you realize how the major corporations are polluting our environment?"

"Your father and I are very worried about it. But right now we're more concerned with the pollution in your bedroom. You haven't made your bed since you came home."

"Of course you don't, and I'm sure the time you save goes toward your education. But we still have these old-fashioned ideas about making beds in the morning and we can't shake them. Since you're home for such a short time, why don't you do it to humor us?"

"FOR HEAVEN'S SAKE, Mother, I'm grown up now. Why do you have to treat me like a child?"

"We're not treating you like a child. But it's very hard for us to realize you're an adult when you throw all your clothes on the floor."

"I havent' thrown all my clothes on the floor. Those are just the clothes I wore yesterday."

"Forgive me. I exaggerated. Well, how about the dirty dishes and empty soft-drink cans on your desk? Are you collecting them for a science project?"

"Mother, you don't understand us. You people were brought up to have clean rooms. But our generation doesn't care about things like that. It's what you have in your head that counts."

"NO ONE RESPECTS education more than your father and I do, particularly at the prices they're charging. But we can't see how living in squalor can improve your mind."

"That's because of your priorities. You would rather have me make up my bed and pick up my clothes than become a free spirit who thinks for myself."

"We're not trying to stifle your free spirit. It's just that our Blue Cross has run out, and we have no protection in case anybody in the family catches typhoid."

"All right, I'll clean up my room if it means that much to you. But I want you to know you've ruined my vacation."

"It was a calculated risk I had to take. Oh, by the way, I know this is a terrible thing to ask of you, but would you mind helping me wash the dinner dishes?"

"Wash dishes? Nobody washes dishes at school."

"Your father and I were afraid of that."

Christians In Easy Victory On Tiny Island

GLENDALE, Calif. (UPI)— Candidates surnamed "Christian" swept to victory in the elections of Pitcairn Island, smallest of Britain's possessions, but they had an electorate most candidates can only dream of.

"Of the 61 registered voters on the island, 23 have the surname Christian," reported the island's radio officer, Tom Christian.

The Christians are descendants of Fletcher Christian, the royal Navy officer who led the mutiny on H.M.S. Bounty in 1787 against the rule of Capt. William Bligh. The mutineers sailed with their Polynesian women to Pitcairn Island in the South Pacific, more than 2,000 miles from any major land mass, and 90 of their descendants still live there.

Every islander over 18 must vote or pay a fine of one New Zealand dollar, and "few people can stand that kind of fine so we always have a full turnout," Christian reported by radio to the communications center of the Seventh Day Adventist Church.

Two Christians were named to the two vacant seats on the 12-man island council, and a third to the Internal Committee. The defeated candidates included two other Christians.

Trade Council President Elected

N. C. Green of Plasterers and Cement Masons 355 was elected president of the Marin County Building and Construction Trade Council at its meeting this month.

Other officers elected are: Bill Hampton, Teamsters 624, vice-president; George Goodfellow, Laborers 291, secretary-treasurer; Al Hansen, Operating Engineers 3, warden; trustees James Adrain, Carpenters 36, George Brown, Carpet-Linoleum 1235, and Charles Snyder, Operating Engineers, 3. All trustees except Brown were incumbents.

Big Firemen's Group Meets In San Rafael

Business meetings, speakers and a president's banquet will be included in the winter conference of the Northern California Firemen's Association, to be held Jan. 21-23 at the Holiday Inn, San Rafael.

The tentative program will open at noon Jan. 21 with a golf tournament and close at 9 a.m. Jan. 23 with a California State Firemen's Association deputies' meeting.

Directors of the Northern California association will meet at 7 p.m. Jan. 21.

Speakers will include Chet Born of the San Francisco Fire Department on "Public Relations through Fire Service Photography," and David Dietz, assistant city editor of the Independent-Journal on "News Media and the Fire Service." William Rogin of Education Research Inc. will conduct a session in leadership and management.

A general business meeting is set for 2 p.m. Jan. 22, followed by a talk by Dustin Leer of the Sausalito Fire Department on fighting fires near bodies of water.

The San Rafael Fire Department and the Marin County Association of Fire Departments are hosting the conference.

Police Capture Bank Robbers

SAARBRUECKEN, Germany (UPI)—Police caught up today with three wanted bank robbers, fatally shooting one and capturing the other two, in a gunfight near this city in southwest Germany, a police spokesman said.

The three men had been the subject of an extensive search since Monday when they robbed a Cologne bank of nearly $100,000 in marks and then took two police officers as hostages when they made their escape.

The spokesman said the shooting took place at the village of Baltersweiler, about 35 miles northeast of Saarbrueckeen.

Don't let safety play second fiddle.

CHP drinking driver arrests UP . . . accident rate DOWN

California Highway Patrol Officers approach a vehicle stopped after the officers observed it weaving in and out of the middle traffic lane.

For your own protection, if you drive don't drink

In order to assist and protect the individual from the "other" driver, the California Highway Patrol has a hard-hitting enforcement program aimed at the primary accident causing violations. We know this to be an effective weapon. For example, in Marin County during the past two years we have increased drinking driver arrests from 879 in 1969 to 1824 in 1971. During the same period reportable accidents have been reduced each year. Further, 253 fewer persons were killed or injured last year than in 1969. This is in the face of a 13% increase in traffic. To us this is a very real and tangible aspect of traffic safety.

The year 1972 promises to be even safer for Marin's motorists. As of this date, accidents are down 8% over 1970. Coincidentally, drinking driver arrests are up nearly 40% over last year.

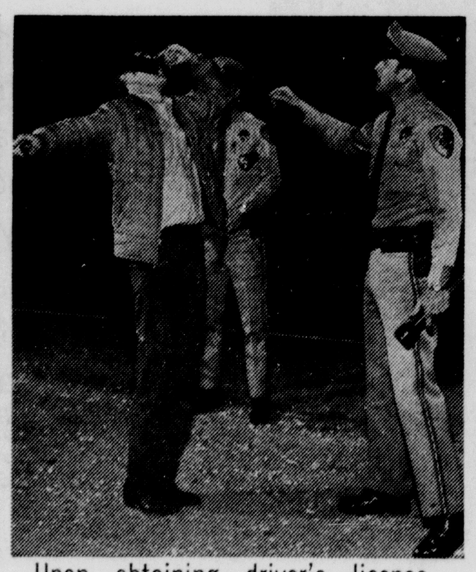
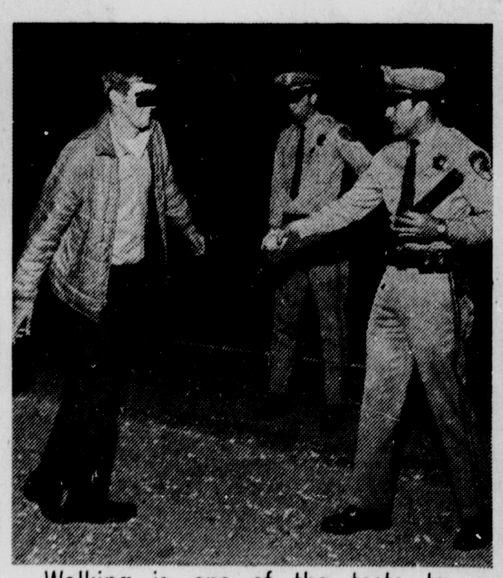
23102 DRIVING UNDER INFLUENCE
(a) VC It is unlawful for any person who is under the influence of intoxicating liquor, or under the combined influence of intoxicating liquor and any drug to drive a vehicle upon any highway. (misdemeanor).

What happens when a driver is stopped for suspected drunk driving:

After being advised of why he was stopped the erratic driver is requested to produce his driver's license.



Upon obtaining driver's license, driver is asked to get out of his vehicle and submit to field balance tests (with eyes closed — touch top of index finger to tip of nose).



Walking is one of the tests to determine the driver's balance and coordination (walk approx. straight line placing heel of one shoe against the toe of the other).

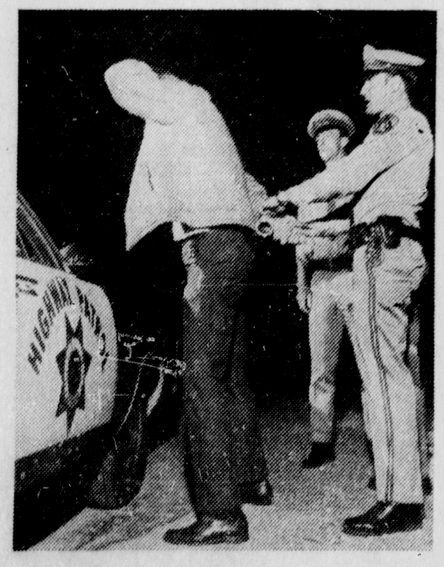
Prior to placing arrestee in the patrol car, he is "pat searched" for possible weapons.



With the "pat search" completed, he is handcuffed.

LOW CLAIM PAYOUTS

Malpractice Victim Gets Little Return

NEW YORK (UPI)—The high cost and scarcity of medical malpractice insurance is becoming as serious for the public as for the medical profession.

This was brought out forcibly in testimony by state insurance commissioners and other witnesses in the mid-December hearings in Washington held by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

Among the more startling disclosures was that only 20 cents out of each dollar paid for malpractice insurance ever reaches a victim of malpractice or his family. That compares with a claim payout of 42 cents on the premium dollar for automobile liability policies, a record the insurance companies admit they are not proud of.

Another was that malpractice insurance costs some hospitals as much as $2 a day per patient.

Greater concern was voiced by some of the commissioners over what they said was the cost inflation of medical care and actual deterioration of medical care resulting from the practice of "defensive medicine" by doctors and hospitals seeking to sidestep responsibility and avert malpractice suits.

Pennsylvania's insurance commissioner, Herbert Denenberg, said many physicians unhesitatingly order extra tests costing as much as $100 and put patients in hospital beds at $100 a day for tests or procedures where hospitalization is not really necessary just to protect themselves from a possible charge of neglect.

"If I'm wrong, I may be sued for a million dollars, so I don't hesitate to make the patient pay for an extra hundred dollars worth of tests," he quoted one surgeon as saying.

Denenberg and other witnesses told HEW officials that defensive medicine also may involve avoiding surgery and other procedures, regardless of the medical indications, because of the risk of lawsuits. "It even includes refusal to treat some patients altogether if they seem to be likely candidates for filing malpractice claims," Denenberg testified.

Testimony showed that even though some dramatically large judgments have been awarded to victims of medical and hospital malpractice, in the aggregate the victims's chance of recovery in the courts is small.

Among the measures proposed at the hearings to relieve the problem were:

Stricter regulation of hospitals to prevent accidents.

Some Exchanges To Close Early

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

All U.S. commodities exchanges will be closed Friday for a three-day New Year's holiday, but securities exchanges will operate as usual on the final day of the year.

Closing early today were the Chicago Board of Trade, Chicago Mercantile Exchange, Kansas City Board of Trade, Minneapolis Grain Exchange and the New York Mercantile Exchange. All will be closed Friday.

Most banks will be open Friday along with the rest of the financial community, but for most government workers and business generally the day will be observed as a holiday.

The Market Drops Off A Little

NEW YORK (UPI) —The combination of profit taking and pre-holiday lethargy weighed down the stock market today.

Shortly before the final gong, Standard & Poor's 500 stock index dipped 0.38 at 101.83, and declines topped advances by around 225 issues.

Point-sized losers were most evident in the electronics. Steels, Motors, Chemicals, and oils generally traded in fractions with a downward bias.

Rails, airlines, and aircrafts also moved narrowly.

Among the most active stocks were Daylin, Inc., American Telephone, Boise Cascade, Occidental Petroleum, Delta Air Lines, West Point-Pepperell, and Litton.

United Aircraft traded narrowly, although it said it expects to report a loss of $35 million to $40 million for 1971 based on a total writeoff of $125 million in the jet engine program for the Boeing 747 jumbo airliner.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. In 1954 I purchased 20 shares of Allis-Chalmers at $67 and 20 shares of Allied Stores at $48.50. Market prices now are $11.50 and $29.89, respectively. Should I still hold onto these stocks for a possible comeback or sell? — S.M.

A. Allis-Chalmers (NYSE), recently discussed here, may be held for its potential recovery prospects as may Big Board-listed Allied Stores. Stock's presently depressed trading levels reflect in large part a sharp downturn in the company's earnings, despite steady sales gains.

After posting two deficit quarters (the first and second of fiscal 1971), Allied reported a 10 cents a share profit for the third period, compared with 13 cents in the year-earlier quarter, on a 7.4 percent increase in sales. For the nine months ended October, however, Allied's red ink was trimmed to 11 cents a share versus fiscal 1970's 27 cents a share loss.

Operations are expected to pick up for the balance of fiscal 1971 and beyond aided by an improvement in retail trade conditions in general, increased consumer buying in the Christmas season, and new store openings. Now quoted about 41 percent below its all-time levels, shares may be held for gradual recovery in line with Allied's operations.

Q. I would like some comment on the reliability of the Lykes-Youngstown 7½s of 1993-94. The bond interest is always received on time. What is its current value? Would this bond be readily salable? — B.K.

A. This lower-medium grade BB-rated debenture is trading around 70, i.e., $700, a price which indicates the speculative nature of the issue. Operating deficits were incurred by Lykes-Youngstown in 1969 and 1970 and in the first nine months of the current year.

The preferred dividend has not been paid for four quarters. Your holding, which is a direct but unsecured obligation of the company, is subordinated to the company's senior debt. The issue trades regularly on the NYSE. Sale is suggested.

Q. We have $5,000 to invest in absolutely safe 10-year tax-free bonds paying 8 per cent. If we are wrong in any of our requirements, please suggest what is available. — R.B.

A. Top quality, short-term tax free bonds are currently returning about 4.4 per cent — taxable equivalent of about 6.5 per cent in a 32 per cent tax bracket. Even in 1970, when bond yields were at their peak, returns on tax exempt bonds never reached 8 per cent. Unless you and your wife are in a 40 per cent or higher tax bracket I would advise a taxable corporate bond carrying A or AA rating, with 15 or 20 years to maturity. In this category you should be able to find a bond returning 7.5 per cent or better.

OTHER PEOPLE'S BUSINESS

By HARRY CRAFT

200 Businesses Came To Marin During Course Of '71

Approximately 200 new business ventures were started in Marin County - or transferred here from points outside the county - during 1971.

About a third of these were in the general retail store category — women's wear and other clothing stores and shoe stores (6 per cent); antiques, furniture, furniture design and furniture refinishing, import and art goods shops (9 per cent); paint, sporting goods, flower shops, bicycle sales and rental shops and other miscellaneous stores - 18 per cent.

The automotive group — new dealers, automotive parts and supplies, tire centers, auto repair shops, car washes and motorcycle shops and parts stores - accounted for another 9 per cent.

Service businesses - securities and insurance offices, law offices, real estate offices, business counselors, advertising and public relations offices, accountants, schools and instruction centers and collection agencies - made up 19 per cent. Securities and insurance offices were the most numerous in the group, with 11 new offices. There were eight new lawyers' offices opened.

A general industrial and construction-related group, which included wholesalers and distributors, manufacturers, building contractors, engineers, architects and industrial designers, research and electronic firms, moving and storage companies, swimming pool contractors and suppliers and termite correction contractors, totaled 14 per cent. Wholesalers and distributors were in the lead in this group, with 11 new firms. Included in the category was one glass blower.

A fourth group of miscellaneous businesses accounted for 24 per cent of all new ventures. This included new banks and branches, restaurants and delicatessens (13 new establishments), printing and publishing firms, yacht brokers and marine supply firms, mortage bankers, photographers and photographic shops, beauty and reducing salons, lease and rental agents, pet hospitals, motion picture theaters, commercial film producers, travel agencies, limousine service, office and answering services and general offices.

ARTHUR G. FALK of San Rafael has been advanced to second vice-president, claims, by Fireman's Fund American Insurance Companies. He joined the organization in 1957 and for the past four years has been assistant vice-president in charge of claims. He has been in the life insurance business since 1938.

M. B. (TIM) MCGOWAN of San Rafael has been appointed vice-president in charge of domestic construction operations of the Ben G. Gerwick Co. He joined the company on 1957 and for the past four years has been a general superintendent. Gerwick is a division of Santa Fe-Pomeroy, Inc.

RAY AND NADINE SCHRAM, doing business as Raydina Ice Skating, have purchased the 14,000-square-foot ice rink at 10 Fiver Avenue, Corte Madera, which they have been occupying as a tenant, from Western Real Estate Development Corp. They have been here more than four years. Previously their ice rink was located in San Anselmo.

Oddsmakers 'Happy' When Right 5 Of 10

By RALPH CHATOIAN

Just like the people who run the Nevada casinos, oddsmakers go for the volume of business, not the big percentage of winnings. I was told once the men who run the casinos are happy with a 51 or 52 per cent winning average. But they want volume.

San Rafael publicist Dick Skuse informed me about the winning and losing of Nick Antos the man who studies all the variables and then comes up with a football point spread for Harrah's Tahoe Racebook.

"People only remember the times the oddsmakers might be wrong, such as the big Super Bowl upset by the New York Jets," said Antos. "So this year I decided to find out just how well we oddsmakers do."

Nick went back over the 182 games he picked point spreads on during the 1971 regular National Football League season. He had 87 winners in which teams won by the point spread or higher. He had 82 losers in which teams either did not win by enough points or lost the game altogether. If a point or two off, the game went into the loser's category. There were 13 "pick'em" games which had no point spreads at all.

"Thus," said Antos, "our winning percentage was 51.4 per cent. In our 49.6 per cent losers, there were many games in which the favorite won by 4 when he was favored by 6; by 6 when he was favored by 7, etc. If an oddsmaker can call the point spreads in more than 50 per cent of the games, then he is doing a good job."

For last week's playoff games, points out Skuse, Antos had correct picks on Dallas over Minnesota and Baltimore over Cleveland, and "missed Kansas City and Miami by narrow width of Jan Stenerud's missed field goal (had Kansas City by 3), and missed 49ers over Washington by a couple of points."

Let's hope his Dallas pick over the 49ers (5½ points) Sunday is one of those in the 49.6 per cent class.

IN CASE YOU were wondering how much that 49er victory over the Redskins was worth to each San Francisco player, the answer is $5,500 and a chance for a lot more.

This is the way playoff pay works:

The league pays each player on every team that makes the playoffs one-fourteenth of his yearly salary, so players in that first playoff game make the same pay as they do for one of the 14 regular season games. But by winning the game, the team advances to the conference championship game which guarantees $5,500 to eash loser, while each winner gets $8,500.

And not only does each player get his $8,500 share, he is guaranteed another $7,500 even if his team loses in the Super Bowl. The winning players each get $15,000. So the total for the winning player after it's all over is $23,500 plus 1/14th of his salary, roughly $25,000. Not bad bay for a kid's game, eh?

IF TRANSPORTATION to tomorrow's Shrine East-West football game at Candlestick Park is still needed, check with Shaun Wiltshire of Wiltshire Towers in San Rafael. He's taking his double-decker bus and says there are still seats available. It leaves at 11:15 a.m. but you gotta have your own game tickets.

LES WALSH, San Rafael photog and father of Sharon, said he received a telephone call from her Tuesday from Port Elizabeth, South Africa, where she is competing in a tennis tourney. Sharon told her dad that winds of 20 miles per hour were nothing, "it usually blows about 40 miles per hour." Said Walsh: "She told me it was the second windiest city in the world."

I guess that makes the Port Elizabethians try harder.

Strong Backfields Meet In Shrine Tilt

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Imagine, if you will, a backfield of Craig Curry at quarterback and Ed Marinaro and Eric Allen as the running backs.

Or how about one with Brian Sipe at quarterback and Bobby Moore and Bernard Jackson as the running backs.

Which would you take?

Hard to pick, isn't it, and yet the two threesomes will line up against each other tomorrow in the 47th Shrine East-West football game. An expected capacity crowd of 45,000 at Candlestick Park and a nation-wide television audience can argue over the New Year's Eve cocktails as to which is the best team and maybe even then never reach an unanimous conclusion.

Because television cameras spend most of their time zeroing in on the quarterbacks, running backs and wide receivers, the aforementioned six players stand out front and center. But they are by no means the only stars in the game which benefits crippled children's hospitals.

CURRY

Curry, for instance, is only the East starting quarterback but he'll have to allow playing time for John Reaves, the all-time NCAA passing champion from Florida. Sipes, who hails from San Diego State, will have to do the same for the West, giving way at times to Jimmy Jones of Southern California.

Murray Warmath of Minnesota is in charge of the East offense and since he likes the option series Curry, who played for Warmath, gets the starting call over Reaves.

The West will go with a passing game only if the East stops Moore, of Oregon, Jackson, of Washington State, and Dave Schilling, of Oregon State. The three were the best runners on the West Coast in 1971 and any coach who wouldn't take advantage of their abilities should turn in his whistle.

SIPE

Sipe is the West's passing quarterback while Jones is the option-type. That means when Jones plays there will be a lot of running and when Sipe gets in there will be some throwing, especially to flanker Jim Krieg of Washington and wide receivers Leland Glass of Oregon and Tom Reynolds of San Diego State.

Curry is the East's running quarterback, but he can throw if need be. Chances are he'll be handing off to Marinaro, the all-time NCAA rushing champion from Cornell, and Allen, the man from Michigan State they affectionately call the "Flea."

TIP FOR TAP — An unidentified Redwood cager and Sacred Heart of San Francisco's Ken Cooper vied for a jump ball toss from the referee (right) in Larkspur yesterday. The Redwood Giants prevailed 43-41.

By LEW CODDINGTON

Steve McGee carried Redwood High most of the long journey and Mike Connor took the final triumphant step as the Giants defeated Sacred Heart of San Francisco last night, 43-41, in a basketball duel of great regional importance.

McGee was the outstanding player on the floor and scored 26 points, but it was Connor who got the final two. He hit a 15-foot jump shot from the right corner with two seconds left to break a 41-all tie.

In an earlier game on the same bill at Redwood, Lowell of San Francisco defeated foulprone Marin Catholic, 52-38. In the Pinole tournament, San Rafael downed St. Patrick's of Vallejo, 44-33, and faced De La Salle of Concord for the consolation title today at 2 p.m. Terra Linda defeated its alumni, 71-53.

"It was the sweetest victory here in some time," said coach Dick Hart, whose Giants are now 12-0. "They deserved to win."

Sacred Heart (7-3) is considered one of Northern California's best teams. Its two previous losses came during the Catholic lay teachers' strike, and among its triumphs was a conquest of powerful San Joaquin Memorial.

Connor had been cold up until his final shot, hitting only three of 11 previously. Redwood had put the ball in play with 20 seconds left, with instructions from Hart not to shoot until the clock showed :03.

The earlier part of the game, especially the first half, was all McGee. The 6-foot-6 senior center scored on layups, jumpers and hooks; he rebounded, dribbled, and perhaps even sold peanuts in the stands. He won his personal duel with Sacred Heart's star center, Glen Hubbard, outscoring him, 26-21.

McGee scored 14 of Redwood's first 17 points as the Giants bounced back from an early 4-0 deficit to compile a 27-21 lead early in the third quarter.

Then the Giants played their only erratic stretch, missing five straight poor outside shots and making two bad passes. Sacred Heart forged ahead early in the fourth period, 35-30.

McGee scored on a set shot and a two-footer and a jumper by Connor tied things at 36-36 with 4:35 left. San Farb made a free throw, and then McGee made a free throw and a bank shot for 40-36.

Hubbard scored on a bank, and after a McGee free throw, Ken Cooper of the Irish converted a three-point play to tie the game with 0:26 remaining.

Redwood shot 41 per cent (17 for 41), a little below its recent figures, and made 10 turnovers, a little more than the current norm. McGee was 11 of 15 from the floor.

Marin Catholic (5-7) had suffered from rashes of excess fouling before, but last night's infection reached epidemic proportions. The Wildcats committed 27 fouls to Lowell's eight, and made six of 12 free throws compared to Lowell's eight, and made six of 12 free throws compared to Lowell's 28 of 43.

Lowell scored 16 points in the fourth quarter, all from the line. High scorer Nick Hoppe had 29 points, 15 from the line. That pretty much tells the tale.

"We're going to have to go back to game one and start all over again," said coach Dave Gonsalves. "And what a time to be doing it — after 12 games of the season."

Dan Mahoney scored 14 for the Wildcats.

San Rafael (6-5) got 12 points from Bill Lechner and effective performance out of a 1-2-2 zone defense to subdue St. Patrick's. The Bulldogs allowed their foes only nine field goals.

CABRILLO, MARIN VIE

Winners 12 times in 13 games, College of Marin's Tars will host Cabrillo College of Aptos tonight at 8 o'clock in a non-conference basketball game in Kentfield.

Most recent victory for Marin was last Thursday in Oakland against powerful Laney College, 70-65, in a game called by Marin Coach John Panagakis, "A really great team performance."

Frosh Cage Tourney Won By Riordan

Led by the scoring and rebounding of Ricky Lee, who was named the tourney's most valuable player, Riordan High of San Francisco whipped Moreau High of Concord, 55-35, yesterday in the championship game of the Marin Catholic Freshman Invitational basketball tournament.

Lee scored 24 points and broke his own rebound record of the night before by pulling down 29. Dennis Benitez led Moreau with 11 points.

In the consolation game, St. Ignatius of San Francisco defeated Drake of San Anselmo, 51-45 behind Tony Passanisi's 16 points. Leading Drake scorers were Mike Ghiringhelli and Gary Peak, each with 15 points.

Bishop O'Dowd of Oakland edged the host Wildkittens from Kentfield, 54-51, for third place, despite the 24-point production of Marin's Mike Mahoney. High for O'Dowd was Eric Edgerly, 15 points.

St. Patrick's of Vallejo edged Serra of San Mateo, 57-56 to win seventh place. Mike Krog scored 23 points and Carl Webster 22 to top St. Pat's and Jim Walsh and Tim Fitzgerald each had 15 for Serra.

Joining Lee on the 10-man all-tourney team were Erick Gilsberg of St. Ignatius; Benitez and Dave Belville of Moreau; Mahoney of Marin Catholic; Ghiringhelli of Drake; George Andrews of O'Dowd; Webster of St. Patrick's, and Alton Byrd and John Cook of Riordan.

STANFORD RESERVE

Mike Askea Listed As 'Questionable'

LONG BEACH, Calif. (UPI) — Mike Askea, a reserve tackle, suffered a knee injury in Stanford's practice Wednesday and was declared questionable for the Rose Bowl game against Michigan.

Coach John Ralston said if Askea, a 6-foot-4, 240-pound junior, could not play he would move sophomore Bill Wiley in behind starter Tim Schallich.

The Indians drilled at Cal State Long Beach and Ralston came away "pleased" although he said he was "worried" about the Wolverines controlling the ball Saturday.

"In order to win," he said, "we've got to be able to control the ball ourselves and keep our defense from playing 75 per cent of the time out there."

"I don't think," Schembechler said Wednesday, "the turf at the Rose Bowl is going to be any good.

"It's just rained too much. The field has been soaked too long. I really can't believe how water holds in fields in this area."

After a week of rain, the sun was out Wednesday and the Wolverines went through a one-hour workout at East Los Angeles Stadium.

"I think we'll be ready to play," Schembechler said. "We're going to be all right."

SEARCH STARTS

Chicago Bears Oust Head Coach Jim Dooley

CHICAGO (UPI) —Chicago Bears owner George Halas launched a "wide open" search for a new coach today, but it was unlikely some stranger would come in to take over the job.

Halas fired his protege, Jim Dooley, yesterday after four unsuccessful years in the job, during which the Bears had three consecutive losing seasons for the first time in history. He said "the door is wide open for a new man to step in."

Halas, though, said he would consider "other coaches with professional experience, or college coaches." The new coach was to be named before the NFL draft Feb 1-2.

Prospects from these categories might find it hard to get the job, however. Pro coaches first would have to get clearance from their current employer and college coaches, who also might be under contract, would have to break down the thought that pro football requires different talents.

Halas said he would pay Dooley for the year remaining on the five year contract he signed when he became head coach, but added that Dooley was free to seek any other job he wished. Should Dooley take a job in pro football, Halas might not have to pay his full salary for next year.

Halas said Dooley was let go because "the record speaks for itself."

On the record Dooley's teams won 20 and lost 36 games and he was in charge in 1969 when the team had its worst record ever, one win and 13 defeats. The last two seasons the Bears finished 6-8, and this year, with a 6-3 record to be contenders for the Central Division title after nine games, they lost the last five to fall into third place.

'Experience Available' Says Nolan

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— Coach Dick Nolan of the San Francisco 49ers feels as though he is playing a chess match with his counterpart—Tom Landry—while preparing for Sunday's NFC championship.

In the Cowboys' 17-10 win over the 49ers in last season's NFC title game, Dallas sent Duane Thomas on sweeps around his left end. He usually had three blockers ahead of him and gained 143 of his team's 229 rushing yards.

That right side of the 49er defense consisted of rookies Cedrick Hardman and Bruce Taylor, third-year Bill Belk and second-year men Jim Sniadecki or Skip Vanderbundt.

"Dallas did take advantage of our inexperience," said Nolan, "but some of our guys were young and had never been in a pressure situation like that before.

"We had four years of experience in there most of the game last year. Now with Cedrick, Skip and Bruce we have seven."

Nolan believes he has the key to defensing that particular play. But he's wondering if Landry knows about using three receivers on the same side as did the Kansas City Chiefs with success against the 49ers this season?

If Landry does, he'll probably put speedster Bob Hayes in the slot between flanker Lance Alworth and the tight end (Mike Ditka or Bill Truax).

Johnny Fuller was trying to cover Otis Taylor of the Chiefs when Kansas City ran that play on Fuller's side. Now regular safety Mel Phillips is back and Nolan said he would go against Hayes in the slot formation plays.

"We worked a little on some new offensive patterns," said Nolan. "There are a few new things we'll use against Dallas. I expect them to unveil something they haven't used against us."

Angels Pick Moss

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — The California Angels Wednesday named Les Moss, manager of their Shreveport, La., farm club, to take over the pennant-winning Pacific Coast League Salt Lake Angels.

Broom Ball Bids For Recognition

So you like hockey, but you don't like stray pucks whizzing toward your cranium at 120 m.p.h. Besides, you don't even skate. What can you do?

One possibility is to drag out your favorite chair, stock up on potato chips and beer, and watch the Seals on TV all winter. The only problem is that the Seals aren't on TV.

What you can do instead is play broom ball, which is hockey without mayhem, and which is catching on in Marin County. There's even a four-team league, which plays its games at Radine's ice rink in Corte Madera.

The chief architect of the league is Cliff Cameron, an Independent-Journal delivery man who plays hockey. Cameron also plays in a broom ball league in Santa Rosa.

"Santa Rosa has a league and so does San Fracisco," he said. "Charles Schulz, who draws the Peanuts comic strip, is an official in the Santa Rosa league.

"I thought broom ball would catch on here, and it has. We had a large crowd watching the other night — mostly College of Marin students with their dates."

The game is almost identical to hockey. There are six players on a team — two forwards (wingers), a center, two defensemen and a goalie. The fouls are the same, and there's even a penalty box. Scores run about the same, as well.

The differences? There are four main ones. Instead of a puck, there's a round ball, about seven inches in diameter. Instead of a stick, there's a broom. Instead of skates, there are tennis shoes. And instead of cuts requiring 18 stitches, there are the more conventional knocks and bruises.

Most of the players in the Marin league are in their early 20s, including a number of College of Marin students. "The young bulls," says Cameron.

There are four teams in the league: Novato, San Rafael, Santa Venetia and Marin. "We'd like to expand to eight teams next year if we can generate enough interest," said Cameron. There are 10 to 12 players on a roster, so about 48 are participating now.

The season began Dec. 9 and will run for 12 games, terminating March 2. Teams play at 10 p.m. Tuesdays and 10:30 p.m. Thursdays, and games last about an hour.

"We're starting to get a lot of people who never even played hockey," said Cameron. "They're catching on quickly, though. They're starting to play as teams now. Before, they were just batting the ball around anywhere."

Batting the ball, at least for the 48 players and their growing numbers of fans, is a great deal better than stale potato chips and a blank TV screen.

PREP NOTEBOOK

Taking A Peek Into New Year

By LEW CODDINGTON

Things that ought to happen next year in Marin County prep sports, but won't . . .

January — After defeating a team from Oregon, Redwood High basketball coach Dick Hart denies he is campaigning for a national championship . . . Terra Linda ties San Rafael in a crucial water polo match when a potential game-winning shot freezes in mid-air . . . the Marin County Athletic League Board of Managers agrees to move water polo from winter to fall, then hears the rest of the country has changed from fall to winter.

February — Dick Hart announces his 1972-73 schedule will contain a team from Texas, but denies he is campaigning for a national championship . . . After a bomb scare at College of Marin, Tamalpais High decides to play all its home basketball games at Berkeley . . . Drake's first-year wrestling team wins the MCAL., Coach Imants Abers quits to start a jai alai team, claiming wrestling is too easy.

March — Redwood is barred from the Tournament of Champions for being too powerful . . Hart announces his 1973-74 schedule will contain two teams from Pennsylvania, but denies he is campaigning for a national championship.

April — After a bonb scare in Berkeley, Tam decides to play its home basketball games in Hanoi, "where it's safe" . . . During the second teachers' strike, Marin Catholic baseball players announce they will play without a coach, and win 18 straight . . . Hart announces his 1974-75 schedule will contain six teams from four eastern states, but denies he is campaigning for a national championship.

May — The MCAL announces it is dropping golf and tennis due to "lack of interest in these sports in Marin County" . . . Hart announces his 1975-76 schedule will contain College of Marin, but denies he is campaigning for a national championship . . . Four athletes are kicked off the Redwood track team for having short hair.

June-August — summer vacation.

September — Hart announces his 1976-77 schedule will contain Stanford, but denies he is campaigning for a national championship.

October — Novato, Redwood, San Rafael and Terra Linda all defeat each other in MCAL football . . . Hart announces his 1977-78 schedule will contain UCLA and Marquette, but denies he is campaigning for a national championship . . . Water polo coaches request the season be moved back to winter due to accumulation of autumn leaves in the pools.

November — Marin Catholic, recently admitted to MCAL football, wins the championship — still without a coach . . . Drake wins MCAL jai alai, and Abers quits to start a chess team . . . Hart announces his 1978-79 schedule will contain the Milwaukee Bucks, but denies he is campaigning for a national championship.

December — Redwood loses 15 straight basketball games, including one to Tamalpais during an air raid . . . The I-J bans all year-end predicitons by prep columnists.

FIVE FOR FIVE — Drake uses a two-platoon system in basketball. Against Lincoln of San Francisco Tuesday, the Pirates played five men in the first quarter and a completely different set of five in the second period.

"The two groups scrimmage each other in practice to see who will start," said coach Bob Fitzhenry. It's hard to tell the difference between the two units on the balanced Pirates.

WIN ONE, LOSE ONE — San Marin basketball guard Greg Mazeres, who aggravated a back injury Dec. 4 and has been out since, returned to action Tuesday against St. Elizabeth of Oakland. He was rusty, but coach Andy Frauenhofer expects him to be in good shape for the league opener.

On the other hand, guard (formerly forward) Hoza Wright had minor surgery and will be out until next Tuesday's Sonoma game.

GILLES STEAL — California Golden Seals' goalie Gilles Meloche took away a potential goal off the stick of Montreal forward Marc Tardif last night in Montreal. Meloche's teammate Paul Shmyr (3) kept Larry Pleau (8) from joining the battle. Montreal won 3-2.

Seals Bow To Montreal

Goalie Gilles Meloche of the California Golden Seals took his eye off the puck very briefly twice Wednesday night and the Canadiens cashed in on two unassisted goals to nip the Seals 3-2.

Yvon Cournoyer broke a scoreless tie at 8:40 of the middle period when he picked up a loose puck and drilled a backhand drive past Meloche.

A power play goal by Walt McKechnie of the Seals, who took Norm Ferguson's pass and beat Phil Myre just 33 seconds later, tied the score.

Then Frank Mahovlich blasted a 50-footer past Meloche midway through the second period to give Montreal a 2-1 lead it never relinquished. Mahovlich took the puck in the Montreal end of the rink and skated into the Seals zone before firing a shot to Meloche.

The Seals had a golden opportunity against Myre who was making his first start of the season but failed to notch any more goals despite outshooting the Canadiens 33-32.

That gave the Seals a 0-3-1 record against Montreal so far this season. California next tackles the Red Wings in Detroit on New Year's Eve.

BROCKINGTON

Packer Named Top Rookie

NEW YORK (UPI)—John Brockington, who took his "cloud of dust" to the pros and used it in record proportion, is United Press International's 1971 National Football Conference Rookie of the Year, early beating out San Francisco halfback Vic Washington.

Brockington, schooled in the "three yards and a cloud of dust" running offense of Woody Hayes at Ohio State, was one of the few bright lights for the Green Bay Packers this season as he became the most productive rookie runner in National Football League history.

Brockington's 1,105 yards are the most ever recorded by a first-year player and he is only the fourth rookie ever to surpass the 1,000-yard mark, joining Beattie Feathers, Cookie Gilchrist and Paul Robinson.

His performance, best in the All-NFC team and landslide election Thursday as Rookie of the Year. Brockington received 32 of the 39 votes cast by 39 sports writers, three from each HFC city. Washington of San Francisco received four votes and linebacker Isiah Robertson of the Los Angeles Rams the other three.

Brockington, a 6-foot-1, 216-pounder from Brooklyn, N.Y., is only the third Packer ever to rush for 1,000 yards —joining Jim Taylor and Tony Canadeo —and the second Green Bay rookie to win the honor. Boyd Dowler was honored in 1959.

Georgia Tech, Mississippi Vie

ATLANTA (UPI)—The 1971 Peach Bowl question: Can Mississippi's amazing sophomores stand up to Georgia Tech's bully-boy defense?

The answer comes tonight in Atlanta Stadium before a national television audience watching on a special network.

Coach Billy Kinard is a rookie and so are 21 members of the Mississippi squad. Either 10 or 11 first year men will be in the starting offensive and defensive units for the Rebels.

THIRD

But with this contingent of youngsters, Kinard ran up a 9-2 record and finished third in the tough Southeastern Conference. Among the Rebel victories was a 24-22 defeat of Louisiana State.

Tech's tough defense wasn't enough early in the season. But the Yellow Jackets began to win halfway through the season when quarterback Eddie McAshan was able to move the offense over sustained drives. Tech won four of its final five games and cut off the potent Florida State passing attack with only two field goals in a 12-6 win.

McASHAN

McAshan, first black ever to quarterback a Deep South team, suffered a groin injury after the end of regular-season play, but Georgia Tech coach Bud Carson said Wednesday he expects McAshan to play. However, he said McAshan will not start.

Kinard will have sophomore Norris Weese at quarterback. Weese took over in mid-season after his roommate, Kenny Lyons, suffered a shoulder separation. The Rebels rolled to six wins in a row with Weese calling the plays and the sophomore completed 46 of 71 passes for 650 yards and five touchdowns.

SHOULDER

Lyons' shoulder apparently has mended but Kinard said Wednesday that he does not anticipate putting him in the game. "I don't think it will help Kenny to play," the coach said.

The young Mississippi team reached its season peak Thanksgiving Day against Mississippi State by rolling up 42 points during a span of nine minutes and 25 seconds of playing time in the second quarter. It was the most explosive scoring burst by any team in Southeastern Conference history.

The Peach Bowl has had bad weather for its first three years. The forecast for tonight calls for cloudy weather but no rain.

Quarterback Battle Set In AFC Tilt

MIAMI (UPI) — The only prediction President Nixon has made on Sunday's Baltimore-Miami Championship game is that "nobody's going to win big."

He was talking about the teams and the battle shaping up between two premier quarterbacks, Bob Griese and Johnny Unitas. But the Commander-In-Chief could have been talking about the Miami Dolphins' fans.

First, those who have managed to get tickets to the game are gladiators who have battled the lines for as long as 72 hours, viewing a passing parade of other sports fans who since Sunday have streamed by them for other Orange Bowl events.

And those who did not have the experience of camping out on sidewalks while North-South shrine game fans (Monday) and NCAA soccer championship enthusiasts (Tuesday) walked by, may not even get to see the game on home television.

The local press, civic leaders, and presidential candidate John V. Lindsay, have all asked NFL commissioner Pete Rozelle to lift the hometown blackout. Rozelle has refused.

Motels and resorts outside of the 75-mile blackout radius are already piling in reservations for New Year's eve parties which will continue right through the 1:30 p.m. (PST) Dolphins-Colts kickoff time. And the refugees from the land of the dark screen won't help Gov. Reubin Askew's pleas for drivers, especially tipsy ones, to stay off the highways.

Around town there are many Colts fans — Tuesday night some 15,000 folks greeted the Baltimore squad.

Wednesday the Colts held a two-hour workout at Tampa Stadium (which Tampa residents hope will one day be the home of the Colts) and worked mostly on offense.

But Baltimore tight end John Mackey took a more mercenary view of meteorology: "Heat or anything else shouldn't be an excuse in a big game. Going for $8,500 and a chance to go for $15,000, we should be willing to play in a furnace."

Man Of Year Award Won By Trevino

ST. LOUIS (UPI)—The Sporting News today named pro golfer Lee Trevino as Sport's Man of the Year.

Trevino won the U.S., Canadian and British Open titles among five tournament victories in 1971 and earned $231,224 in official money winnings. He also was on the winning American team in Ryder Cup competition and teamed with Jack Nicklaus for an American victory in the World Cup.

The year was a tremendous one for Trevino, 32, despite the fact that he underwent an emergency appendectomy during the summer and was away from golf for six weeks.

Trevino is the fourth winner of the award, which went to Denny McLain in 1968, Tom Seaver in 1969 and John Wooden in 1970.

Hubert Green Picked

NORWALK, Conn. (UPI)—Hubert Green, a 25-year old from Alabama, and Sally Little, a 19-year old from South Africa, were named Wednesday the 1971 professional golf tour rookies of the year by Golf Digest magazine.

Warriors Beat Cincinnati By 5

DETROIT (UPI)—After taking care of Bob Cousy and his gang, the Golden State Warriors tonight try to outscore Dave Bing and company.

With Cazzie Russell igniting a fourth-period surge with 10 of his game-high 33 points, the Warriors defeated the Cincinnati Royals 107-102 Wednesday night to snap a three-game losing string. It was only the third win for the Warriors in their last 13 outings.

Golden State beat the Pistons Dec. 18 in Oakland while Bing was recovering from eye surgery. Bing returned to the lineup Tuesday night against the New York Knicks and scored 21 points in a losing cause. So he should be ready for the Warriors.

At Cincinnati, Golden State and the Royals were tied 77-77 at the end of three periods. Paced by Russell, the Warriors outscored Cincinnati 30-25 in the final period to hand the Royals their ninth straight loss.

Clyde Lee of the Warriors came up with his best offensive effort of the season—21 points—and pulled down 17 rebounds. He took over for Nate Thurmond who accrued four fouls with nine minutes remaining in the first half.

In an effort to offset Cincinnati's speed, coach Al Attles of the Warriors put 6-5 Joe Ellis on the Royals' 6-1 Nate Archibald.

Jeff Mullins chipped in with 20 points for the Warriors. Tom Van Arsdale topped Cincinnati with 22.

Powers' Memory Passes Stern Test

Francis Powers is Public Relations Director of the East-West game, the 47th of which will be played Friday in Candlestick Park. It's true that Powers does direct publicity for the annual charity classic. But that's the least of Powers' jobs at Shrine football headquarters.

"Francis wears so many hats I've never been able to count them," said Ted Balliet, general manager of the game who wears quite a few hats himself. "He's my right hand man — don't know what I'd do without him."

POWERS' MOST important job is coordinating information on hundreds of collegiate football stars from all sections of the country. He has one of the greatest scouting staffs in the land and all of his scouts, like the players and coaches in the game itself, contribute their talents for the benefit of crippled children.

There isn't a pro scout in the country with whom Powers is not on a first name basis. And it's the same with college football coaches.

"Both squads this year have more versatility than any previous East-West teams since football was separated into offensive and defensive specialties," said Powers. "Both are equipped with runners and passers for a spectacular game."

POWERS THEN rattled off names and statistics of players faster than a computer. He talks so rapidly that a court reporter would find it difficult keeping up with him. He carries on interviews while answering his telephone.

As he was giving a statistical rundown on Gary Hammond, an extremely versatile member of this year's West team, the telephone rang. "I'll take care of it," said Powers into the phone. It was a request for special shoes for players on Candlestick's artificial turf.

"As I was saying," Powers resumed his interview, "Hammond can do it all. He played split end, tailback and quarterback for Southern Methodist. He also is outstanding on punt returns."

What about Dave Chaney?

"Few linebackers ever had a greater day than Chaney did when San Jose State defeated Stanford," said Powers.

WITHOUT LOOKING at any notes, Powers quickly added: "Chaney was credited with 12 solo tackles, five assists, two fumble recoveries, a pass deflection, an interception, plus dropping Stanford's punter on his one yard line."

Powers' memory is prodigious. But could he recall the 1948 Shrine game? He smiled.

"I'll never forget it," said Powers. "Johnny Lujack, Notre Dame's two-time All-America quarterback, had his greatest day at passing, running and kicking in leading the East to a 40-8 vicotry.

"LUJACK CERTAINLY was one of the greatest, if not the greatest, player in East-West history. Lujack, George Connor and Ziggy Czarobski made a remarkable Notre Dame trio in that 1948 game. They all were PT boat commanders in World War II.

"They never waited for an invitation to play in the East-West game of '48. They called me in September that year and told me they were coming. Czarobski was the captain of the '48 East team — a unanimous pick, including his own vote. Ziggy said after the election 'You didn't think I'd vote for anyone else?'"

THE SKI SCENE

Old Hands Abound At Dodge Ridge

By CHARLIE COANE

Turnover of key personnel at Dodge Ridge is not the order of the day for area head Earl Purdy, who has been at the Mother Lode area for 22 years.

Ski school director Ray Patton is in his 18th year and his wife Leah has run the ski shop for 12 years. "Even tha restaurant and rental shop managers are 12-year veterans," reports Purdy, "and most of the mountain crew has been with me 15 to 18 years."

Apparently Purdy's system has paid off. The family-oriented resort increased business around 25 per cent last season over the previous season, and is certainly not hurting financially.

"We try real hard," says Purdy, "to appeal to the skiing family. I think we groom our slopes as well as anywhere and you'll even find our food prices not sky high."

Dodge Ridge, with 6 chairlifts and 6 rope tows, has mostly intermediate terrain. About one-third of the area is beginner and 10-15 per cent is expert. The weekend daily adult rate runs $7; $5 midweek. This is fairly inexpensive by California standards. Four dollars will give you Little Silver Nugget Chair and the rope tows and this is the lowest chairlift rate in the Sierra. For kids under 12, that's $2.

This season the Heron chairlift was replaced with new equipment which increased the capacity. Also, the lower level of the day lodge now has a 150-locker ski and equipment room. Those who enjoy an occasional drink of water will be glad to learn that Dodge has a new water system to eliminate water shortage problems.

Dodge will again host the National Veteran's races at the end of February, and the area ranked 12th nationally in the number of NASTAR (National Standard Race) participants last season. That program continues this season.

Dodge Ridge, located 32 miles from Sonora, is perhaps the closest major resort in number of miles to the Bay Area. A number of ski firms are available to clubs and organizations.

HAFB Cagers Carry On

The fans are roaring, the announcer is screaming and the opposing players are trembling with fear. The mighty Los Angeles Lakers take the court — and Wilt Chamberlain isn't there.

Far-fetched? Not really. The Hamilton Air Force base basketball team had just that type of disaster happen recently when star center Mike Terwilliger, discharge papers in hand, headed off into the wild blue yonder, taking his 29-points-a-game scoring average with him.

But the Defenders are carrying on, in the best military tradition. In fact, they finished second in the recent Mather A.F.B. Invitational Christmas tournament. They lost the opener, reeled off three straight victories to gain the finals, and then lost to Mather, 70-60. Their season record is 9-5.

The Defenders' next mission is tomorrow at Travis A.F.B. Saturday they defend their own installation against the McClellan team, 2 p.m.

Hamilton's resident star is now guard Larry Hudgins, the only man with college cage experience. He played awhile for Merritt College in Oakland. He scored over 20 three times in the five-game Mather tourney.

The Defenders play in the Northern California Travel League, a loop composed of military installations. There are six Air Force bases — Hamilton, McClellan, Travis, Castle, Beale and Mather —and one Army installation, the Presidio. Hamilton is 3-3 in league play at the moment.

The Defenders' coach is Kenneth L. Coleman, an all-state cager at Centralia, Ill., High School, and one-time Southern Illinois University freshman player. A career officer, Coleman is in his second year of coaching at Hamilton.

High point of the year for Hamilton will be the Aerospace Defense Command tournament, scheduled for Feb. 4-7 at Otis A.F.B., Mass.

Coleman also was selected to be the coach of the Air Force team in the world-wide tournament at Sheppard A.F.B., Tex., Feb. 13-17.

UNIQUELY MARTIAN

Dead Man Found By Roommate

Joseph S. Comano apparently hanged himself, according to Donald L. Cornish, deputy coroner. Cornish said three notes indicating that intention were found in his bedroom. One named a nephew, Julius Arjo of Palo Alto, executor of his estate, according to Larkspur police.

Police said Camono's roommate, Robert E. Bain, returned from work about 5 p.m. and found the body hanging from a rafter in the rear of the garage. A ladder was leaning against the wall nearby.

Cornish said Comano may have been despondent over failing health. Comano had been under a doctor's care for hypertension and was on a severe diet, the deputy coroner said.

Comano was a retired San Francisco cab driver and was unmarried, Cornish said.

Corps Urged To Weigh Creek Study Criticisms

The Ross Valley Flood Control Zone advisory board yesterday didn't join the chorus of criticism against an Army Corps of Engineers report on the impact of concreting Corte Madera Creek in Ross, but the board didn't sing its praises, either.

The advisory board urged that the corps of engineers give weight to sharp criticisms of its environmental report on phase four by county staff, but wouldn't endorse all the objections.

In a separate action, the board authorized its staff to work with Larkspur toward setting up a study of the effects of boats and docks in the creek below Bon Air Bridge.

The boat issue became entangled in the impact report discussion when Joi Losee of Larkspur, spearhead of the move for a boat study, said the corps study didn't deal with the effect on the marshes or the question of boating.

Advisory board member Edward W. Colthurst, a Corte Madera councilman, reacted: "I'm for recreation in Corte Madera Creek. Boats, people, horses, I'm for it. I don't believe in restrictions. I personally would not ask for a big mishmash of environmental studies that could go forever and a day."

Larkspur Mayor Earl J. O'Grady, also a board member, opposed recreational development of the creek.

However, he later joined in the unanimous decision to let staff determine the feasibility of a boating study. Harlan Barry, assistant to the Larkspur city manager, said there is a strong possibility the Department of the Interior will do a study for free.

Mrs. Losee, in a letter considered on Dec. 14 by the Marin County Board of Supervisors, sought a study by the corps of engineers on the effect of recreational use, but Charles E. Murphy, flood control engineer, said the Army refused to do it.

Fred B. Graham, an advisory board member from Kentfield, wanted assurances the study by Larkspur wouldn't be "hack work" like the environmental impact report.

He said criticism from Werner Von Gundell, county planning director, and Pierre W. Joske, parks and recreation director, and the county public works department was better than the report.

The two county officials called it a whitewash and a justification for further concreting through Ross.

The only comment the board added was that the report should take more account of homeowners who have flooding.

The report goes to the county board of supervisors on Jan. 4 for comments. All will be incorporated into the report for consideration by a federal board on whether the project should be authorized, according to Ray W. Foreaker Jr., county public works director.

Blue Cross To Extend Benefits

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— Blue Cross of California says it will extend benefits for more than 100,000 Northern Californians over the age of 65 starting January 1.

George C. Lucia, president of Blue Cross of Northern California, said Tuesday the benefit increase was made "to help fill the gaps in Medicare coverage."

On the first day of the new year Medicare will raise the deductible amounts the patient must pay for hospital care. This increase will vary but in many cases Medicare patients will have to pay the first $68 rather than the current $60.

Lucia said the Blue Cross companion program is expanding to absorb the higher costs while remaining at its present $4 monthly charge.

Extortionist Sentencing Date Set

Kenneth Edwin Carter, 40, of Monte Rio, Sonoma County, must serve from six months to five years in state prison for attempted extortion of a Kentfield woman last June.

Carter pleaded guilty to attempted extortion on Tuesday before Marin Superior Court Judge Joseph G. Wilson. The Judge stayed execution of sentence until Jan. 7.

Carter was originally charged with burglary and armed robbery, but the charge was amended after negotiation between Carter and the district attorney.

Carter was arrested last September on a warrant charging him as the gunman who burst into the home of Arlene Grossenbacker on Rosebank Avenue, Kentfield, on June 14. The victim told police the robber bound her and took $1,300 in cash, jewelry and antique silver.

Several days after the robbery, Mrs. Grossenbacker got a telephone call from a man who offered to sell her back the antique silver, according to Asst. Dist. Atty. Gary W. Thomas.

Deputy Dist. Atty. Jerry R. Herman said Carter has a list of prior convictions including burglary, grand theft, forgery and escape. He is still on parole for a 1962 escape from San Bernardino County Jail.

Vandal Takes Dome From Police Light

An early-rising prankster took the red dome of an emergency light of a Larkspur police car yesterday, but apparently decided he didn't want it.

Police said the dome, taken from the car at the police station between 4:30 and 5:30 a.m., was deposited at the back door of the station about 11 p.m.

Marin Fiscal Budget Boom Among Highest

Despite a generally sagging economy, 1971 proved to be a fiscal budget boom year for most of the state's 58 county governments — with Marin County outbooming all but one.

Figures released this week by the state controller's office show Marin's fiscal 1971-72 budget grew by more than 22 per cent over the previous year — second place statewide in percentage increase. Only the mammoth Los Angeles County budget grew more.

Of California's 58 counties, only five were listed showing a decrease in budget spending. (San Francisco County was not included since its city-county budget is not comparable.)

County Auditor-Controller Michael Mitchell agreed Tuesday that Marin's 22 per cent increase — from $38,091,412 last fiscal year to $46,648,398 this year — appeared staggering. However, he could point to other comparative county figures showing Marin's budget in a more favorable light.

Of the nine Bay Area counties, he said, Marin has the second lowest tax rate ($2.63 per $100 assessed valuation) bettered only by Santa Clara county ($2.63). Statewide, he said, 35 counties have higher tax rates, 22 have lower tax rates.

Mitchell said most of the budget increase occurred in three general categories; public safety, road construction and welfare.

Of the total $8 million increase, about half was paid by county property taxpayers. The remainder was financed through other sources, mainly state and federal taxes.

Sonoma County, meanwhile, increased its budget 13.46 per cent and has a tax rate this fiscal year of $3.85 — sixth highest in the state.

Superior Court Trial Ordered

SAN JOSE (UPI)—A judge Tuesday ordered that Pamela S. Watkins, 18, be tried in Santa Clara County Superior Court and not Juvenile Court for the slaying of two small children for whom she was a baby sitter.

The decision was handed down by Judge James B. Scott who set Jan. 31 for trial.

Miss Watkins, a high-school dropout from Ventura County, was accused of the Nov. 20 deaths of Tynya Aldridge, 6, and her sister, Shelvia, 5, whose bodies were found behind an apartment.

After Scott's decision, Deputy Public Defender Frank Katz entered pleas of innocent and innocent by reason of insanity for her.

1971 A MIXED YEAR

Victories, Defeats, Delays In Equal Rights Struggle

(Editor's note: This is the first of two articles on the progress in 1971 of the movement for women's rights.)

By BARBARA HOSMER

"Women Granted Equal Protection by High Court."

"National Press Club OKs Women Members."

"California Courts Lift Some Curbs on Jobs for Women."

"Nixon Vetoes Child Care Bill."

"Reagan Vetoes Birth Control Bill."

Women interested in equality for their sex had a lot to talk about this year. Some news they viewed as cheerful and long overdue, some they saw as tokenism, causing them to take a "wait and see what happens" attitude. Some they hit as blatantly sexist.

Struggling against past sensationalism and distortion by the press, the women's rights movement took its challenge to the halls of power rather than to the streets in 1971. The results at this point are checkerboarded.

The Equal Rights Amendment passed the House of Representatives this year by a good margin but has failed to make it out of committee to the Senate floor, though it picked up more public awareness and support.

(Congress was still concerned about whether girls could serve as Congressional pages, though some were appointed by legislators.)

WOMEN COULD claim a victory of sorts when just last month the Supreme Court's seven male justices held that the "equal protection" clause of the 14th Amendment denied to states the power to establish different classes of persons (women, for example) to be administrators of estates "on the basis of criteria wholly unrelated to the objective." The Court also refused to review a lower court decision which held that under a union or company or pension plan women workers could not be compelled to retire at an earlier age than men.

Thus, feminists could count two victories, of sorts, from the court, which in previous decades had ruled that the equal protection of the law clause of the 14th Amendment did not apply to women.

But, said women's rights advocates, the court did not go further and declare any legal distinction between the sexes as unconstitutional. If a state legislature decides to treat women as a class differently from men, it can do so if it comes up with an "objective" reason.

Marin Women

Thursday, December 30, 1971 Independent-Journal, 13

The women vowed to increase their efforts toward passage of the Equal Rights Amendment to the Constitution, which would forbid any legal distinctions between the sexes, adding that the fate of women as a class should not be left to the changing whims of the male-dominated courts.

The California Supreme Court ruled in the Sail'er In case that the state may not restrict employment of women without some compelling reason. The decision allowed any women to work as bartenders — a better paid occupation than waitressing. Previously women could tend bar only if they owned the business.

WEIGHT-LIFTING restrictions on the job and working hour restrictions for women were struck down in California also be a federal circuit court. Atty. Gen. Evelle Younger has stated that he is studying other California laws affecting women alone, such as minimum wages, overtime and rest period requirements to see if these laws also are in violation of Title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964.

Women's rights advocates call for a full review of labor laws, one by one, asking that beneficial ones be extended to men and that restrictive laws be stricken from the books. Some segments of the labor and some political groups have opposed the Equal Rights Amendment on the grounds that it would wipe out hard-earned protection for women workers as a class. But equal rights for women champions counter that women are denied jobs and promotions because of such limiting labor laws which they say restrict job progress rather than protect.

If a law is beneficial, why not extend it to men also, thus eradicating sex-based laws, they ask. As to weight-lifting restrictions — now struck down — some women and some men can lift heavy weights, the women argue, and some women and some men cannot — it is not a sex-based thing.

Equalizing state labor laws to cover men and women alike will likely be a part of the California Legislature's considerations in 1972 and beyond.

MEANWHILE, 400 Californias used the one-year-old law against sex discrimination in jobs to file complaints with the state Fair Employment Practices Commission, 90 per cent of them by women. As the law becomes better known, more California women are expected to file job discrimination complaints, said FEPC director Paul A. Meaney this month.

In 1971 women's groups across the nation charged bias against women in hiring and promotion and filed suits and complaints against universities from Columbia and Harvard to the University of California, against government bodies, department stores and business and financial corporations. Some were class action suits and some were indivudal landmark decisions, such as Lorena Weeks vs. Southern Bell Telephone, in which she won the right to hold a switchmen's job and obtained all the back wages for the years she had been denied that higher paying job.

Just Wednesday Jules H. Gordon of the U.S. Equal Employment Opportunity Commission reported that the world's largest nongovernment bank, the Bank of America, pays women less for doing the same jobs as men. The report came after a group of women employees filed an anti-discrimination suit against the bank, whose headquarters are in San Francisco.

TOMORROW: Gains and losses.

Many Individual Victories In Women's Rights Field

By GAY PAULEY

NEW YORK (UPI)—On the women's liberation front, 1971 was a year of win a few, lose a few. The entire movement, launched with special momentum in 1970 to celebrate the 50th anniversary of women's suffrage, slowed a bit in '71. Most of the more significant breakthroughs by women were on the individual level.

Aug. 26 marked the 51st anniversary of the 19th Amendment to the Constitutuion. Rallies, celebrations and marches marked the day in towns large and small. The letters MS became the standard bearer of address in lieu of Miss or Mrs, the liberationists' way of saying no marital differentation.

But shadowing overall were news conferences and meetings called by the National Women's Political Caucus, a new coalition of women's rights groups. One of their goals—equal number of delegates at the 1972 political conventions.

ANOTHER WAS the perennial one: Enactment of the Equal Rights Amendment introduced in every Congress since 1923.

There were some forward governmental steps. In an Idaho probate case, the U.S. Supreme Court held that the "equal protection" clause of the 14th Amendment bars states from legally discriminating against women in naming them as administrators of estates.

As for the court itself, when two vacancies occurred there was a tremendous clamor for President Nixon to name at least one woman to the high bench. He didn't even with First Lady Pat Nixon among the rooters.

Aides of Mrs. Nixon said "naturally she was disappointed." But the president in an appearance before the National Federation of Republican Women said in part..."Let me say that at least we have made a beginning and there will be a woman on the Supreme Court in time."

Although there are no women in the president's cabinet, Nixon has named several women to high-ranking posts, including several "firsts."

AMONG THEM: former Congresswoman Catherine May Bedell, chairman of the U.S. Tariff Commission; former Congresswoman Charlotte Reid, the first women since 1948 to be named to the FCC; Mrs. Jayne Baker Spain, vice chairman of the Civil Service Commission, the first to be named in 10 years.

The President also named several women to the rank of general in the armed forces. And the Secret Service swore in five women agents.

Even so, Eleanor Flexner—examining the progress of women since the 19th Amendment in 1920—found that only one woman today serves in the U.S. Senate, only 12 in the House of Representatives.

No woman is now the elected governor of a state. Women mayors are rare, although this year Oklahoma City put into office, Mrs. Patience Latting, making her city the nation's largest in the country with a woman at the executive helm.

Two women led their nations through severe crises. They were Mrs. Golda Meir, prime minister of Israel, whose nation was embroiled in the continuing dispute in the Mid-East, and Prime Minister Indira Gandhi, who as the year ended led India through a two-week war with Pakistan.

THE NATION'S First Family, as usual, grabbed its share of the headlines, including the "wedding of the year." Tricia Nixon, the older daughter of the President, was married to Edward Finch Cox, the man she had described as "my first and last love." It was a June wedding with all the pomp and circumstance a presidential family could plan—the eighth involving a presidential daughter at the White House.

Rain for a time delayed the ceremony in the Rose Garden of the White House... but let up sufficiently for the 25-year-old bride to walk to the alter on her father's arm, radiant as a bride should be as she and Cox exchanged vows before a celebrated group of guests. It was the first outdoor wedding in the 171-year history of the Executive Mansion and united the president's daughter with the 24-year-old scion of Easterners whose ancestors trace to the leaders of the American Revolution.

About that wedding cake! The White House gave out the recipe, broken down to family proportions—a lot of food experts tested it, and found it wanting—something. Seems its batter overran the pan.

UPI's food editor Jeanne Lesem thought something was wrong with the egg content and observed that "the White House needs a good proofreader."

Anyway, the cake stood the test in its much larger proportions, came the big day.

YOU COULDN'T wrap up the domestic scene '71 without this note: Elizabeth Taylor Burton became a grandma. The baby whom grandma described as "gorgeous" is the daughter of the 39-year-old Miss Taylor's son, Michael H. Wilding. The actress once was the wife of the senior Wilding.

Strangely, as the names of personalities moved across the news stage, that of Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis cropped up without much sequence. She was photographed at parties, she went shopping, but mostly it seemed she'd moved out of the ever-constant spotlight—that is, until she went to court late in the year asking that action be taken to protect her from one stubborn photographer who, she said, kept her almost a prisoner in her Fifth Avenue apartment. The man was enjoined from continuing his quest for Jackie pictures.

Kate Webb Is 'Most Exciting'

SYDNEY (UPI)—The Australian magazine Woman's Day today named Kate Webb, United Press International manager for Cambodia, as one of its "most exciting women of the year."

Miss Webb's name was among the top 12 women of the year which included Britain's Princess Anne, singer Diahann Carroll, Mrs. Aristotle Onassis, swimmer Shane Gould and Wimbledon champion Evonne Goolagong.

"Kate Webb certainly proved to be one of the more dramatically exciting women of the year —and for reasons far removed from the glamor and glitter of most of the women who made the news in 1971," Woman's Day said.

Miss Rogers Lone Woman In Medex

Former San Rafael resident Patricia Rogers of Yelm, Wash., is the only woman in the country accepted into the Medex program.

The program is designed to train men and women with a background of medical experience in the armed forces to become assistants to physicians, usually in rural or remote areas, which have a shortage of doctors.

Miss Rogers, a native of Napa, studied for three months at the University of Washington and this month began on-the-job training, working for a year with a licensed physician in the Yelm area. Her specialized training follows four years as a medical service specialist in the Air Force. She worked in Marin as a licensed vocational nurse.

Span Shorter For Singles

LONDON (UPI)—A report submitted to Parliament says wives tend to live longer than unmarried women.

The report, prepared by Registrar-General Michael Reed, said more unmarried women than wives die between the ages of 25 and 64.

The report said statistics showed that more single women died from blood clots, strokes, pepetic ulcers, heart disease and intestinal trouble than their married counterparts.

It also said single women were more likely to get cancer of the breast or of the womb.

Miss Wieser Betrothal Is Told

Mrs. Arnold Wieser of Kentfield has announced the engagement of her daughter Ellen Wieser to Tom Lilienthal, son of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Lilienthal of Sleepy Hollow.

The engagement was announced during Christmas at Lake Tahoe, where the two families stayed for the holidays.

Ellen also is the daughter of the late Dr. Arnold Wieser. She was graduated from the University of Arizona and is a teacher in Oakland. She is the sister of Kathryn McGarr of Los Angeles and Marni and Beth Wieser of Kentfield.

Tom is attending California State College at Hayward and plans to receive a teaching credential in music. He is the brother of Peggy Linden of Rockville, Md., and Vicki Lilienthal of Berkeley.

The engaged pair are planning to be married next summer.

Wedding Plans For Miss Avilla

An Aug. 5 wedding is planned by Kellie Lee Avilla and Steven Lee Stanley, both of Novato.

The future bride is the daughter of Mrs. Ann Avilla of Novato and L. J. Avilla of Redlands. She is the sister of Louis John Ferrari of San Rafael and Gary Ferrari of Novato and the granddaughter of Mrs. Constance Avilla of Mill Valley. Kellie attends Novato High School.

Steven is the son of Mrs. Ellen Stanley of Novato and L.W. Stanley of San Rafael. His brother and sisters are Dennis, Cheryl, Michelle and Kimberly Stanley, and he is the grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Short of Mountain View. He is a graduate of Novato High School and works for Western California Telephone Company in Novato.

Answers To Inquiry About Dating And Unwed Mothers

DEAR HELEN AND SUE:

In reply to the letter from "Wondering" who asked how guys felt about dating unwed mothers, I can only speak for myself, but I say — it makes no difference.

I dated an unwed mother for over a year. She never tried to hide the facts, and I never blamed her. My case was a little different in that I'm sterile. The fact that she already had a child made her even more attractive to me, as I want desperately to be a father. However, there are thousands of men like me — and I'd guess that many would feel as I do. So the fact that a girl has a child is not much of a deterrent to a good marriage (unless the guy is a prude, in which case she wouldn't want him anyway).

DEAR RAP:

This is to "Wondering": I don't know whether you kept your baby or whether you had an abortion, but I had to write and tell you things will be better soon.

Last year I went through your same doubts, I gave up my baby for adoption. My folks wanted me to have an abortion and when I refused, they felt I'd ruined my life. They wanted to keep everything secret.

When I gave my baby away, I thought my life had ended. I was wrong. Soon after, I started dating again, and I learned to recognize the fellows who would understand and those who couldn't. There are plenty of both.

This year I met and married the most wonderful guy in the world. He knows all about my past and understands.

I have several friends who either had abortions or babies they gave up. They all agree with me when I say that if a man is worth having, to date or marry, he will not let the past keep him away. — SURE

DEAR RAP:

You showed a remarkable amount of common sense in your answers to "Doubtful" who got fleeced by a phony "witch." But you also desplayed a lack of knowledge of certain facts.

"Doubtful's" boyfriend was obviously not influenced by the actions of the "wicca," as she mistakenly termed some charlatan who fleeced her.

You see, today's so-called witches are a bunch of kooks who are supposed to go around casting "evil spells." This is far from the actual truth.

"Wicca" (meaning "wise one") can only be correctly applied to someone who follows a nature-and-fertility religion which dates back to Paleolithic times. It is a realistic, valid religion that places great emphasis on love and trust; it has nothing to do with worshipping the devil or any sort of similar nonsense.

True, its followers do believe they can work magic through the use of natural (not "super" natural) forces, just as Christians believe they can obtain miracles through prayer.

It would be interesting to see how different would be the reaction, if "Doubtful" had "gone to church" to get her guy back. If witchcraft is "superstition" then certainly so is religion.

In addition, it is against the rules of this "wicca" religion to accept money for achieving desired effects, so no witch ever victimizes anyone financially.

I hope this note has helped inform you of what witchcraft really is as opposed to popular misconceptions. — WISE ONE

DEAR WISE ONE:

Not really, but thanks for your interesting letter. — RAP

Some Tips On Proper Poultry Care

All poultry is perishable. Care and cleanliness should be used in the preparation, cooking, and serving of poultry products.

Left-over cooked poultry, broth, stuffing, and gravy should be separated, covered and refrigerated. Use within one to two days. Freeze for longer storage.

Summer wedding plans

Miss Knight Engagement Announced

Mr. and Mrs. Ted Knight of Tiburon have announced the engagement of their daughter, Katherine Mary, to Richard Dale Rusk of Rancho Cordova.

Kathy was graduated from Redwood High School and is a senior at University of California at Davis, majoring in philosophy and English. The bride-elect has three younger sisters, Paula, Susan and Laura Lee.

A graduate of Cordova High School, Richard is a senior at U.C. Davis, majoring in psychology and mathematics. He is affiliated with Delta Sigma Phi fraternity. Richard is the son of Mrs. Verle Rusk of Rancho Cordova and the late Mr. Rusk, and he is the brother of Mrs. Jay Crawford of Ridgecrest.

Patent and suede are a popular combination for spring handbags, according to Women's Wear Daily. The combination pits the texture of suede with the sheen and gleam of patent and will be seen in clutch bags and shoulderbags.

Big On Campus

A big thing for the girls at Sarah Lawrence College is to wear a Brownie or Girl Scout uniform, reports Women's Wear Daily. The boys, it reports, go for shoulder bags or flag motif knapsacks, and both boys and girls sport multi-colored striped or patterned vests.

PIA LINDSTROM A BRIDE AGAIN

Former Bay Area television news personality Pia Lindstrom was wed to Joseph Daly Tuesday in a ceremony at St. Thomas More Church in New York. The bride's mother, actress Ingrid Bergman, attended the ceremony. Pia, also the daughter of Dr. Petter Lindstrom of Tiburon, was graduated from Mills College in Oakland and was previously married to the late Fuller (Clay) Callaway III. Her church wedding to Daly, a New York stockbroker, was in sharp contrast to the "spur of the moment" ceremony in the police radio room of the county jailin Elko, Nev., where she and Callaway were married.

New Year's Eve Party A Day Early

By MOLLY MARIN

Among the 24 guests who will celebrate New Year's Eve a day in advance are Adm. (ret.) and Mrs. E. John MacGregor of Piedmont, Col. (ret.) and Mrs. Joseph L. McGerity and Mr. and Mrs. John K. Fulton of Mill Valley, Mayor and Mrs. Cornelius Van Vliet of Fairfax, Capt. and Mrs. Jack Reddy of San Francisco and Messrs. and Mmes. Thomas Clyde Huddleson and Jack I. Miller of Corte Madera.

The Flynns decided to have their party the evening before the traditional celebration, says Mrs. Flynn, because they felt it would be a safer time for their guests to be on the road.

PERDITA AVERY of Melbourne, Australia, arrived on Christmas day to join a family reunion at the Kenneth Merklin home in Tiburon. She lived with the Merklins in 1965 and 1966 when she was an American Field Service exchange student attending Redwood High School.

The Merklin's daughters, — Mrs. Scott Johnson of Davis and Mrs. Paul Hammel — and their husbands also spent the holiday with their parents. Rita Johnson and Perdita were classmates at Redwood High School.

Roma and Paul Hammel have been living in Washington, D.C., where he was stationed with the Navy. They are moving to Stanford, where he is enrolled for the winter quarter, which begins next month.

MR. AND MRS. Howard Ager of San Anselmo are vacationing in Sun City, Ariz.

A NEW YEAR'S EVE buffet supper for Sausalito Woman's club members and their friends who wish to celebrate the arrival of the new year together is being planned by club president Mrs. Walter C. Thomson, and Mr. Thomson and the James McCarthys. The supper served at 8:30 p.m. will be followed by dancing and toasting of the new year at midnight.

A "RECOVERY BRUNCH" on New Year's Day will be the first event of the new year for the Sausalito Yacht Club. The clubhouse will be open at 10 a.m. for members who wish to watch the football games, and the brunch will be served at 11 a.m. Carl Lischeske is chairman.

Cheese Logs— Simply, Quickly

To make cheese logs simply and quickly, cut package of cream cheese in half lengthwise. Coat one portion with chopped nutmeats, the other with snipped parsley or chives.

The trick is to put the nutmeats and cheese on a sheet of waxed paper, lifting the edges of the paper to toss the nuts onto the cheese.

Golden Anniversary Celebrated

Mr. and Mrs. Percival George Alford of San Rafael celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary at a family gathering Christmas Eve at the home of their daughter and son-in-law, Mayor and Mrs. C. Paul Bettini of San Rafael.

On Dec. 19 the Alfords were honored at a surprise party hosted by the Bettinis and the Alfords' other daughters and sons-in-law, Messrs. and Mmes. John Adams of Bristol, England, and Raymond Rossi of San Rafael. Guests at the party, held at Bel Marin Keys Yacht Club, included members of the English Women's Club of Marin.

Percival and Marjorie Sterling Alford came to San Rafael in 1951 from their native England. Prior to his retirement Mr. Alford was employed by Northwestern Pacific Railroad.

Grandchildren of the couple are Richard, David, Brian and Roger Bettini, Al and Janet Rossi and Angela Garten. They are great-grandparents of Alison Garten.

Mrs. Alford is vice-president of the Goldenaires Club in San Rafael, a group in which both are active members. She also is a member of the English Women's Club.

The Alfords' hobbies are bowling and gardening and both enjoy travel and frequently visit friends and relatives in England.

Hot Dog Bites

Hot dog bites rank high as a holiday appetizer on many points — popularity, cost and convenience. Reposing in a chafing dish in a zippy sauce, they stay hot and inviting an entire evening. But keep an eye on the chafing dish; it will need refilling. Either bite-size pieces of frankfurters or cocktail franks can be heated in barbecue sauce spiked with hot sauce.

Pat Nixon And The Blue Room

By HELEN THOMAS

WASHINGTON (UPI) —First Lady Pat Nixon's transformation of the Blue Room in the White House is expected to get under way in early February.

The so-called "Blue Room" became white on white under the restoration of former First Lady Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis in 1961.

While the public shows more respect for White House belongings than those of the vandal-plagued John F. Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts, the mansion needs constant sprucing up to remain the pride of the nation.

WITH THE White House police on duty as guides and protectors, the possessions in the White House are not disturbed.

But chief housekeeper Shirley Bailey does have a complaint which she vents in Allen Drury's new book on the presidency, titled "Courage and Hesitation."

"I find it kind of embarrassing and rather heartbreaking, how the public treats this house," Mrs. Bailey told the author.

"Of course I know they regard it as theirs, and of course it is, but people will put children on antique chairs, they will sit down and eat food and scatter crumbs on the rugs.

"THEY WILL touch the tapestries and wallpaper and get them dirty," she bemoaned. "They will throw cigarette butts in the fireplaces. There seems to be little real respect among the public who visit here. We have police stationed all over the house to warn them, but it doesn't seem to make too much difference. I wish there was some way to convince them that this is an historical house and they should take care of it."

And yet there seems to be none of the same proprietary air that has afflicted some visitors to the Kennedy Center, who have snipped the rug and clipped the crystals from some of the magnificent chandeliers.

Curator Clement Conger, who is in constant quest of priceless furnishings for the first house in the land, said that the President and Mrs. Nixon" were terribly upset at how down-at-the-heel the place looked when they came in."

"THE JOHNSONS seemed almost afraid to change anything left by the Kennedys for fear they would be criticized by the press and the public," said Conger. "But the Nixons are very much interested in seeing the house brought up to its full perfection.

By MARY LEYDECKER

"Two bits to go anywhere in the county! People are crazy not to take the bus," and "Oh, boy, now we can go bowling," are comments typical of passengers on Marin's new local bus system. (See another story, page 1.)

One driver, Ray Skinner, who formerly drove Greyhound buses out of San Jose, said, "People are nicer in Marin. We get more 'good mornings, goodbyes and thank yous'."

Jerome Kuykendall Golden Gate Bridge District's transportation developer, confirmed that things are going well — better than district officials had dared hope — with the intracounty bus system now almost three weeks old.

"We are very pleased with the acceptance by the public as well as the operation itself," Kuykendall said.

Seven local routes are now in operation Monday through Friday and served by 23 buses. Tomorrow a vastly expanded commuter service to San Francisco and Santa Rosa will replace the old Greyhound lines, and the two services will link at numerous points.

On a sunny afternoon this week the enthusiasm of passengers and the cheerfulness of the driver made the trip from Peacock Gap to Fairfax almost a festive occasion.

First to board the bus, which runs every half hour, was a group of 10-year-old boys, headed for the movies. Only one had been on the buses before.

As the boys boarded the bus, they learned from driver Skinner that the exact change for fare (15 cents for youngsters through age 16 and senior citizens and 25 cents for adults) was necessary. (Children under 5 ride free.)

"Maybe your buddy can pay for you and you can pay him back." Skinner suggested to one boy who had only a $1 bill.

This settled, the boys took front seats, examined schedules and found to their excitement, they could arrange a transfer so they could go bowling on another day.

Children on the way to outings, teen-age girls with armloads of packages to exchange, older women who chatted quietly, young couples with babies and even people on the way to afternoon jobs made up the afternoon's passenger load.

The questions were numerous — most riders seemed to be using the new bus for the first time. As the driver pulled into the transfer point at Fourth and Hetherton streets, other buses were ready and waiting to take passengers either north or south in the county.

Three teen-age girls loaded with parcels who wanted to go to Terra Linda were told the northbound buses were on the right side of the street. They then had to ask, "Is Terra Linda north?"

A driver change quickly took place at this stop, and the new driver, John McMillen of Petaluma, wryly made a faceas he looked at the pileup of traffic on Fourth Street. He explained earlier schedules had been revised when bus officials learned how long it takes to maneuver through the downtown traffic.

At San Anselmo, riders got another chance to transfer, either for Sleepy Hollow or south to Corte Madera and Sausalito. Most did so with only a few taking the full ride to Fairfax.

Each day, he said, patronage has increased on the seven routes, which also include runs from Mill Valley to San Marin, Sausalito to San Marin, Sausalito to Belvedere, East Corte Madera to Sleepy Hollow, Santa Venetia to Terra Linda and the Civic Center to Novato.

There are several transfer points at which riders may change to other routes, giving wide variety of possible choices.

The first day of bus service on Dec. 13 carried about 1,000 passengers (about double the average daily patronage of the old Marin Transit Systems Inc. buses). By Tuesday, the new buses carried 2,909 passengers in the daily runs. Kuykendall said he predicts a continuing rise as more Marin residents learn how to use the service.

'Jekyl, Hyde' To Kick off Film Series

Director Rouben Mamoulian's classic 1932 horror film, "Dr. Jekyl and Mr. Hyde," starring Frederic March, will open the Sausalito Youth Center's 1972 Friday Night at the Movies series on Jan. 7.

All films in the series will be presented at 8 p.m. in the youth center's new location in Central School, Caledonia and Bee streets.

Other films planned include: Jan. 14, "A Woman Rebels" (1936), with Katherine Hepburn and Herbert Marshall; Jan. 21, "The Strong Man," (1926); Jan. 28, "The Devil Is a Woman," (1935), starring Marlene Dietrich; Feb. 4, "Duck Soup," with the Marx Brothers; Feb. 11, "Phantom of the Opera" (1925) with Lon Chaney Sr.

Also scheduled are : Feb. 18, "Tarzan the Ape Man," Feb. 25, "Masque of the Red Death,"; March 3, "Hollywood Revue of 1929", starring Joan Crawford, Marion Davies, Marie Dressler, John Gilbert, Buster Keaton, Laurel and Hardy, Norma Shearer and Conrad Nagel.

'Claire' Is Named Best 1971 Film

NEW YORK (UPI)—The French film "Claire's Knee" was named the outstanding picture of 1971 Wednesday by the National Society of Film Critics. Bernardo Bertolucci was named best director for "The Conformist."

The society, made up of 24 critics from national publications, named Jane Fonda the best actress for her performance in "Klute" and Peter Finch the best actor for "Sunday, Bloody Sunday."

"Le Chargin et la Pietie" was given a special award for a film of extraordinary public interest and distinction.

Other awards by the national society:

— Best supporting actor, Bruce Bern, "Drive, He Said."

—Best supporting actress, Ellen Burstyn, "The Last Picture Show."

—Best screenplay, Penelope Gilliatt, "Sunday, Bloody Sunday."

Rome Tries Free Bus Ride Plan

ROME (UPI)—The city fathers turned Rome into a city of freeloaders today with free bus rides for everyone in an effort to end the eternal traffic problem. First indications were the plan was working—there were even a few parking places on the side streets.

The city's two bus companies began the nine-day experiment in hopes of unclogging the streets of downtown Rome and persuading Romans that buses make more sense than cars in traveling in and out of the city center.

For Romans used to double parking and traffic snarls on main streets into the downtown area, there were two surprises —buses were making their trips faster and newsmen spotted several unfilled parking spots on side streets.

The No. 61 bus, which runs about two miles from the northeastern section of Rome to the main post office, made the trip Wednesday in 43 minutes. Today it did the trip in 27 minutes.

"I couldn't believe it would work so well," passenger Claudia Esposito said.

the idea has been kicked around for some time, but this was the first time anyone decided to try it. Other Italian cities, notably Milan and Turin, were watching the experiment closely to see whether they also might try free bus transport.

The two bus companies, Atac and Stefer, will continue the experiment until midnight Jan. 7. The free ride deal does not apply to existing subway lines or to some suburban bus service where a fare of about 10 cents is required between midnight and 6 a.m.

Modern Bridge District Buses Offer Luxury And Roominess

The air-conditioned green and white coaches not only are spanking new, but have far more leg and hip room than Greyhound buses.

The fleet consists of 132 new coaches and 20 leased Greyhound buses built since 1965. Of these 20, only the three that have been used to feed the Sausalito ferry have been repainted with district colors. The remaining 17 will retain Greyhound colors, but the district's symbol will replace Greyhound's.

All 20 Greyhound buses are to be replaced with additional new district coaches in about five months.

The district also owns two traditionally furnished buses being used for the Sausalito ferry feeder service.

Of the 132 new coaches, 112 are the "suburban" type with high-back reclining seats, eight of them turned sideways in the front of the bus to speed loading on shorter runs.

Each has 45 seats, eight fewer than usual to give extra leg room.

The district's bus transit manager, H. Donald White, proudly points to the fact that the fleet is the only completely new one in existence with the "environmental improvement package" developed by General Motors to assure the latest emission and sound controls.

Virtually invisible emissions come out a vertical exhaust at the top of the rear of the bus, and the sound controls eliminate most of the engine noise so common to older buses.

While also points with pride at the little touches — such as the bright white light outside the door to illuminate the sidewalk stops at night.

Specifications for the two types of coach generally are identical, except that at 23,260 pounds curb weight the suburban type weighs 860 pounds. more than the transit type. The weight difference is largely in the seats and flooring. Inside, there are four different color combinations and fluorescent lighting.

There is no provision for advertising, inside or out.

All of this costs — with the price tag over $47,000 for each of the 112 suburban coaches and over $45,000 for the 20 transit models.

But these and other costs of the bus system are to be offset by a $6.1 million federal grant to cover two-thirds of the cost of the initial system.

Other specifications for the technically minded follow:

ENGINE — Transversely mounted, 565 cubic-inch diesel V-8 developing 235 horsepower at 2,000 rpm and capable of maintaining at least 23 miles an hour on the Waldo Grade with a full seated load, and able to negotiate occasional grades up to 12 per cent.

TRANSMISSION — Fully automatic.

BRAKES — Drum forward and rear.

TIRES — Tubeless 12.5x22.5, single in front and double in rear; leased from Firestone at a cost of one cent per mile per tire, including servicing.

FUEL — One 125-gallon tank, with consumption at about five and a half miles per gallon.

SUSPENSION — Air.

AIR-CONDITIONSING — Ten-ton capacity.

DIMENSIONS — Length, 40 feet; width, 102 inches; minimum headroom in center aisle, 76 inches; seat width, 38 inches; aisle width, 18 inches, turning radius, 42 feet, six inches.

WINDOWS — Push-out type, replacing need for rear door for emergencies.

FARE BOX — Exact change only; no change.

RADIOS — Two-way system to be installed on all coaches.

Senator Spong Says Soap Safer

WASHINGTO (UPI)—After conducting months of hearings on cleaning products, Sen. William B. Spong Jr., D-Va., concluded that common soap is safer than non-phosphates and more wholesome to the environment than phosphates.

Soap can cause environmental problems, Spong said Wednesday, "bat these are generally less worrisome than those associated with phosphates."

Spong said the evidence from hearings before the Senate Commerce subcommittee he chairs led him to believe that "soap is a safer product than all of the major currently marketed non-phosphates. While it is no safer than many of the phosphate products, it is superior environmentally."

HOW TO PLAY

WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

Don't Blame Your Luck When Chances For Victory Go Sour

"You say that there is virtually no such thing as luck at the bridge table, writes a distraught reader. "How would you explain what happened to my partner in the accompanying hand? The odds were 10 to 1 in his favor, but still he went down."

South dealer
Both sides vulnerable

South	West	North	East
1 NT	Pass	3 NT	All Pass

TOP DIAMOND

West led the queen of diamonds, and East won the first trick with the king. My partner had to win the next diamond with the ace.

"South then led two top clubs, discovering that he would have to win the third club in dummy and the fourth club in his own hand, with no way to get back to dummy for the fifth club.

FINESSE TRY

"He tried a finesse with the queen of spades before going on with the clubs, but West took the king of spades and three more diamond tricks.

"My partner pointed out that only a diamond lead could give him any trouble, and then only if the opening leader had five or more diamonds. Even then the hand would be easy if the clubs broke 2-2 or if East had the king of spades.

"Isn't it bad luck when all of these chances go sour?"

LUCK IS RELATIVE

Luck is a relative term. South's method of playing the hand was lucky for the defenders and unlucky for the poor dummy. It's meaningless to call South himself either lucky or unlucky: He simply misplayed the hand.

After winning the second diamond with the ace and cashing two top clubs, South should lead a diamond from the dummy, discarding a club from his own hand.

SAFE ACTION

This is safe since only three diamonds are still out. Whenever West has finished with the diamonds, South can win any return and lead his sole remaining club to dummy. Then dummy can stay in the lead with the three and deuce of clubs. South makes his game with five clubs, one diamond, two hearts and one spade.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with one heart, and the next player passes.

You hold:
♠ - K 10 4 3
♥ - 10 7 2
♦ - Q J 10 9 7
♣ - 10.

What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid two hearts.

Winning Ticket Is Stolen In Purse

NEW YORK (UPI)—Holda Johannson, 66, cried Tuesday when told that her Irish Sweepstakes ticket had won $52,000. Her purse containing that ticket had been snatched a month ago by a young thief as she walked down a Manhattan street.

But the Brooklyn widow's story may have a happy ending. The selier of the ticket said he still has the receipt and Mrs. Johannson will get the money if she can provide positive identification.

BIRTHDAY QUIZ

By GORDON B. GREB

Guess who was born today Dec. 30, and became famous as:

1. A great 19th Century English writer? Born in Bombay, this Nobel prize winner won international acclaim for his stories, poems, and novels about English life in India, making famous "Wee Willie Winkie" and "Gunga Din": (A) Rudyard Kipling; (B) Joseph Conrad; (C) Arthur Conan Doyle.

2. A network radio and TV personality? Now the master of ceremonies for the annual coronation of "Miss America," this 57-year old entertainer got his start on the "Eddie Cantor Show" and hit the jackpot with "Stop the Music": (A) Jimmy Wallington; (B) Don Wilson; (C) Bert Parks.

3. A Big League baseball champion? One of baseball's greatest pitchers, this lefthander for the Los Angeles Dodgers (36 today) holds the all-time major league record for strikeouts, 382 in one season: (A) Bob Feller; (B) Sandy Koufax; (C) Claude Osteen.

4. An American philanthropist? A former U.S. Senator, this wealthy industrialist and his wife decided to do something to honor their son, establishing a foundation whose assets today exceed $25 million:
(A) Leland Stanford; (B) Simon Guggenheim; (C) Henry Ford.

ANSWERS

1-A (Rudyard Kipling); 2-C (Bert Parks); 3-B (Sandy Koufax); 4-B (Simon Guggenheim).

An Answer To Sewage Woes

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—A team of consulting engineers Tuesday proposed a twopronged answer to sewage-disposal problems in south San Francisco Bay.

It called for the discharge of highly treated effluent into the bay north of the Dumbarton Bridge and utilization of a potential market for up to 130 million gallons of reclaimed water a day in the South Bay Area.

Marin's Top 1971 News Stories

By FRANK FARRARA

One of Marin County's landmarks went up in flames during 1971 and another experienced the darkest day in its history as six men met violent death.

On a May evening, the 98-year-old Marin County courthouse in downtown San Rafael was wrecked by an arsonist's fire. In an ignoble anticlimax, the structure was razed by wrecking crews and its place is now marked for a city parking lot.

Meanwhile, San Quentin Prison, a Marin fixture for more than a century, was shaken by a burst of violence that left three prisoners and three guards dead and brought calls for the prison to be abandoned.

While the old structures met with tragedy, the county's $4.1 million Veterans Memorial Building came to life with a flourish, a sea of champagne and a premiere performance by the Marin Symphony Orchestra and soprano Dorothy Kirsten.

In another major development of 1971, a disastrous oil spill in San Francisco Bay sparked increased concern for the environment — a concern that also saw the Regional Water Quality Control Board ban new construction in Southern Marin and much of the Ross Valley.

Weary travelers looked forward to a new look in transportation as the Golden Gate Bridge District jumped into the bus business with a fleet of shiny buses, running locally now and scheduled to go into full commuter operations Jan. 3.

Labor problems also were in the news in Marin this year as Mill Valley city employees, except police and firemen, walked a picket line and lay teachers at Marin Catholic High School walked off the job as part of a Bay Area strike against the San Francisco Archdiocese. And a 19-month-long strike by San Francisco Typographical Union 21 against the Independent-Journal came to an end.

Voters kept the purse strings tight, trouncing the Marin Municipal Water District's plan to join the Sonoma-Marin aqueduct project and failing to give two-thirds support to the Marin Community College District's $16.7 million bond measure.

State politicians wrangled over reapportionment of senatorial and assembly districts, and at year's end, Marinites still wondered how their districts would shape up.

The cases of black militant Angela Davis and San Quentin inmate Ruchell Magee lingered throughout the year, a persistent reminder of the Aug. 7, 1970, shoot-out at the Marin Civic Center in which Superior Court Judge Harold J. Haley and three others died.

A capsule report of the events of 1971, month by month, follows:

JANUARY

Black militant Angela Davis was linked to guns used in the Aug. 7, 1970, shootout at the Marin Civic Center which ended in the death of Superior Court Judge Harold J. Haley, two convicts and their accomplice. She charged she was a "political prisoner."

Two large Standard Oil Co. tankers collided in fog and darkness under the Golden Gate Bridge and spilled hundreds of thousands of gallons of oil into bay waters. The massive oil slick was the most disastrous in the bay's history.

Thousands of volunteers gathered at Marin shorelines in an effort to save the lives of birds caught in the oil slick, clean beaches and save Bolinas Lagoon from the spreading oil.

The First Presbyterian Church of San Rafael, a 74-year-old landmark was slated to be razed, but a group of congregation members started a battle to save it.

Jean Varda, Sausalito's grand old man of art, died at 77 while vacationing in Mexico, and the Rev. Ilion T. Jones, professor emeritus of practical theology at San Francisco Theological Seminary in San Anselmo, died at his home in Novato after a short illness at the age of 81.

FEBRUARY

In the Reed School District, scene of struggle between advocates of traditional and progressive education, a move got under way to recall Gordon C. Wright, chairman of the district board.

Nature Conservancy acquired the Slide Ranch, 133 acres of rocky coastline north of Muir Beach, and received a gift of 540 acres of rolling, brush-covered land east of Muir Beach from George W. Wheelwright III.

An escaped San Quentin inmate kidnapped two Novato housewives, one the wife of a Novato police officer, and two children and took them on a harrowing, 400-mile ride to Southern California before releasing them.

A 32-year-old San Anselmo man tested security at the Marin Civic Center by attempting to enter with what appeared to be bomb components, including a clock, hidden in a grapefruit. He was arrested.

Fred R. Dickson, 70, warden at San Quentin from 1957 to 1964, died of a heart attack in Vacaville.

MARCH

Army officials announced that four Nike-Hercules missile sites in Marin would be shut down — a battery in San Rafael, two at Fort Cronkhite and 2nd Battalion Headquarters at Fort Baker — and 270 men would be transferred to other Army Air Defense Command posts.

The Golden Gate Bridge District recommended a $331.5 million start on a bus, rapid transit and ferry system.

The Department of Defense announced closing of the 876-acre Two Rock Army Station, west of Petaluma, as an economy move by June 30, affecting 83 civilian employees and 332 military personnel.

Efforts to begin a hearing in the Angela Davis case at the Marin County Hall of Justice were thwarted twice by telephoned bomb threats, and hundreds of her supporters, chanting and making speeches, gathered outside the building.

County Administrator Alan Bruce recommended firing of Dr. Carolyn B. Albrecht, Marin County health officer for almost 17 years, because of allegedly inept management of the department.

APRIL

Marin County officials flew to Washington, D.C., to meet with Air Force and Federal Aviation Agency officials seeking joint civilian-military air use at Hamilton Air Force Base.

The Marin Community College District chose Ernest H. Berg, 51, president of the College of Alameda in the Peralta Community College District, to head the district's north campus.

Gordon C. Wright, chairman of the Reed School District board, was recalled and Dr. John J. Osborn, a heart specialist, elected as his successor.

A bomb rocked the Bank of America branch in Mill Valley, a blast occurred at Tamalpais High School and the office of Principal Raymond J. Bell was set afire.

The Coast Guard won approval from the Department of Transportation to take over the Two Rock Army Station, west of Petaluma, effective June 30.

Russ Hodges, radio voice of the New York and San Francisco Giants for 22 years, died at Marin General Hospital after suffering a heart attack at his Mill Valley home. He was 60.

MAY

Thirty-seven peace demonstrators were arrested after they refused to disperse from a sit-in at the San Rafael office of the Selective Service.

JUNE

A mysterious fire caused heavy damage to one of four hulking drydocks on Richardson Bay. The drydocks had been under attack as unsightly.

A minor league naval engagement erupted on Richardson Bay when houseboat dwellers, seeking to prevent county officials from seizing vessels that didn't conform to county codes, battled sheriff's deputies and the Coast Guard.

The state attorney general's office ruled the state wasn't responsible for paying any of the expected $1.5 million costs for trying Angela Davis and San Quentin inmate Ruchell Magee in connection with the Aug. 7, 1970, shoot-out. Miss Davis was denied a bid for bail and her lawyers said they would seek to move her trial to another county.

The Regional Water Quality Control Board banned new construction throughout much of Southern Marin until a subregional sewage system is completed. Limited building would be permitted as sewage pollution was reduced, the board said.

Donald R. Frost resigned as county public works director after nine years to become public works director and county water agency director for Yuba County.

JULY

The Air Force agreed to permit limited air commuter service out of Hamilton Air Force Base. Flights to San Francisco International Airport by Golden Pacific Airlines were envisioned.

The Marin Civic Ballet Association reported it had received a $350,000 grant to build a headquarters in the proposed cultural center area of the Marin County Civic Center.

The San Rafael Military Academy, beset with financial woes, closed after 80 years as a preparatory school, and a special board was set up to consider opening an Episcopal high school on the site in 1972.

More than 500 employees of the Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Co. in Marin joined a nationwide strike of telephone workers.

The Regional Water Quality Control Board placed a ban on new construction in most of Ross Valley, with limited exceptions. It was similar to the ban imposed earlier in Southern Marin.

AUGUST

Offices of the Marin County Housing Authority and Redevelopment Agency were picketed by Marin City residents because the agencies held a series of secret meetings.

A 33-day strike by city employees in Mill Valley ended as all employees won a $50-a-month pay raise.

San Quentin Prison had what officials described as the "blackest day" in its history when three guards and three prisoners, including Soledad Brother George Jackson, died during an abortive escape attempt.

A warrant was issued for the arrest of an East Bay attorney, Stephen M. Bingham, the last man to visit San Quentin inmate George Jackson before the prison violence erupted. Bingham was believed to have smuggled a gun to Jackson, setting off the chain of events that led to six deaths.

William W. Ward, regional disaster office chief for the state, warned Marin supervisors that the county's disaster plan was only a "skeleton" and cities in Marin had no plans at all, leaving Marin in effect without a plan in the event of a disaster.

SEPTEMBER

Marin residents called for a minimum of auto travel at Point Reyes National Seashore and an expansion of the wilderness area. Under discussion was a National Park Service master plan for the seashore.

Two homes in Corte Madera were destroyed and a third was badly damaged after a car battery charger exploded.

The Renaissance Center announced plans to recreate an Elizabethan village on a 1,000-acre ranch in Lucas Valley and ran into almost unanimous opposition from valley residents.

Marin County's $4.1 million Veterans Memorial Building opened with a gala concert featuring the Marin Symphony Orchestra and soprano Dorothy Kirsten.

Reports leaked out that Fairfax Police Chief James R. Orr had been asked to resign or face dismissal.

George R. Scott, 74, of Mill Valley, longtime Marin County labor leader, died after a long illness, and Edward Z. Lewis, 58, president of the Bolinas Stinson School District Board, collapsed and died while playing tennis in Stinson Beach.

Independent-Journal shop employees voted unanimously against representation by the San Francisco typographical union, and the National Labor Relations Board approved the result, ending a 19-month strike marked by widespread violence, including the murder of an I-J employee, attacks on persons and property of other I-J employees and vandalism against property of I-J advertisers, crimes for which several members of unions were jailed or imprisoned.

Asst. County Administrator John F. Barrows was appointed county administrator, succeeding Alan Bruce, by a 3-2 vote of Marin supervisors.

OCTOBER

The Marin Hospital District Board endorsed an architect's proposal to expand Marin General Hospital by adding an eight-story wing estimated to cost $12 million.

Commerce Clearing House, publisher of law books, opened a $6 million three-story office building on Quail Hill overlooking the Northgate area.

Voters of four fringe areas of Tiburon — Strawberry, Bel Aire, Eagle Rock and Bay View — defeated the city's bid for annexation.

Residents of Upper Lucas Valley mounted a campaign against the proposal to have an old English village and the Renaissance Pleasure Faire in Lucas Valley.

The Audubon Canyon Ranch announced plans to purchase 42 acres of Tomales Bay tidelands and to acquire a nine-acre cypress grove, north of Marshall, as a gift.

Senate leaders backed a bipartisan reapportionment plan that would leave Marin wholly intact in a new district including north and west San Francisco and part of San Mateo. Earlier plans would have divided the county. Sen. Peter H. Behr, R-San Rafael, and Sen. Milton Marks, R-San Francisco, would clash for the district seat if the plan were adopted.

NOVEMBER

The Marin County Planning Commission rejected the controversial Renaissance Center proposal for Upper Lucas Valley, and Phyllis and Ronald Patterson, its creators, dropped the plan.

Judge Richard E. Arnason transferred the Angela Davis case to Santa Clara County because he said there was reasonable likelihood she couldn't get a fair trail in Marin.

Voters rejected the Marin Municipal Water District's proposal to participate in the Sonoma-Marin aqueduct project by a nine-to-one ratio.

The Marin Community College District's $16.7 million bond proposal to complete the Kentfield campus and start a north campus near Novato failed to get the needed two-thirds vote.

Youths in the 18-21 age bracket voted for the first time and the turnout was at the same ratio as their elders — 49 per cent.

The nearly century-old Marshall Hotel, once a haven for rum runners, was destroyed by fire. Twenty five occupants escaped unharmed.

Tiburon City Councilman Anne L. Ellinwood announced her candidacy for the Third District supervisorial seat held by Michael Wornum of Mill Valley.

Nineteen lay teachers at Marin Catholic High School in Kentfield, members of the Secondary Teachers Association, went on strike in a salary dispute, but the school remained open.

Herb Madden Sr., owner of Sausalito Yacht Harbor, withdrew plans for a $3 million expansion of the 425-berth harbor, blaming conditions set by the city planning commission.

Leon G. Kalimos, building manager, objected to permitting a rock concert at the Veterans Memorial Building. But it went on and resulted in damage from cigarette burns, spilled drinks and scuff marks.

Sausalito's 96-year-old history as a railroad town ended when the last train ran over the 7.2-mile branch line to Corte Madera.

Dr. Charna Perry, physician in Sausalito for 50 years, died in Greenbrae at the age of 77, and James Doyle, former Sausalito police chief, died in San Francisco after a long illness at the age of 87.

DECEMBER

Angela Davis, who had spent almost a year in Marin County Jail, was whisked in a predawn rainstorm to a cell in Santa Clara County jail in Palo Alto.

The old Sea Beach Hotel on Shoreline Highway in Stinson Beach, built in 1915, was destroyed by a flash fire.

Justus F. Craemer, co-owner of the Independent-Journal who died in 1966, was named to the California Newspaper Hall of Fame by the California Press Association.

Irate Marin City residents fought the Marin County Redevelopment Agency over proposed transfer of valuable ridgelands in the community to California Development Co.

Marin Community College District trustees voted to press ahead with construction of Indian Valley Colleges and to levy a construction tax rate of 42.8 cents per $100 assessed valuation.

The Golden Gate Bridge District started its local bus service and announced full commuter service would start Jan. 3.

Bay Area Pollution Control District directors were caught in a turmoil. In the midst of a move to fire their legal officer, Matthew S. Walker, they were confronted with a demand that their top administrator, D. J. Callaghan, be fired instead.

Fairfax Police Chief James R. Orr was charged with favoritism toward a policewoman, drunkenness, failing to set up necessary police procedures, threatening officers and a cadet and dismissing parking tickets without justification in a series of hearings on his firing, which recessed in mid-month.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

British Physician Lind Was Father Of Nautical Medicine

James Lind, physician to the Royal Navy, is known as the father of nautical medicine. He served at a time when England's global colonization and expansion of world trade was at its height. Conditions aboard ship, such as pestilence, scurvy, and foul quarters, also disturbed him. Radical reforms were needed if Britain was to continue as ruler of the sea.

The practical experience of Dr. Lind led to much needed changes. But he will go down in history for his controlled research on the value of fruits and vegetables as a cure for scurvy. Many antiscurvy agents were uncovered by the Britisher, including green vegetables, sauerkraut, onions, wine, and cider. But the best remedy turned out to be the juice of citrus fruits.

THESE FRUITS tend to spoil on long trips. Furthermore, they are not always obtainable at every port. But Lind solved this problem. He squeezed the oranges and lemons, and allowed the liquid portion to evaporate, leaving the rob, or extract which was bottled and preserved.

Captain James Cook confirmed Dr. Lind's observations. On a voyage lasting three years, Cook lost only one man, but not of scurvy. We do not know whether Lind accidentally discovered the relationship between citrus fruits and scurvy. In all probability, he heard or read that 16th century sailors used these fruits for this purpose.

DR. LIND also insisted upon cleanliness for the sick on board — "a bath, clean clothes, and clean bedding." And he also recommended a regular ration of extract of cinchona, a Peruvian bark containing quinine.

Today it may sound elementary, but Lind discovered that the steam arising from boiling sea water was perfectly fresh. On long voyages the crew need not worry about the lack of drinking water. All they had to do was to distill salt water from the sea.

Questions on medical topics will be answered by mail if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request to Independent-Journal.

WORRY AND GRAYING

P. S. writes: Does worry cause gray hair? I have been in a stew about my grades since I began high school. Now at 17, I have so many gray hairs I can't pull them out fast enough.

REPLY

There are instances in which worry contributed to graying hair but it takes more than high school study. Most of us find a few gray hairs from teen-age on. If you have more than the average, decide you are going to be prematurely gray and make the most of this distinction. If the grayness is distrubing your peace of mind, why not have your hair tinted?

TENSION BRING SYMPTOMS

T. D. writes: Could insomnia, restlessness, and depression be caused by nervous tension?

REPLY

PAIN IN ARMPIT

C. C. writes: What causes pain in the armpit?

REPLY

Infection, or swelling of the lymph glands is the most likely origin. Now and then it stems from the strain of too much exercise.

ASTHMA AND AIR TRAVEL

R. L. writes: Can people with asthma travel by plane?

REPLY

Athmatics can fly provided they are not short of breath, or in an acute asthmatic state immediately before making the trip.

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING ON TOWN OF MARSHALL ANNEXATION TO NORTH MARIN COUNTY WATER DISTRICT

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that the Board of Directors of North Marin County Water District will conduct a public hearing on the matter of the proposed annexation to said District of the inhabited territory hereinafter described and designated by the Local Agency Formation Commission of Marin County as "Town of Marshall Annexation," at 8 o'clock p.m., P.S.T., on Tuesday, January 18, 1972, at the office of the District, 999 Atherton Avenue, Novato, California. Said hearing will be held pursuant to and on the matters stated in Resolution No. 917 of the Board of Directors of said District adopted on December 7, 1971, which resolution reads as follows:

'RESOLUTION NO. 917
RESOLUTION OF THE BOARD OF DIRECTORS OF NORTH MARIN COUNTY WATER DISTRICT INITIATING PROCEEDINGS FOR THE ANNEXATION OF TERRITORY TO NORTH MARIN COUNTY WATER DISTRICT, FIXING THE TIME AND PLACE OF A PUBLIC HEARING THEREON, AND DIRECTING THE GIVING OF NOTICE THEREOF.

BE IT RESOLVED by the Board of Directors of North Marin County Water District as follows:

1. This Board of Directors does hereby find and declare that:

(a) Preliminary proceedings for the annexation to North Marin County Water District of the territory hereinafter described were commenced by the petition of property owners. Thereafter on November 10, 1971, following a public hearing the Local Agency Formation Commission of the County of Marin adopted its Resolution No. 71-43 making a determination approving said annexation.

(b) The distinctive short form designation assigned by the Commission to the territory proposed to be annexed is "Town of Marshall Annexation." A description of the exterior boundaries of said territory is set forth in Exhibit A attached hereto and incorporated herein.

(c) The said territory is inhabited.

(d) The reason for the propsoed annexation is to provide for a community water supply system and a community sewage disposal system to said territory.

(e) The terms and conditions of the proposed annexation are as follows: None

2. Tuesday, January 18, 1972, at 8:00 P.M. at the North Marin County Water District office, 999 Atherton Avenue, Novato, Marin County, California, is hereby fixed as the date, time and place of a public hearing on the proposed annexation.

3. Any interested person desiring to make written protest against said annexation shall do so by written communication filed with the Secretary of the District at the offices of the District at 999 Atherton Avenue, Novato, California, not later than 8:00 P.M. on January 18, 1972. A written protest by a landowner shall contain a description sufficient to identify that land owned by him; a protest by a voter shall contain the residential address of such voter.

4. The Secretary is hereby directed to give notice of said hearing as required by Chapter 2 of Part 5 of the District Reorganization Act of 1965.

EXHIBIT A

That certain real property situated in the County of Marin, State of California, and described as follows:

. . .beginning at the most southerly corner of that certain parcel of land described in the deed to Oscar Johansson et al, as recorded in Vol. 1175 of Official Records at page 384, being a point on the exterior line of Tideland Survey No. 234 and the easterly terminus of that certain course bounding the North Marin County Water District described as 'EAST a distance of 116.8 feet to the most southerly corner of said parcel' and running thence along the easterly boundary of said Johannson parcel, and the southeasterly boundary of the Water District, NORTH a distance of 63.36 feet to the northeasterly corner thereof and Station 7 of Tideland Survey 99 which station 7 lies on the southerly boundary of the lands described in deed to Hall as recorded in Vol. 1174 of Official Records at page 167, Marin County Records. Continuing thence along the southerly boundary of said Hall parcel, North 82° 15' East, a distance of 415.8 feet and North 44° 15' East a distance of 114 feet to the westerly corner of the lands of Paul and Catherine Keeney as said lands are described in the deed recorded in Vol. 1216 of Official Records at page 325, Marin County Records. Continuing thence along the southwesterly boundaries of said lands of Keeney, South 62° 32' East, a distance of 265 feet and North 71° 26' East a distance of 106.0 feet to the most southeasterly corner of said lands of Keeney and a point on the westerly line of California State Highway No. 1 (Shoreline Highway).

Continuing thence North 71° 26' East a distance of 50 feet more or less to the centerline of said California State Highway No. 1 and following said centerline and the boundary of the North Marin County Water District, southerly and southeasterly a distance of 1350 feet, more or less, to their intersection with the northeasterly prolongation of the southeasterly boundary of that certain parcel of land described in the deed from Summerfield to Summerfield as recorded in the office of the County Recorder for the County of Marin in Vol. 1105 of Official Records at page 309, thence South 77° 43' West, 195 feet, more or less to the exterior line of Tidelands Survey 99 and the line of Mean Low Water of Tomales Bay, thence northerly and northwesterly, following the meanderings of the line of Mean Low Water on the easterly shore of Tomales Bay, 1653.69 feet more or less to the point of beginning, comprising an area of 12.3 acres, more or less.

Any person may appear at the hearing and present any matters material to the subject thereof.

Written protests against the formation of the propsoed annexation, signed and acknowledged or proved in the manner required to entitle deeds to be recorded may be filed at the aforesaid office of the District until 8:00 P.M. on January 18, 1972, and may be filed thereafter at the said hearing at any time prior to the conclusion thereof.

Court Upholds Janitor's 1970 Murder Conviction

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—The murder conviction of a teen-age janitor in the beating of a teacher at a rural school near Salinas was upheld Wednesday by the State Court of Appeal.

The decision rejected Michael Rigmaiden's contentions that the evidence was insufficient, that he was entitled to a trial by jury and that new evidence required reopening the case.

Rigmaiden, then 17, was convicted in 1970 in Juvenile Court of beating to death Susan Jameson, 23, whose body was found at the San Benancio School, 12 miles west of Salinas.

Rigmaiden's father, Herman, was the principal of the school and the youth worked there as a janitor.

Judge Anthony Brazil, who conducted the original trial, ordered Rigmaiden into the custody of the California Youth Authority after finding him guilty of first degree murder.

Evidence leading to the conviction showed Rigmaiden and the victim were alone in the school, and that there was blood on his trousers and shoes. There was testimony he had tried to wipe off the blood stains.

The youth called sheriff's deputies May 27, 1970, and reported he had discovered Miss Jameson's body but there was evidence the report was late.

In his appeal, the youth said that new evidence involved another possible suspect, but the high court rejected that and affirmed Judge Brazil's refusal to grant a new hearing.

The high court decision, written by Justice Thomas W. Caldecott, reviewed the evidence and concluded it was more than speculation, as the youth had claimed. It noted that several recent decisions by the U.S. Supreme Court have held that a juvenile has no right to a trial by jury.

Caldecott also wrote that the "new evidence" was available to the defense at the time of the original hearing.

Including in that evidence was testimony by three witnesses that "one Kermit Hansen stated to 'a number of persons' that he killed Susan Jameson and that a person resembling Hansen was in the vicinity of the school at the time of the beating.

Defense attorneys subpoenaed Hansen as a witness, but failed to call him although he waited outside. The district attorney's office asserted that Hansen had an alibi and that he was known to make up stories to impress friends.

Coldecott's opinion said the "new evidence" was based on "double hearsay" and that Hansen's presence outside the court justified Judge Brazil's ruling that it was not new.

Nightclub's Signs Referred

An application for three signs at the Tale of the Tiger nightclub, 726 San Anselmo Avenue, has been referred back to the club's owner by the San Anselmo Design Review Committee.

Thelma Foster, secretary to the committee, said the committee decided the signs proposed by owner Peter Montalbano were too large.

In other action at a meeting Monday, the committee approved signs proposed for Pacific House, an oriental import business, at 727 Sir Francis Drake Boulevard, and for the John Young service station, 1535 Sir Francis Drake Boulevard.

Guard's Drug Hearing Reset

A preliminary hearing for Samuel Thomas Jr., 28, San Quentin guard accused of smuggling drugs into prison, has been reset for Jan. 11.

The hearing had been set for Tuesday in Marin Municipal Court, but the chemist who analyzed the drugs was not present to testify.

At the request of the district attorney, Judge Robert A. Smallman put off the hearing for two weeks.

Thomas, who lives in Richmond, had been hired as correctional officer at San Quentin in September. On Dec. 1, he was arrested as he arrived for work and was charged with bringing alcohol, benzedrine, and seconal into prison and possessing dangerous drugs within a state prison.

Expert Says Super Bomb Impossible

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (UPI)—A report that the United States is using a "super bomb" in Vietnam—a non-nuclear weapon that destroys everything within 3,280 feet—is a scientific impossibility, says one of the nation's foremost explosive experts.

Dr. W. E. Baker, who earned three engineering degrees at Johns Hopkins University and is listed as one of the "American Men in Science," said Wednesday that even if such a bomb existed, it would be so heavy no airplane could lift it.

Baker contradicted reports by two biologists, Drs. E. W. Pfeiffer and Arthur H. Westing, who described the "super bomb" Monday in a report to the American Association for the Advancement of Science annual meeting in Philadelphia.

"I've been doing research on explosives for more than 25 years, and I know enough to know the numbers they are giving out are impossible," Baker said. "I think they should recheck their numbers or their sources."

Pfeiffer and Westing said the bomb was created primarily to clear dense jungle for landing zones, but later was used as an antipersonnel weapon in combat situations.

Baker said he would believe a bomb that could destroy everything within 130 feet—but not 3,280.

"To have a weapon of the size they describe, you would have to have 283 million pounds of TNT and a B52 could not even lift it," said Baker, who is manager of engineering dynamics at the Southwest Research Institute.

"I understand they are biologists—not explosives experts—and I think they may have received some misinformation." Pfeiffer, a zoologist at the University of Montana and Westing, b ology department chairman at Windham College in Putney, Vt., released the figures at the scientific meeting in a paper titled "impact of modern weaponry development on the human environment in Indochina."

They quoted Air Force officers as saying, "It's the next best thing to a nuke" and said the bomb was referred to as an "explosive bulldozer."

Baker said, "the question is not whether the U.S. is using super bombs or not. The question is—is such a huge bomb possible? My calculations show it couldn't even be lifted off the ground."

Two Scientists Ask Technology Brakes

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — One scientist Wednesday suggested a ban on further research into science's growing ability to fashion life forms, and another today said mankind's only hope in an increasingly mechanized society is to impose "deliberate public control" over future technology.

Both suggestions came during the annual meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science (AAAS).

At a symposium entitled "Living Systems: Synthesis, Assembly, Origins" during Wednesday's AAAS session, seven scientists described their progress in synthesizing component parts of life —which, very broadly, means "altering" present life forms, or producing higher life forms from existing ones.

But Dr. Charles C. Price, professor of chemistry at the University of Pennsylvania, said, "The developing techniques for the synthesis of genetic information and for inserting it into existing living systems raises the question of whether and how such an awesome possibility should be utilized to 'improve' the species.

"A basic philosophical question is whether society should control such a remarkable power, whether it should be exercised by free individual choice, or whether it should be outlawed.

"My personal view favors the second alternative but this whole question is one of major significance, and one on which there will certainly be strong and emotional opinions of great diversity."

At another symposium today, Dr. Mulford Q. Sibley of the University of Minnesota said technology has lengthened man's lifespan and was thus to blame for the population explosion; has despoiled natural resources, and had dehumanized people by doing the work once done by man.

"Adoption of new complex technology has a far greater effect in revolutionizing the traditional American way of life than anything the Communists propose to do," he said. "Yet we send FBI agents after the Communists and allow those who introduce new technology not only to escape official public notice but to be rewarded for the revolution they are carrying out."

Sibley said man has gone too far on the path of technology to abandon it. "Our only hope is to become fully aware of where we stand and to subject introduction of future technology to deliberate public control. We ought also to re-examine our sublime faith in technology and develop attitudes which view its curtailment, on occasion, as possibly desirable."

To adequately control technology, he said, agreements would have to come at the world, not merely the national, level.

Prison Seeks More Guards

Applicants must apply in person no later than 3 p.m. tomorrow at the prison's personnel office. Applicants must be between 21 and 35 years of age, have a high school diploma and two years of work experience. Salaries start at $651 per month increasing to $791 in three years.

The written test will be given Monday and oral interviews will begin that afternoon, Nelson said. He wants applications from black and Chicano communities, he said.

Ex-Justice Harlan Dead; Called 'Great Dissenter'

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Four teen weeks ago, ill health forced the retirement of Supreme Court Justice John Marshall Harlan, a scholarly jurist who earned the title "The Great Dissenter" during more than 16 years on the court.

Wednesday, Harlan, 72, died at George Washington University hospital. The cause of death was not announced, but it was widely known when he retired Sept. 23 that he was suffering from spinal cancer.

His death came eight days before the scheduled swearing in of William H. Rehnquist, a former assistant U.S. attorney general, who will be his replacement. Joining the court at the same time will be Richmond, Va., attorney Lewis F. Powell Jr., who was appointed by President Nixon to replace the late Justice Hugo L. Black.

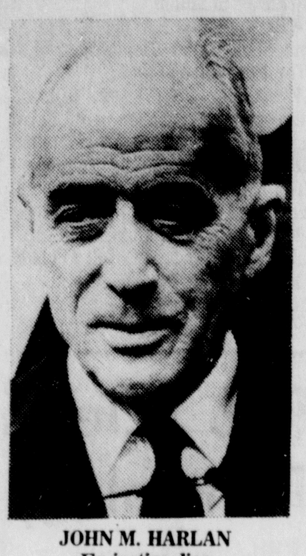
Harlan was the only Supreme Court justice with a direct ancestor who served on the court. The ancestor was his grandfather, the first John Marshall Harlan, after whom Harlan was named.

Harlan was born in Chicago, May 20, 1899, and graduated from Princeton University in 1920. He attended Oxford University as a Rhodes scholar and obtained his law degree from New York Law School in 1924.

He became a respected Wall Street lawyer and served in various advisory positions in the New York state government until his appointment to the 2nd



JOHN M. HARLAN

U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals Feb. 10, 1954. On March 17, 1955, President Dwight D. Eisenhower nominated him for the Supreme Court.

As a justice, Harlan established a conservative reputation, arguing that the court was going too far, was trying to find a cure for "every major social ill in this country" in some constitutional "principle." He believed in the principle he called "federalism," a clean dividing line between federal and state authority.

Typically, his voice alone said "no" when the court ruled June 15, 1964, that both houses of state legislatures must be apportioned on a one-man, one-vote basis.

But Harlan also at times was on the winning side. Last spring he wrote the 5 to 4 opinion that held that the simple display of a common four-letter vulgarism is constitutionally protected speech and may not be made a criminal offense.

"While the particular four-letter word here is perhaps more distasteful than most others of its genre, it is nevertheless often true that one man's vulgarity is another's lyric," Harlan wrote.

A tall, distinguished looking man with thinning gray hair and a slight stoop, Harlan had been afflicted in recent years by failing eyesight. Reading became difficult for him and he was forced to deliver his opinions on the bench from memory. The practice only seemed to give his pronouncements more weight with his colleagues.

At Harlan's bedside Wednesday were his daughter, three sisters and his close friend, Justice Potter Stewart, who described Harlan as "a beloved brother and noble friend."

"His generous and gallant spirit, his selfless courage, his freedom from all guile, his total decency—these were the qualities that gave him such singular leadership and strength," Stewart said.

Search For San Quentin Inmate Off

San Quentin Prison officials today called off their "behind the walls" search for convicted murderer Jacon Zitzer who is now listed as having successfully escaped Dec. 13.

"We now believe he made it over the wall," Joseph R. O'Brien, prison information officer, said today.

Zitzer, 27, escaped over the prison's main wall with a prison-made rope but two other convicts were captured. It had earlier been thought Zitzer might have been hiding in the prison's industrial area.

O'Brien said an extensive search of that area has been called off and the night guard is back to its standard level.

Jack C. Duncan, 37, and Juan Colon, 28, were captured shortly after the young son of a prison official reported seeing activity near the prison wall.

A rope made of prison denims had been attached to a grappling hook made of pipe and thrown over the wall. The rope had broken.

Cleverly fashioned dummies had been placed in the cells of the three prisoners.

Zitzer was serving time for a murder committed in a Los Angeles robbery seven years ago.

Law enforcement has become so complex that more than 100 state, local and federal law enforcement agencies now employ legal counsel to advise them.

Packard Gives $2.8 Million To Stanford

STANFORD, Calif. (UPI)—David Packard, who resigned recently as deputy defense secretary, has given $2.6 million to Stanford University. It was part of $18 million he must dispense of.

Packard was required to place his $300 million of stock in Hewlett-Packard, an electronics firm he cofounded, into a trust established when he took the federal post in 1969. The value of the stock rose $18 million before he resigned this month.

The profit must go to educational and charitable institutions.

Youth Denies Burglary Count

Arthur Michael Farmer, 18, of Novato, pleaded innocent yesterday in Marin Superior Court to a charge of burglary.

Judge E. Warren McGuire set his trial for Feb. 14.

MAKING YOUR MOVIES MOVE

The major difference between still and motion picture photography is implied in the names. Movies show not just a single picture but a continuous action. Many home movies forget this basic principle. Instead of "moving," they are just collections of bits and pieces.

The ideal solution is to use your movie camera to tell a story. Take that New Year's Eve party, for instance. It might be fun to view a collection of mixed "highlights" . . . but a more effective film will make it a "story" with a beginning, middle and end.

Start where you want — with the first arrivals, for instance, opening the first bottle of champagne. Let your "highlights" build to the climactic midnight festivities. And the ending? Well, how about an "after-the-party" glimpse, when everyone has gone and you collapse, tired and happy, among the hats and favors, in the stillness?

The point is to plan a story . . . and you'll hold your viewers. Make that a resolution now . . . and resolve to see us in the New Year for the best in photographic needs, from cameras to film to dependable, prompt developing and printing.

"I got more than I asked for at Fidelity..."

I thought opening a savings account at Fidelity would be routine. I was surprised at how much time they took to make sure I had the right account. They showed me how to get a guaranteed 6.18% annual yield on my two-year account. And, unexpectedly, Fidelity also arranged for a free checking account and provided me with traveler's checks. Both come in handy when I fly."

Many airline industry personnel reside in San Mateo and Santa Clara Counties, where Fidelity Savings has five of its offices.
